PARAPSYCHOLOGISTS SAY:
YOU CAN LIVE YOUR RE-BIRTH

We're looking for people who love to write...

for profit.

The major difference between a selling writer and a would-be writer is often professional training. Of course, you can continue stringing phrases together on your own and hope that an editor calls you. That's an excellent way to complete your "rejection slip" collection, but not a very good way to get published. After 50 years of experience, we know that the best way to learn to write professionally is to learn from a professional writer. An experienced, seasoned pro who will match his personal instruction to your particular needs and interests.

WE CAN HELP YOU BECOME THE WRITER YOU WANT TO BE . . . A PUBLISHED WRITER!

At The Writers Institute, we've been responsible for literally countless professional careers since 1925. How do we account for all this success? By tar-getting our training program towards one specific objective . . . making every student a versatile, selling writer. From the moment you begin your first assignment, you'll be working hand-in-hand with your own instructor, an accomplished writer or editor whose only interest is to help see to it that you get published. You'll learn together . . . using time-tested, proven materials and techniques. You'll understand the intricacies of plot development . . . how to create your own personal literary style . . . how to consistently write the kind of material an editor won't be able to turn down. Your entire creative "growth" will be a thoroughly enjoyable experience — shared only by you and your instructor. No computer or form letter will analyze or edit your assignments. And when your instructor feels that your writing has progressed sufficiently, he will even suggest the best possible markets in which to sell your material. After all, we judge his work by how well editors judge your work.

GIVE YOURSELF A FIGHTING CHANCE WITH OUR FREE APTITUDE TEST!

If you genuinely enjoy writing . . . if you feel the need to record your thoughts, ideas and experiences on paper, then quite possibly you have what it takes to write professionally. Give yourself a fighting chance. Send us the coupon below and we'll immediately mail you our FREE WRITING APTITUDE TEST. It will give you clear evidence whether or not you have potential as a professional writer. There's no obligation of any kind. No salesman will call. You really have everything to gain by taking our test, so be sure to mail the coupon today.

A supernova is a cataclysmic explosion that marks the death of a star. Along with the matter ejected in the form of an expanding shell of hot gasses, high energy particles called cosmic rays are also flung out billions of miles into space.

What would happen if a supernova occurred in our immediate stellar neighborhood, say within a radius of 100 light-years of our solar system? Many astronomers have speculated upon this ver possibility.

A strong dose of cosmic rays would have an effect similar to that of radioactivity, which we know to be inimicable to life forms as we know them on earth. Even if the supernovas cosmic rays did not directly affect the terrestrial organisms, their indirect effects could still prove catastrophic. Such rays could disrupt or alter the precious ozone layer, the atmospheric layer of gas which shields earth organisms from the harsh ultraviolet radiation of our parent star, the sun. The ensuing UV solar radiation would be enough to affect the genetic makeup of certain organisms,

COULD A SUPERNOVA EXTINGUISH LIFE ON EARTH?

resulting in drastic mutations. We would very likely see a vast proliferation of human, as well as other kinds, of mutants. Other large-scale changes would come about as well, among them an enormous increase in skin cancer from severe sunburn, new diseases and plagues due to mutations of viruses in the Atmosphere, and ecological havoc because of the extinction of certain organisms in the food chain.

According to some theorists, the extinction of dinosaurs and other earthly life forms may have been due to just such a galactic cataclysim in the past.

Nearby supernovae occur on the average of about once every 100 million years in our galaxy. Ordinary novae which are much less spectacular, but if near enough, still as potentially disastrous, occur much more frequently.

A very spectacular supernova was witnessed by the world and catalogued by Chinese astronomers in the year 1054. It was bright enough to be seen in the daytime skies, and its remnants can still be seen in the form of the crab nebula in the constellation Taurus. But that one was at a relatively safe distance, some 4000 light-years away. At the 100 light-year distance, a supernova could have dire effects for life on the planet earth. Any closer than that, a supernova could spell our doom. Einstein claimed that God "does not play dice," but if he does, let's hope the cosmic odds are on our side. □

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

I'm afraid that all of Mr. Harv Howard's article on the 1896-97 "airship" sightings does to the reader is to confuse the issue of UFO reality even more. Surely, many of the UFO reports from 1897 are very questionable as many are today, but his article overlooks the residue of reports that cannot be explained, thus giving the reader a very biased look. In fact, the famous Alexander Hamilton calf-napping incident described in his article, was recently proved to be a hoax by UFO researcher/writer Jerome Clark. The two other reports detailed by Mr. Howard are not even taken seriously by many UFO researchers.

I've spent many hours scouring old newspapers for data on this particular UFO wave, and even more hours analyzing, writing catalogues, preparing statistical tables and drawing up maps that show the distribution of "airship" reports on a day-to-day basis.

I would support the efforts of writers like Harv Howard if they would conduct some responsible research, rather than compile an erroneous hodge-podge of questionable reports and then using it to explain away one of the great UFO mysteries.

Some of the 1897 reports are false, being the result of "yellow journalism." Some of the witnesses misinterpreted conventional astronomical phenomena. Yet, when all the noise is filtered out, a signal, and a strong one at that, remains.

The UFO phenomenon was around in 1897, and when dealing with a subject as controversial as UFOs, it should be every writer's job to present an accurate picture.

Sincerely

David Fideler
Lambertville, Michigan

Dear Editor:

Today I purchased my first copy of Beyond Reality and read with keen and deep interest the contents of your August 1977 issue.

On page 10 and 11, Lee Walsh, your southwest editor, wrote an article on Space Communication. Within the contents of Miss Walsh's article she wrote about a Richard Miller and mentioned the Spiritual Frontiers Fellowship. I would appreciate it very much if you will publish the address of this organization, as I would like to write to them and purchase a number of Richard Miller's tape lectures.

Nicholas Nestor
Cleveland, Ohio

Dear Editor:

How may I obtain Richard Miller's tape lecture "Earthman Come Home" which was given at Asbury Methodist Church on January 20, 1975. I would also like to obtain any other lecture tapes or material on this subject.

Arietta Washington
Pittsburg Penn.

Dear Editor:

When I read the column by Lee Walsh, in your August issue I was amazed at the information it presented. I would like to congratulate Miss Walsh for bringing this information out to the readers of your magazine.

I would like to have the address of the organization that has the lecture tape so that I can study the information in detail.

Thank you for your time and effort.

Walter Miller
Revelstoke, B.C.,
Canada

For information on the Dick Miller tapes, please write to

*Spiritual Frontiers Fellowship,

Dear Editor:

In your July/August 1976 issue, you had an article in your Strange and Unknown column on an animal owned by a man who lived upstate New York, Michael Miller who named it Oliver. At the time of the article, investigation of the strange "ape-man" was being conducted. You mentioned that the results of the investigation will be in a future issue. Being that I have missed the issue, can you please tell me what they found out about this animal?

The animal turned out to be an unusual type of chimpanzee according to zoologists who have studied "Oliver", the name given the chimp by his owner who felt that because of its human appearance may have some connection with bigfoot. —Editor

An article appeared in your May 77 issue on the "U.S. PSI Squad" by Laura Kyro. Can you please tell me where I can obtain the address in St. Louis?.

I would appreciate an answer or forward my letter to them.

Than You
Rev. K. Barnes
Orange, Calif.

Information on the PSI Squad can be obtained by writing to the author, Laura Kyro, 6030 Magnolia, St. Louis, Mo. 63139.

Dear Editor:

I am a student from Belgrade, the capitol of Yugoslavia. I am involved in space research with the Association for Research of Man and Space. I am also interested in ESP, Cosmology, Ufology and psychic phenomena.

It is very difficult to find books dealing with these subjects here in my country. Very little literature appears in our media which is printed in Yugoslav's Serbo-Croat language. I would like to obtain information in English and I would like very much to hear from organizations in your country or from readers who can send me this type of material.

I would like very much to establish friends in the United States and in Canada who share my curiosity of life and the universe. Thank you for whatever help you can give me.

