AIR INTELLIGENCE INFORMATION REPORT

FROM (Agency) Wing Intelligence Section Chanute AFB, Illinois	REPORT NO.	PAGE 2 OF 2	PAGES
---	------------	-------------	-------

On 17 September 1952, 1st Lt Alan R. HOGAN, AF 245198, 1918-3 AACB, Chanute AFB, Illinois, aircraft controller, rated pilot & not on flying status, with 850 flying hours and 65 combat missions in Martin B-26s was interviewed in his office and stated in substance:

Lt HOGAN along with two airmen was on duty in the CHANUTE AFB control tower on the evening of 16 September 1952. All three men noticed an unusually bright bluishwhite light, approximately ten (10) times the diameter of the neighboring stars, in the sky at approximately 15 degrees above the horizon and at approximately 50 degrees compass heading. During the period of observation, 2210 hrs CDT to 2325 hrs CDT, the object moved in a straight path from the aforementioned position to approximately 20 degrees above the horizon and 35 degrees compass heading. It then ascended to approximately 60 degrees above the horizon and to a 90 degree compass heading and disappeared as if going behind a cloud. During the ascent the object disappeared three (3) times for a period of several minutes each time. On its reappearance the object was always at a higher altitude and appeared to be larger. From 2228 hrs CDT the object was under observation through eight (8) power uncalibrated binoculars. The binoculars made the object appear approximately twice as large as it appeared to the naked eye. Through the binoculars the object appeared to be an irregular round mass with two (2) small satellites. One satellite was to the object's left and slightly above center, the other was to the right and slightly below center. During the period of observation the satellites did not change their relative position to the main body. There was no apparent sound, oscillation or fluttering motion.

The weather consisted of thunder storms in the west behind the observers and light stratus clouds in the east. It was definitely noted that on occasion the clouds passed between the object and the observers.

A local flying B-25 was requested to attempt interception of the object. The B-25, without oxygen, was confined to an altitude of not more than 10,000 feet. The pilot of the B-25 never saw the object clearly at any time and dismissed it as being a reflection of a star on the clouds.

The other two control tower operators agreed substantially upon the appearance and course of the object with Lt HOGAN.