Dear Editor:

First of all, let me congratulate you on your fine magazine. It is very refreshing to find a magazine such as yours, with quality as well as quantity.

In recent issues of Beyond Reality I found that several of your readers are interested in the hollow earth theory. Could you please forward my name and address to any society that is engaged in this type of study.

Sincerely
Al Martinez
New Orleans, LA.

Dear Editor:

I am writing to you hoping you will help. The New Age is dawning and more and more people are becoming interested in the ageless wisdom. But the situation is rather difficult here in Poland as there is no recognition of this kind and no metaphysical books are printed.

Another problem is that money is prohibited to be sent abroad. We are going to establish the first esoteric society that will propagate different branches of the occult wisdom that is Rosicrucianism, theosophy, and ufology so that anyone interested can find his own channel of expression. But we need help to organize here.

We would appreciate any help from your readers. Our society is going to propagate all kinds of true esoteric wisdom and thus would be a channel for your activities too.

Sincerely
Miloz Wozniak,

Dear Editor:

I feel that Joseph F. Blumrich's 1973 book The Spaceships of Ezekiel was very misleading because he claims that we do not have the nuclear technology at the present time to build a nuclear powered spaceship seen over two thousand years ago by Ezekiel. Although he states that "...we could build such a spaceship now with the exception of the reactor," (p.27) he does not mention the fact that the United States tested its first nuclear rocket in 1959 and more than 25 NERVA nuclear rockets were tested on the ground before the program was cancelled in 1973. Each NERVA rocket was capable of producing five billion watts of power. Why does the author state that "...there is only scant information available in the open literature on existing reactors" (p.165) when there were hundreds of scientific articles and many textbooks published on nuclear rocket technology from 1946 until 1973?

The evidence in this scientific literature definitely indicates that our technological capabilities are more advanced than the primitive

Books For Review

THE NUMBERS OF LIFE: The Hidden Power In Numerology, by Kevin Quinn Avery, Dolphin, $3.95.

The revised and enlarged edition of Kevin Avery's The Number Of Life is destined to be a classic in the field—the most comprehensive and practical guide to numerology on the market. This edition contains completely new material on numerical cycles and their effect on an individual's life path. Through the hidden power of numbers, Avery provides insights into the present and a guide to charting the future.

PLANET IN TROUBLE: The UFO Assault on Earth, by Jerome Eden, Exposition, $7.50.

This book provides documentary proof that a war between earthmen and intelligent beings from outer space is now taking place. The spacemen are conducting a slow, silent and generally unnoticed type of warfare. If unhalted, this interplanetary assault by UFOs will inevitably convert our planet into another deserted moon.

Jerome Eden, a journalist and a former newsman, presents facts which though shocking and frightening must nevertheless be faced if man is to survive as a species. In Planet in Trouble, Mr. Eden delves deeply into the use of "infinite cosmic power" by UFOs as their propulsive and military force.

Eden looks at the findings of the late Dr. Wilhelm Reich, world renowned expert on UFO phenomena, to validate his theories. The facts presented in this book are certain to be met with second guessing and controversy, but then everyone has the right to know the truth concerning our relationship with the outer world.

GOD IS MY WITNESS: The Story of the World Famous Healer, by E.G. Fricker, Stein and Day, $8.95.

God is My Witness is the life story of Ted Fricker which proves to be very fascinating.

Mr. Fricker has no medical training nor special skills, but yet over a million people in twenty-five years have entered his clinic. Sick and despairing, these people left with good health restored.

Fricker, within minutes of seeing a patient, can pinpoint the part of the body that is ailing. Then by simply laying on of hands, Fricker brings relief to the sufferer. No one, not even Ted Fricker, knows how this happens, but his best explanation is, "The power of God flowing through me as an instrument touches people." His main success is in treating back trouble and ulcers, but medical doctors have affirmed that even cancer has given way to the powers that he has within him. Mr. Fricker has achieved amazing cures even on patients he has never seen. He accomplishes this feat simply by concentrating.

Ted Fricker is generous with his gifts and is willing to help others recognize and develop theirs. He emerges in this book as a man in the service of the Lord.

PSYCHIC ARCHAEOLOGY: Time Machine To The Past, by Jeffrey Goodman, Berkley, $8.95.

On April 30, 1971, Jeffrey Goodman had a vivid, unnerving dream that revealed the site of a major archaeological discovery. With the help of a powerfully gifted psychic, Goodman was able to find the exact location in Arizona and the treasure of artifacts that were buried there. The implications of what he found are staggering: the first Americans did not come from Asia and their culture evolved thousands of years earlier than was suspected. Archaeologists refused to believe that such people ever existed.

Through three seminal figures, Goodman traces the roots of psychic archaeology. He also tells the story of his own dig and of his conflicts and the ridicule he confronted until he opposed these scientists, academies, and bureaucrats with hard evidence. Goodman also discusses current developments and the search for persons of high psychic powers. Psychic Archaeology holds the key to new revelations.

THE DEVIL'S FOOTSTEPS, by John Burke, Coward, McCann & Geoghegan, $7.95.

The Devil's Footsteps is a fictional novel about devil worship and the occult. The book is about a women photographer, Bronwen Powys, who arrives in the remote village of Hexney in the autumn of 1885 with the intention of photographing the architecture of the area.

With the approach of the Autumn Harvest festival, Bronwen begins to suspect unnatural forces stirring beneath the placid surface of village life. The town seems to lie under the spell of a sinister past, and gradually, as fear breathes its evil miasma out of the fenlands, the villagers experience the inexorable manifestations of a malevolent power. Bronwen encounters the handsome and frighteningly charming Dr. Caspian, a self-styled magician bent on using scientific methods to achieve his miracles.

The Devil's Footsteps combines magic and the mysticism of the occult with a powerful and absorbing love story set against the vivid background of rural Victorian England.

THE UFO ENIGMA by Donald H. Menzel and Ernest Tawes, Doubleday, $8.95.

This book claims that "flying saucers" are not extraterrestrial vehicles which bring little green men from outer space, but rather illusions produced by easily explainable meteorological and optical phenomena.

The late Dr. Menzel was an astronomer and astrophysicist as well as director of the Harvard College Observatory. Ernest Tawes is a prominent psychoanalyst. Together, the authors attempt to explain what really caused people to believe they were seeing flying saucers. According to Menzel and Tawes, a number of the sightings were caused by atmospheric phenomena such as ice crystals, unusual lighting effects, or clouds. Others, they say, were the result of strange tricks played by radar. Also included is a brief summary of man's fascination with the unknown and an evaluation of the theories of Van Daniken and of the Bermuda Triangle mystery.

GODS OF THE CATAclySM, by Hugh Fox, Harpers, $10.95.

The Great Cataclysm is the missing ingredient which proves that the New World was definitely part of the Old. As recounted in Mr. Fox's book, the Great Cataclysm erupted from the inner extremes of the earth, destroying the populations of the world.

The Old World societies, such as the Minoans and the related Minas (Fish) tribes had colonized not only the Mediterranean, but also the Indo-Chinese coast, the Pacific and Atlantic Oceans. These tribes had a world culture, and later their history served as the basis for the Greek myths explaining the births and natures of the gods.

The second part of Fox's book deals with the descendants of the Old World: the Incas, the Teotihuacans, the Aztecs and the Mayans—all later swept over and pillaged by other peoples, by newcomers from Europe, by the Phoenicians and by the Norsemen. The Phoenicians and other invaders downgraded their gods and took gold and other mineral wealth from them. This made their gods angry and a cataclysm ensued. Later the Roman Empire was similarly destroyed for violating the sanctuaries of the gods.

Basically, the book deals with the destruction of world empires that gained power and wealth by the enslavement and exploitation of less sophisticated cultures and attempts to explain how the cultures that were destroyed by cataclysm were brought down by the hands of their own gods.

PSYCHIC CHILDREN, by Samuel H. Young, Doubleday, $6.95.

Here is a fascinating book full of incidents, most recently investigated, in which children demonstrated striking powers of clairvoyance, precognition and psychokinesis. While offering stunning glimpses into a magical world that is less remote than most of us think, Psychic Children also provides advice to parents on how to handle a child who displays psychic abilities.

NAZCA, by Jim Woodman, Pocket, $1.75 (paperback).

"A 400-foot-long condor with wide-open circle eyes looked up at us. It was unnerving to look down into eyes that had stared skyward for fifteen centuries..."

This is the awesome image of Nazca—South America's most perplexing archaeological riddle—from the air. For over two thousand years these striking and mystifying drawings of condors, spiders and monkeys along with enigmatic hieroglyphics, have sprawled across two hundred miles of Peruvian desert floor. The scale is so vast that the drawings can be seen properly only from the skies above the sunbaked plains.

Were these gigantic designs landing strips for extraterrestrial visitors centuries ago, as Von Daniken suggested? Or could it be that the people of Nazca themselves soared above the great configurations in ancient airships superbly crafted of native materials?

The enthralling story of a modern expedition to solve the mystery offers some startling answers.

WITHOUT A TRACE, by Charles Berlitz, Doubleday, $7.95.

The author of the international best-seller, The Bermuda Triangle, has written another book that investigates a series of new and baffling incidents which took place in that mysterious section of the Atlantic Ocean also known as the Devil's Triangle—strange incidents which have no answers.

This new book is filled with startling stories of strange happenings within the Triangle: peculiarities of sea and weather, the appearance of "ghost ships" and a catalogue of vessels which have disappeared from 1800 to 1976, clouds that seem to chase and capture ships and planes, time warps and the possibility of a doorway in the area leading to another dimension or even to outer space. His previous books besides The Bermuda Triangle are Mysteries From Forgotten Worlds and The Mystery of Atlantis. □

Strange and Unknown

A teacher from the small village of Spencer, New York, has been amazing scientists with his ability to make furniture rise off the floor which defies known physical laws.

Phillip Jordon, the man with the strange power, is a 25 year-old graduate of the State University at Brockport. He has gone through many tests at Kent State's Physics Department for a number of psychic abilities which he is able to perform. Michael H. Brown, a writer from Niagara Falls, accompanied Mr. Jordon for testing at Kent State said, "I don't know what it is, but everyone who has seen his display seems to think he possesses psychokinesis which is the ability to mentally move objects." He has seen Mr. Jordon perform the levitation more than 20 times.

Anthropologists from the University of Pittsburgh have discovered the fossil of an ice-age animal which is said to be the first evidence of a direct association between early man and an extinct animal in the Eastern part of the North American continent. Professor James Adovasio, director of the team, said the fossil of the mammal, extinct for over 10,000 years, was found at an archeological site near Avella, Pa., where scientists have uncovered evidence of human existence dating back more than 18,000 years.

Author Charles Berlitz claims to have discovered a pyramid on the bottom of the sea in the area of the notorious Bermuda Triangle.

He further claims that the pyramid is larger than the Cheops Pyramid in Egypt. The strange pyramid is located at a depth of about 3,000 feet and has the same angle as the Cheops Pyramid. Curiously enough both pyramids are at the same latitude.

Berlitz made the best sellers list some time ago with his book The Bermuda Triangle, and he has more than a passing fancy in the subject. He announced his discovery at a press conference saying that it shows a highly developed ancient civilization may once have existed in the area. He said that the structure is over 600 feet high but refused to say exactly where it is located. He is preparing a submarine expedition to try to photograph the strange pyramid. He is also the author of Without A Trace which is also a study of the Devil's Triangle.

From Acapulco, Mexico, come a weird report of contact with space Humanoids. A group of about 25 Mexicans announced to the International Congress of UFO Phenomena that they have had telepathic communications with aliens from outer space.

They claimed that the aliens have instructed them to build some strange medical equipment. They also claim that they are undergoing physical change as a result of their contact with the alien life.

One man showed reporters two inch-deep furrows running along the top of his head and down his back. He claimed they were "channels" and that he was learning to handle "a new form of energy" under the supervision of the aliens.

If you think that the "Moonies" are a strange cult, its mild compared to this report from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. Eight or nine infants were drowned in the ocean by members of a religious cult who said they had orders from spirit voices.

Police officers from the north-eastern city of Salvador who made the report said they have arrested between 21 and 25 members of the cult which goes by the name of The Universal Assembly Church of the Saints.

The drownings came to light when a witness who came upon the strange sacrificial rituals, fled to report it to the police. The police are now investigating to see just how many children have been reported missing within the last several years.

Sofia Misilevich died and came back from the dead more than 26 times. This report came from the USSR by way of the Tass news agency.

According to Tass the fifty year old woman simply died without warning, then came to life again... repeating the process 26 times.

Doctors have theorized that her "deaths" were due to an emotional upset that she had experienced just before they occurred.

Tass further stated that a team of two professors and seven assistant professors labored over Miss Misilevich for over two days and pronounced the case "Beyond the limits of usual notions of medicine."

Mr. and Mrs. Francois Perez will believe in UFOs from now on. The French couple were frightened out of their wits while heading towards Valence, France.

They described a big glowing star that almost landed on their car. After bringing their car to a halt, they watched as the glowing object landed in a field and then took off again so fast that it was out of sight in seconds.

The couple were almost in shock over the incident as they explained to the police that at first they thought they were being followed by a helicopter. Later, as they continued on their way, they came across the same object which was parked on a field about 400 feet from the road. It was described as about 40 or 50 yards in diameter and surrounded by a halo of white light. The saucer's lights started flashing and the craft zoomed off.

They said that their eyes hurt for the next couple of days and that their wristwatches haven't worked since the incident.

Robert K.G. Temple has written a very fascinating and scholarly book in which he claims that we on earth are being monitored by creatures from outer space. Officials from NASA are checking out his theories, and the BBC in England, where Temple lives is filming a documentary on his work.

The crux of Temple's thesis concerns the Dogon Tribe of the West African country of Mali. "For centuries," says Temple, "the Dogons have based their religion, indeed their whole culture, on the star Sirius...and they have handed down through their folklore a body of knowledge concerning the star Sirius (the brightest star in the nighttime sky), including specific information on orbits and densities of the star which it would be impossible for a primitive tribe to know."

The Dogons have long held the belief that Sirius has a satellite star, and further, that they are the descendants of a race of beings who migrated to earth from a planet circling this star. Only in recent decades have astronomers confirmed the existence of a companion star to Sirius, which they call Sirius B, a "white dwarf" star. The kind of sophisticated optical equipment used by modern astronomers was, of course, not available to the primitive Dogon peoples.

Temple outlines the incredible enigma connected with this tribe in a book called The Sirius Mystery.

It is his belief that the earth was visited by extraterrestrial beings—possibly from the Sirius star system—some 5000 years ago, and that these beings left knowledge which is still being preserved by the Dogon Tribe today.

It's been reported that a small area in north-central Mexico is baffling scientists and the people at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

This area is known as the "silent zone", is located about 230 miles from the Texas border. What is strange about the area is that all forms of radio communication are completely blacked out, compasses go haywire, some of the animal and plant life in the area are strangely mutant, and there is an amazing abundance of fallen meteorites strewn about.

The strange and forbidden area was discovered in 1969 by a Mexican engineer, Harry de la Pena. While working in the area, he found that even very powerful radio signals could not be broadcasted or received.

Several government agencies, including NASA and the U.S. Air Force looked into the strange Mexican landscape after an Atlas missile was drawn into the region which is far off its intended target during a 1970 test-firing.

As of this writing, the mystery remains and investigators are still testing the area in an effort to shed some light on the strange happenings there.

Oscar Bravo, a radio announcer who lives in Puntas Arenas, Chile, reported that he was awakened by a strange sound as he was about to retire for the evening.

"First, I noticed the sky was bright," he said. "This caused me to open the curtains, and I could see these two things suspended in the air emitting a strong light, bright and orange.

"The lights went out, but returned with a greenish color. Then two things, of oval shape, moved at a rapid speed, opening themselves like a 'V' and closing at a higher point in the sky." They finally disappeared over the straits, he said.

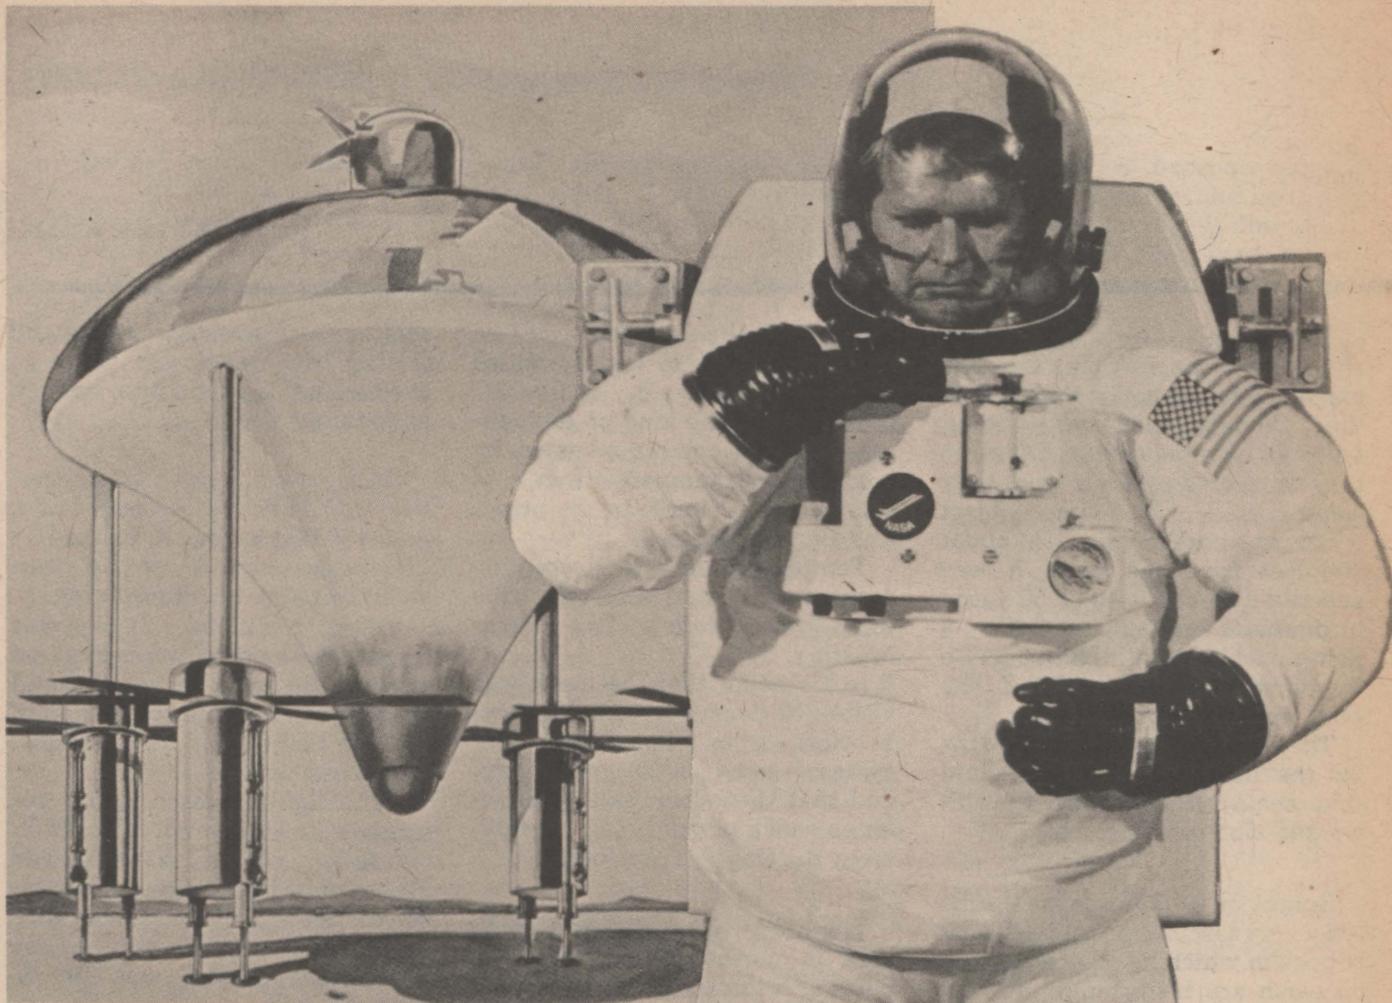

Several days later, passengers on a bus to Puerto Varas in southern Chile also reported oval shaped objects following the bus at an altitude of about 200 yards.

Several of the passengers who were questioned about the sighting by newsmen estimated the size of the object at about 50 feet in diameter. One woman said "like a huge wagon wheel."

Another UFO encounter in central Chile was that of a six man army patrol. The men were bedded down around a campfire while two of them stood guard. Suddenly two large glowing objects began to descend from the sky. The men described them as being "very bright with flashing red lights."

One of the objects landed in the foothills out of sight although the glow could be seen. The second object hovered about 50 feet off

THE REALITY OF TIME TRAVEL!

The latest in space suits is modeled here by a NASA engineer. Could this be what Ezekiel described as an angel?

By Ronald Pokatiloff

There are two basic, traditional interpretations of the Bible: (1) A supernatural being influenced the lives of the early Hebrews. (2) The Israelites' god was imaginary.

In most issues debated by opposing extremists, we find that the truth often lies somewhere in the middle. This can apply to the biblical viewpoints. Maybe the Hebrews were involved with a real phenomenon, as the Judaic, Islamic, and Christian faith advocate. But instead of crediting the scriptural events to an actual divinity, which is unacceptable to secular scholarship, let us suppose that the Israelites were contacted by technological and biological entities—by spaceships and space beings. This explanation would satisfy many religious as well as atheistic adherents.

It is not too surprising, then, that since the 1950's a number of theories have been proposed that support this middle of the road, space age view. We are dealing with three main expositions: (1) The ancients mistook astronauts and spaceships for gods. (2) God is a supertechnological spaceman. (3) The angels were dispatched in UFOs by God.

The theory I propose approximates the first exposition, with one major difference: I give no credence to the ancient astronauts as alien spacemen, instead I believe that if they existed at all, they were earthmen, time travelers who came from a future Earth in another universe or dimension.

What proof is there to support my hypothesis?

To begin with, we have biblical prophecy. In the scriptures there are hundreds of detailed predictions directed by the prophets at certain individuals, towns, cities, and nations. All have come true with amazing accuracy. From a totally rational view, the only possible explanation for this phenomenon is that of time-traveling spacemen were in communication with the prophets.

Besides fulfilled prophecies the Bible also has verses depicting spaceships and astronauts.

In 1974 Bantam Books published The Spaceships Of Ezekiel, authored by Josef Blumrich, a highly respected NASA engineer. In his manuscript Blumrich writes about spacecrafts and spacemen encountered in the Old Testament by the prophet Ezekiel.

Ezekiel first saw the spaceship

It may sound like science fiction, but much evidence points to the conclusion that only time travel can be the answer to the many strange, and until now, unexplained mysteries found in the Biblical scriptures, such as the saga of Ezekiel.

in 593 B.C. while he was exiled in Babylon. It was by the Chebar River that he looked up and saw a great cloud with fire flashing forth from its midst. Four oblong structures were then seen descending from the middle of the cloud. As the vehicle came closer, the prophet could see on each structure four helicopter blades, two landing legs with round foot pads, and four mechanical hands. Ezekiel then writes that he saw lightening darting back and forth among the four creatures. What he really saw were control rockets being fired. Located on the inward side of each structure, they were used to position the craft for landing. After the vehicle had touched down, the prophet then spotted a large wheel by each of the structures. The four helicopter landing units were attached to the main stage of the spacecraft. Ezekiel depicts the hull as "a firmament, shining like crystal" (Ezek.1:22; from the Revised Version of the Bible, copyrighted 1946, 1952, 1971, 1973.) This is a fairly accurate description of the mushroom-shaped, metallic shell of the main body.

On top of the main stage, the prophet sighted an astronaut that was wearing a gold colored space suit. He spoke to Ezekiel as he sat in the pilot's seat in the transparent top stage of the vehicle, the command capsule. After the alien had delivered a short pronouncement, he then took the prophet by spaceship back to his people. (Ezek.1,2,3:1-15)

Later in his book, Ezekiel tells us that he was transported by the space vehicle to Jerusalem. There he was a witness to the exterminations of its ungodly citizens. At the command of the spaceship pilot, six astronauts used unknown weapons to slay the people all except the ones with the 'X' marked on their foreheads.

Ezekiel was also a bystander in another operation performed by the spacemen. First, the command capsule was separated from the main body and moved, with the use of its rocket engine, to a safe location. Then an astronaut clothed in a white protective suit was ordered to station himself by one of the helicopter structures. Next, one of the mechanical arms reached out and removed some firey material from the inside of the main stage. This matter was transferred into the hands of the spaceman with the protective suit. He took the mass, which was

Curtis Watkins and his art have been described as exciting and fantastic. He prefers to describe his technique of painting under hypnosis as a sincere experiment in which he is an observer himself.

Curtis has had some strange experiences as a result of his approach to art under self-hypnosis. His whole venture into the world of hypnosis came as the result of attempts at simple relaxation.

“This all started about three years ago,” he says. “I went under hypnosis for relaxation and I drew a picture. When I came out, I didn’t remember doing it, but my name was on it and my hands had charcoal all over them. Since then, I’ve done this on about 25 paintings and drawings, I’m really enthusiastic.”

“What I do is say three words to put myself under. I won’t tell anyone what the words are, because they might repeat them and I’ll go under again. But anyway, I say the words and program myself to do the portrait, or else I’d just sit there. I also program myself for the time to come out. It’s just like waking up from a sleep.”

Usually, after the 28-year old artist emerges from his trance, he is quite surprised by what he’s painted. Some of the incidents seem unexplainable.

“Like the first portrait I did under hypnosis, when I came out, my subject said, ‘Look at your signature on the painting, it looks kind of funny.’ It turned out to be my signature in his handwriting — only he didn’t sign it, and I had never seen his handwriting before.”

“Another portrait I did has braille on it, and the dots spell out the word ‘French.’ There are musical notes and a white cane around it. But my subject wasn’t blind, and he didn’t know braille, so there was no mental telepathy and didn’t even know braille had dots to it.”

Art Penhallow, a WRIF disc jockey, is having his portrait concentration, and I can crack him up with no trouble at all. But with hypnosis, he assumes a totally different personality. I tried getting his attention and talking to him, but he wouldn’t be swayed. I tried waving my hand in front of his face, but nothing.

“This was at my house, but the TV, telephone and my five kids didn’t bother him. He mumbled some things and one time he started laughing, but otherwise it was total concentration.”

Frank Moseley was Watkins second subject. Several years ago, he had started a portrait of Moseley, who he has known from childhood. They had attended grade school together at the Ann Arbor Street Fair.

Curt never finished the first portrait because he was busy on other commissions having priority. Sometime later, he destroyed it telling his wife that Frank Moseley was going to discard his mustache for a beard, and Curt would wait until then to do his portrait.

This did not come to pass, and Curt asked Moseley if he would care to be his second subject for a portrait done under hypnosis. Moseley agreed.

THE HYPNOTIC ART OF CURTISS WATKINS

BY AARON BEN SAMUEL

It took several sessions to complete. Before the last session Curt told Moseley that he would complete the picture that day, and that he would be under hypnosis for 154 minutes—exactly how long the final sitting took.

In talking with Frank Moseley, he described the whole experience as “exciting.” Moseley said he had the feeling Curt would look not directly at him, but watch the area around his head. Many who are students of parapsychology know that there are colors or auras around each of us.

It almost appears Curt can communicate with his subjects at a subconscious level which reveals elements of their present life, and perhaps even those of future or past lives.

In Moseley’s portrait the word French appears written in Braille. Neither man has any knowledge of Braille, or is blind. There is also what appears to be a white cane pictured along with the word.

When the dots first started to appear both men thought they represented something dealing with computers. Both were surprised to discover what eventually developed. Moseley feels perhaps this had some part in a past life, or at least he hopes so.

Perhaps the most unusual incident that happened during a session was when Curt spoke to Moseley, while still under hypnosis: He wrote the word

Above, the first picture Watkins painted while in a hypnotic trance. The artist studied at the Kendall School of Design in Grand Rapids, Michigan, and the Ann Arbor Art Center. His work has been acclaimed not only for its artistic quality but also for the study of the human mind.

“Mr. Watkins’ art work done under hypnosis is very interesting, I like it.”

—Norman Rockwell—

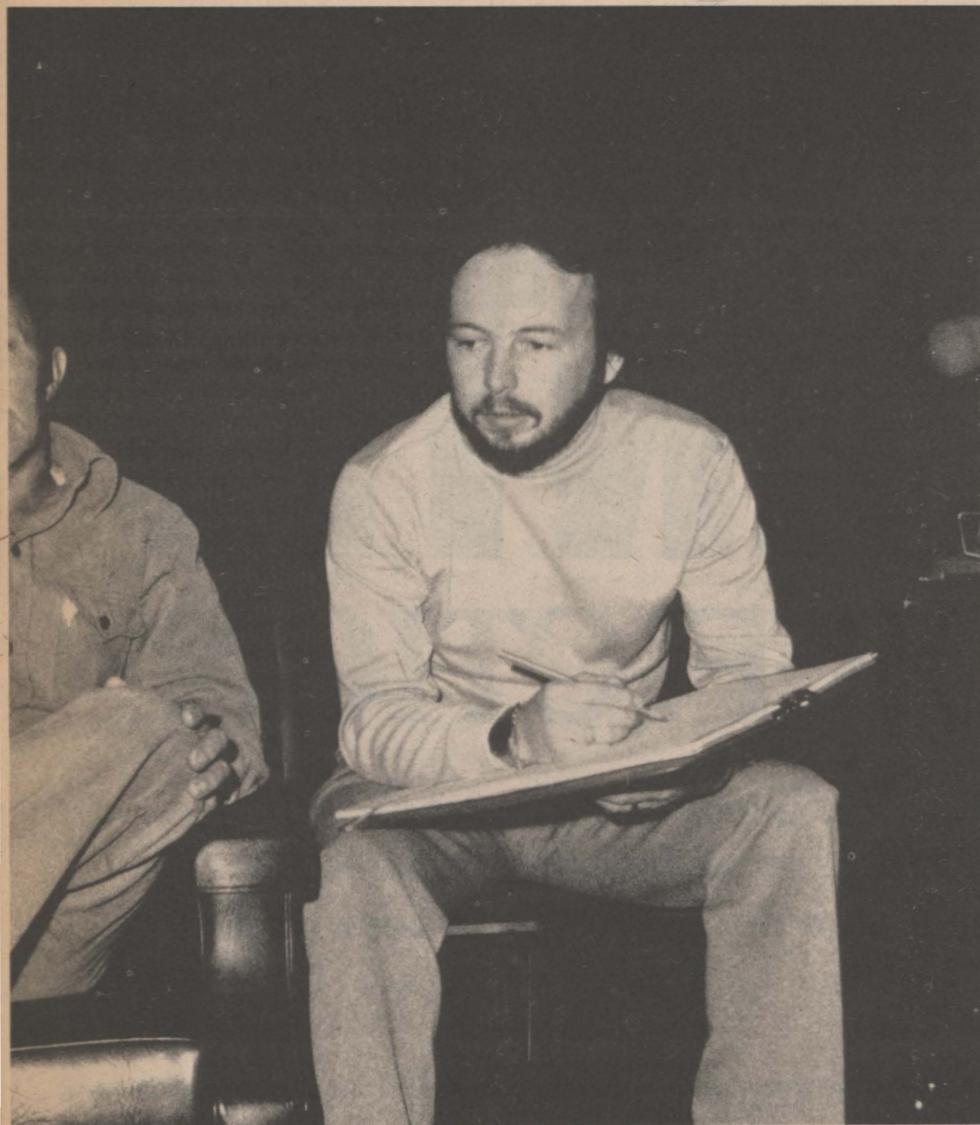

Watkins is just as amazed as those who view his remarkable hypnotic art. Below, the second portrait done by the artist. Watkins feels that his work has helped many to view life from a new perspective

This portrait, also done while the artist was under hypnosis, introduced an element of mystery. Watkins noticed that the signature was not his nor was it in his handwriting. It was signed “Dennis Urick.”

In an effort to use his talent to shed some light on the UFO flap which happened at Pascagoula, Watkins has arranged to do a portrait of the aliens as described by one of the abductees, Charles Hickson, pictured here with Watkins.

Gurdjieff on the portrait and told Moseley this man in history had some special meaning in Frank's life.

Neither man knew the name. Moseley checked the Bible to see if the name had any connection, but no luck. It was not till Watkins was being interviewed on the Focus program on station WJR that the mystery of the name was cleared up. Curt mentioned the incident on the air, and immediately, calls started coming in about who Gurdjieff was.

It seems he was a Russian author, who has written several books. Frank Moseley is currently checking for copies of his works to see if a tie does exist between the two men.

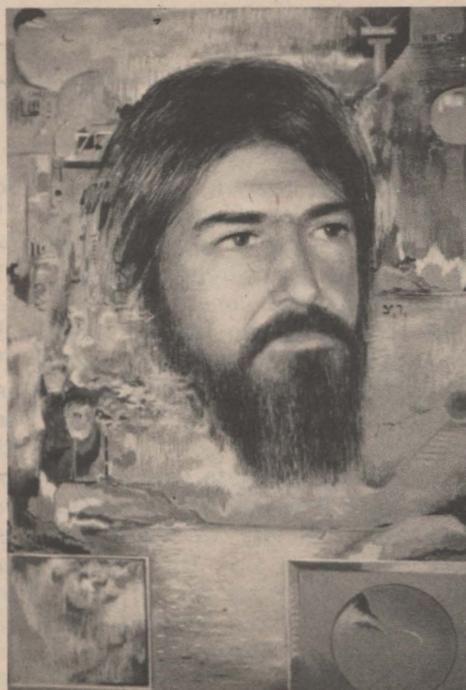

When asked to appear on the A.M. Detroit TV Show, Curt told the station he was no fake and was not sure he could successfully hypnotize himself on TV and work on the large canvas. He said he would try, but if not successful, he would admit it, and not try to fake it.

His latest project, and one he finds the most interesting so far, is a contract to illustrate a book about Calvin Parker and Charles Hickson, the two Pascagoula, Miss., men who claim that they were kidnapped by aliens from outer space back in 1973. The case was one of the most outstanding UFO flaps and made headlines around the world.

Watkins will do drawings while the two UFO contactees are under hypnosis. Although there have been drawings made in the past, they were drawn from their conscious recollection. These are the first to be done from the subconscious. Watkins says that he entered the project with an open mind, and knowing little about UFOs, although he believes the incident was no hoax.

This well known UFO flap has been researched from all avenues for more than three years, and the book should be ready sometime this summer.

In the meanwhile, Curt will continue to produce his portraits and also continue his research into the subconscious. □

This is the third portrait which the artist has done while in an hypnotic state. Watkins has appeared on many television and radio talk shows. His work has been featured in numerous books and periodicals.

ATLANTIS

FACT OR FICTION?

In the sporadic search for the legendary continent of Atlantis through the centuries, many investigations have taken place and many new discoveries have been made.

By Garnette M. Ammerman

Ever since Plato first told seriously and in detail of a missing continent, Atlantis has puzzled not only scientists, but all men. Thousands of books and articles have been written on the subject, and many theories advanced. Some men have argued that Plato's story was just a fable or legend, but others have been equally convinced that he knew, first hand, of a formerly existing continent.

Plato was a philosopher who was famous in the whole civilized world. It would seem strange that he should suddenly drop his role as a philosopher to tell a fable or fairy tale of a non-existent land. The language of fable is missing: there are no tales of giants or gods or marvels. Plato's tale is a history of a people who built temples, sailed ships and constructed canals. A people who farmed, and who traded with countries round about them. Plato went into great detail about life in ancient Atlantis.

According to Plato's account, there were two very large cities. One was the city of Brotherly Love, and this was the capital city. It was famous for its marvelous harbor works. The city was filled with beautiful gardens.

In Timaeus Plato even told the location of this ancient land. "This power had landed on the Atlantic coast, for in those days the Atlantic was navigable from an island situated to the west of the straits which you call the Pillars of Hercules: the island was larger than Libya and Asia (the term Asia in this connection should be read as Middle East) put together, and from it could be reached other islands you might pass through to the opposite continent (later America) which surrounded the true ocean." Certainly to Plato, Atlantis was no legend, but a land well known.

The above map indicates that the interest in Atlantis was also an obsession during the 17th century.

The language of legend, to those who study it, is no more mysterious than a political cartoon. Legends tell a story of things that might have been. As Plato described it, the land of Atlantis was no legend, but more like a telescoped history of those things which happened before written history began.

In the sporadic search for Atlantis through the centuries, many investigations have taken place, and many new discoveries have been made. Among these are the discoveries (in several spots in our world) of people who seem strange to the other men surrounding them. Among these are the Canary Islanders, who indeed showed many traces of resemblance to the Indian tribes of Central America. At one time they mummified their dead, using for this process a plant which is found only in Central America! And this on islands off the coast of Africa!

Another people strangely different from those around them are the Basques of Europe. They have long had a tradition that they came from a land to the west that has long since disappeared. The theory has been advanced that the Basques are direct descendants of the ancient Atlanteans. They certainly seem to bear no racial resemblance to the Latin people.

For quite a few years, oceanographers have been studying the ocean floor and currents in hope of finding clues to the location of the lost Atlantis. They have agreed that land masses of large size must have occupied the region now covered by the North Atlantic before America. Proofs of this fact are the great strata of rocks which become thicker, the nearer we approach their source in the east. Evidence that this great elevation was once dry land is found in the fact that the inequalities of the mountain and valley surfaces could never have been produced under water, but must have been carved by agencies working above water level. Many people believe that the Canary Islands were a part of the ancient land of Atlantis.

Even in somewhat modern times, there have been many examples of the way the earth splits open and changes. On the first of September 1730, the earth split open at Yaira, in the island of Lacerota, in the Canaries. In one night a considerable hill of lava was thrown up—and this commotion lasted for five years. The explosions that broke up the continent of Atlantis were probably similar in nature. This area is the scene of considerable volcanic activity, and could well account for the Atlantean catastrophe 13,000 years ago.

Many of the most evidential findings have been made accidentally. In March of 1882 Captain David Robson was in command of the 1,495-ton British steamship, the Jesmond. About 200 miles south of the Azores, the crew noticed that the sea was darkened with sediment, and dead fish floated everywhere. There was no charted land for more than 2,000 miles (except the Azores) but suddenly they sighted an island! They checked and rechecked their position, and they checked and rechecked their charts. They finally laid anchor in seven fathoms of water where the charts indicated there should have been 300 fathoms of depth; (42 feet of water, where there should have been 2,000 feet!) The island they found had no beaches, which would have been formed by the wearing away of the land by the sea. Great cliffs of pumice and debris rose cheerily from the water. All seemed arid and barren. There were great mountains of pumice in the distance, but deep crevices prevented them from exploring this intriguing new island. With shovels from the ship, they dug into the pumice, hoping for treasure. They found arrowheads, bronze swords, spearheads, hammers, vases, and one intact human skull!

When the weather began to build up to a storm, they reluctantly left their newly discovered island for fear of being dashed to pieces against the barren cliffs. They inked it in on their charts at latitude 31°25' North and longitude 28°40' West. When the Captain and crew reached their destination at New Orleans, they told their story to the newspapers.

The story, told by Captain Robson, and attested by his crew, was accepted for fact by the shipping line which employed him, for they knew his reputation for reliability. But the general public was more skeptical. No one asked what motive Captain Robson and his crew might have for making up such a story, for they certainly gained nothing by it. In fact, people eyed them with suspicion, and made their lives uncomfortable. The fact remains that although they had been careful to chart the island's location, it was never found again. It must have appeared, and disappeared, in the upheaval and turmoil of volcanic action on the ocean floor. Nevertheless, in 1954 a depth of only 11 fathoms (66 feet) was recorded near where the rugged island had been sighted!

Captain Robson told the New Orleans newsmen that he planned to give the relics he had found to a London museum. What actually happened to them, no one knows. We might imagine, however, that the museums might have been very cool to Captain Robson and his discoveries. Perhaps in some obscure English museum, in a small town—or in some dust-covered junk room may lie at this very moment, one of the keys to the lost continent of Atlantis.

Even though it is almost impossible to find traces of this ancient civilization, so long buried under some ocean, man continues to try. Geologists have proven that the region which is now the Atlantic Ocean was once occupied by two vast continents.

In 1872-1876 the United States, Great Britain and Germany had a joint project for sounding the bottom of the Atlantic. Their motive was primarily the securing of cable-laying data, so that transatlantic cable might be laid. Five of the ships found a mountain range running north and south in the Atlantic where Plato had placed the land of Atlantis. They named this mountain range the Dolphin Ridge. The possibility of great land masses rising and submerging into the ocean depth is not only likely, but has been proven many times.

We know for a fact that a great ridge of mountains exist under which might well be submerged portions of a continent. We know that the peaks of the Azores, with their weird cobblestones and lava, are of volcanic origin, and that they are certainly the top of the mountain peaks of that ocean ridge.

We know that there is a Gulf Stream, with its warming flow, of speculative origin. And we know that there was an ice cap which, in its melting, raised the level of the oceans and greatly changed the contour and extent of the land. We know there are people of strange characteristics and queer customs which spread themselves in a narrow belt throughout the world at an age not inconsistent with the chronology of Atlantis.

There are reputable authorities who are convinced that Atlantis is located in some certain part of our world—and each with reason! Edgerton Sykes, chairman of the Atlantis Research Center in London believes that Atlantis lies off the Azores. And there have been finds in this area which lend support to the belief (even without Captain Robson's island). Two grotesque stone statues were brought up from the sea bottom on a fisherman's dredge in that area—and they were very, very ancient.

Some people believe Atlantis may have been located in the western Atlantic, nearer to South America. The Aztec civilization was so very much farther advanced than other civilizations in that same time period—it is as if they had been taught by a mighty, advanced civilization. The surface of our earth was quite different, and there is great likelihood that areas which now appear unrelated may once have been one great land mass.

Since the great migrations from Atlantis (before the final catastrophe) took place before the Gulf of Mexico was altered to its present boundaries, the Toltec civilization appears as one of the highly probable places of Atlantean influence.

The lowland Maya building employed the corbeled vault and a mortar patching technique similar to that which may have been used by the Atlanteans; while the Yucatan and Mexican architecture uses a stone-on-stone technique of vertical thrust which implies that the Mayan culture is related to that of Atlantis.

Here and there throughout the world, historians have found the typical form of Atlantean structure. Their temples, pyramids and stone circles are distinctive. The fact that the stone circles found throughout our world appear to have calendrical significance has been noted by many writers. The mummification of the dead appears also to be an inheritance from Atlantis.

In considering the second theory of the location of Atlantis, we turn to the explorations of James W. Mavor, an engineer with the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute, who worked on the design of the research submarine Alvin, which, among other things, recovered a "lost" hydrogen bomb off the coast of Spain. Mr. Mavor became convinced that the center of the Atlantean culture was actually in the Aegean Sea, on the island now known as Thera.

His book, Voyage to Atlantis, published by G.P. Putnam's Sons, 1969, is the story of an expedition which explored the ancient Minoan civilization, buried far beneath volcanic ash, which he believed is actually the "lost" civilization of Atlantis.

His book contains pictures of pottery, wall frescoes, and remnants of homes and palaces. Mr. Mavor feels that these Aegean islands, on a smaller scale, but true in detail, are the same as those so graphically described by Plato, and that here was the center of the Atlantean culture. He presents his case with much clarity and detail (in the manner of a scientist) and the photographic plates of the many artifacts found in their search, and the charts which he draws of the depths of red pumice and lava ash, on the island, attest the extent of the great catastrophe which came at the time of the collapse of Thera into what is now called the "caldera," as the volcano exploded and dropped a great portion of the island into the broiling sea.

Mr. Mavor writes—"The Linear scripts of Crete, Greece and the Aegean Islands came into use during the second millennium B.C.; they disappeared from use after 1200 B.C. No writing seems to have replaced them until about 850 B.C., when an archaic script began to appear. For about 350 years the Greeks were apparently illiterate." (Page 141, Book I in Voyage to Atlantis) Plato has the Egyptian priest saying: "In our temples we preserved written records, whereas with you and others, writing has only just developed. When the periodic scourge of the deluge descends, and spares none but the uncultured and unlettered, you have to begin again like children. You remember only one deluge, although there have been many—and you do not know that the finest and best race of men that ever existed lived in your country..."

Dr. Bruce C. Heezen, an American oceanographer who made a study of the problem, believed that the Santorini volcano explosion was similar in type to that which totally destroyed the island of Krakatoa in more modern times (1883) but of far greater magnitude. More recently the island of Martinique (1902) suffered a volcanic blast that totally destroyed the city of St. Pierre and 40,000 inhabitants—covering all with volcanic ash and gases, and fusing everything with its searing flames.

Mr. Mavor feels that the destruction in the Aegean was so vast and terrible that it may well have been the basis for the story of the destruction of the civilization of Atlantis.

When in 1883 the volcano on the island of Krakatoa exploded, it left, instead of an island 18 miles in circumference which rose probably from 300 to 1400 feet above sea level, a submarine cavity, with its bottom 1,000 feet below sea level. The explosions were felt at Rodrigues, 3,000 miles away; at Bangkok, 1,413 miles away, in the Philippines, 1,450 miles away, and even in Australia, 1,300 to 2,250 miles away. The long seismic waves called tsunami, which were generated by the eruption, reached Cape Horn, over 7,000 miles away, and the English Channel, 11,000 miles away.

And Mr. Mavor points out that the collapse of Thera was a natural catastrophe at least five times greater than that of Krakatoa! It was the Minoan people of the Aegean Islands which Mr. Mavor feels were the true Atlanteans. And he is sure that if explorations are continued, we will find the harbors and palaces that Plato described.

Of his own findings, he tells, "We drove to the village of Akroteri and walked down into the ravine. We could see, layer by layer, all the phases of the 1500 B.C. eruption. The top 35 feet was a stratum of white volcanic ash. Within it were scattered layers, 1 or 2 yards thick, of small lava stones. At the bottom lay a thin, 1 to 2 inch earthy sandy weathered surface with no signs of civilization. This represented an interruption of volcanic activity that may have lasted for twenty years. Beneath that is a 10 to 15 foot layer of pumice stones, pink and angular, 1 to 2 inches in size. At the bottom of the pumice lay the Minoan earth, a yard thick of brown, red, or black soil, rich in decomposed vegetation. Near the shore at the foot of these ravines, we found walls of uncut black lava stones projecting from the pumice cliff—" (page 152-Voyage to Atlantis).

Using the scientific equipment,

Oceanographers now agree that land masses of large size occupied the area now covered by the North Atlantic before America.

they found underwater remains of ancient Minoan cities. In 20 feet of water, they discovered a tapered column of red lava which was definitely prehistoric, and which they felt could be a sacred pillar. His book is so filled with discoveries, scientifically tested and confirmed that it is startling and one is left with a feeling of authenticity.

Last, it is believed that the lost civilization of Atlantis was centered in the Atlantic Ocean. It was the prediction of the great seer Edgar Cayce that there would be discoveries off the coast of the island of Bimini in the Bahamas which would herald the first real evidence of ancient Atlantis—and that they would be discovered in 1968 or 1969.

In an attempt to verify the predictions of Cayce, two young men set out in a small boat from New Jersey, down the inland waterways, and to the Island of Bimini. Robert Ferro and Michael Grumley tell the story of their adventure—and their dramatic discoveries, in a book published by Doubleday and Co. in 1970, Atlantis: the Autobiography of a Search. I found that, although my main interest was in their discoveries, I was fascinated by the adventure of sailing so far in the worst weather (they left New Jersey in November) and the book held my interest all the way.

In the waters off Bimini, they found parts of pillars, still showing that they were fluted, after 15,000 years (note the difference in age—Mr. Mavor's 1500 B.C.—these dated 15,000 B.C.) In their book are pictures of these pillars—and of huge obviously cut stones—worn away and encrusted as they now are—which might have been paving for a great road, or parts of walls.

If you, like I, had wondered why we had read in newspapers that "something" had been sighted in the waters off Bimini, and then seen no more news about it, here is the answer, in a fine, authentic, readable book by Robert Ferro and Michael Grumley. And pictures to intrigue you—

Why do we have different theories about the location of the center of civilization in Atlantis? I have asked myself this question—and why there seem to be artifacts to support the fact that there was a highly advanced civilization in many parts of our world about which we have no written history.

I wonder if the civilization known as Atlantis was not far more widespread than we have ventured to think. Perhaps there were several great centers for

Occult Investigator Claims Amazing AVATAR POWER CHANTS GUARANTEED TO BRING RESULTS!

- Make Others Obey! • Dispel Evil! • Bring Amazing Prosperity! • Bring Sudden Winnings! • Repel Enemies! • Excite love after love!

"AVATAR POWER CHANTS WORK!" Says Geof Gray-Cobb

CHANT TO PAY DEBTS—Bill C., of Toronto, Canada, was so far in debt, he didn't know which way to turn. "The debt collectors knock on my door and call me up at work every day," he said. "It's making me a nervous wreck." Bill C. immediately used the CHANT TO PAY DEBTS. The next day, he was given a check for $650 by his employers—as a tax refund. A small racing bet paid off $950. An old insurance policy paid him a cash bonus. He got a pay raise, paid off every debt—and took a vacation. (See pp. 53-4.)

CHANT TO WIN LEGAL ACTION—John L. accidentally hit a store window when he lost control of his car. The owner promptly asked for $15,000 in damages. But John had no insurance. Instead, he used a CHANT TO WIN A LEGAL ACTION. That very day, the store owner withdrew his complaint! And John got his car fixed free of charge!

CHANT FOR SAFETY SAVES LIFE!—Hugh V., a contractor from Louisiana, is alive today because he used a special AVATAR POWER CHANT. He was driving home late one afternoon, when another car came roving around the bend—on the wrong side of the road. In a flash, Hugh uttered this CHANT, and the other car just narrowly missed him! (See pp. 188-91.)

CHANT TO EXCITE LOVE—Marius W., of Los Angeles, complained, "I'm totally lonely." He wanted to know if a CHANT TO EXCITE LOVE would help him, because the woman of his dreams was completely indifferent to him. One week after using it, Marius reported, "Her love for me is almost frightening . . . I can never say I'm lonely any more." The couple are married now. (See pp. 57-8.)

CHANT TO REKINDLE MATE'S INTEREST—Queenie S. saw her husband enter a restaurant with another woman. She immediately used a CHANT TO REKINDLE A MATE'S INTEREST. "An hour later, my husband came home looking very subdued," she said. "His eyes lit up when he saw me, and he crossed the room, holding out his arms to me. He went down on his knees . . . I've been a fool," he said . . . He saw me as his perfect woman again and he's never left my side since." (See pp. 191-3.)

CHANT TO BRING HEALTH—Ken N., 56, suffered such severe back pains he couldn't lift anything heavier than a few ounces—or lean down. Sleeping was out of the question—he'd wake up every 10 minutes. His doctor recommended a $3,000 operation. "My back started to get better after the first session with the Chant (Bring Health)," he wrote. He is now completely free of pain. "I can play golf, tennis . . . anything," he says. "I'm a new man." (See pp. 61-3.)

CHANT TO WIN AT RACES—Ivor D., from Quebec City, Canada, loved the races, but usually suffered heavy losses at the track. After using a CHANT TO WIN AT THE RACES, he reported: "You're talking to a rich man. I've just bought a new car, a color TV, a new snowmobile . . . and I've paid off every bill which has been worrying me." He picked six winning horses—in one day at the track. He continues to use this CHANT, consistently picking winners, and the cash just rolls in, in a golden flood. (See pp. 77-8.)

CHANT TO CURE ALCOHOLIC—Penny V.'s husband was an alcoholic. Every pay day he'd spend the family's money on liquor. Penny was in despair, but she tried a CHANT TO CURE HER ALCOHOLIC HUSBAND. "Would you believe that Ralph stopped drinking just two days after I'd asked for help?" she reported. "He came home sober, and he hasn't touch a drop since. He says he no longer has that terrible craving for alcohol." (See pp. 74-7.)

CHANT FOR PROTECTION FROM EVIL—Liz R., a filing clerk from Washington, had been cursed by an evil woman with Black Magic. She sought my help because her landlord had evicted her to get his rent . . . she had come down with influenza and lost her job . . . and her boyfriend had quarreled with her and disappeared. Liz used a CHANT FOR PROTECTION FROM EVIL. The very next day she was offered a better job, paying twice what she'd received before. Her landlord called and begged her to take the apartment back at a lower rent. Her boyfriend returned and apologized. And she is now happier than ever.

CHANT FOR A PAY RAISE—Hilda F. was good at her job, but had never been given a raise. After two years, she felt she was worth more than $75 a week as a machine operator. But each time she asked her boss, he turned her down. Then she used a CHANT FOR A RAISE. Next thing she knew, her boss was telling her "I'm going to raise your salary to $295 and put you in charge of the assembly line." Hilda almost laughed when she heard him muttering to himself, "Now what made me say that?" Hilda received her raise and promotion. (See p. 108.)

Read his own words:

"A woman I know recently wrote to me that, after using an AVATAR POWER CHANT FOR WINNING CONTESTS, she won $15,000 in a State Lottery. Next, she tried my CHANT TO EXCITE LOVE—and within a week met a rich, handsome man and married him. She said her husband had a little trouble with a dishonest competitor—she did an Attacking Chant and this competitor went bankrupt 3 days later!"

AVATAR POWER CHANTS work . . . it's as simple as that. Merely by repeating a few words, they can bring you money, or anything else, often instantaneously!

The proof is my own experience, and the hundreds who told me theirs in my job as a reporter, for such magazines as Fate, Midnight, and the National Examiner. I've shown others how to use them—now let me show them to YOU!

By using the same AVATAR POWER CHANTS, you too could attract a fortune . . . have money whenever you need it . . . a better life . . . luxuries . . . possessions . . . the love of a mate . . . and much more. It's all in my book, THE MIRACLE OF NEW AVATAR POWER, yours to try without risking a penny for 30 days. Let me tell you more about it . . .

Amazing New Avatar Power Chants To Bring You Money, Health, Love, Power, Possessions and Happiness!

The woman shook with fear as she gazed on the bizzare phantom who had the shape of a man dressed in a flowing black robe.

THE ENIGMA OF THE WEINSBERG PHANTOM!

By Charles Korbas

In September of 1835 Elizabeth Eslinger incarcerated in a jail in the German city of Weinsberg, complained that she was being visited in her cell by an apparition. The bizzare phantom had the shape of a man dressed in a robe. It had a projecting chin and forehead, deep-set eyes, a long beard, and a face that resembled the skin of dried out parchment. The apparition visited her several times every night, making crackling noises, blowing cold gusts of air, and pulling her body around. She couldn't touch the apparition, but it could touch her with a touch that was icy cold and drip burning tears on her. It talked to her, saying that he was a Catholic priest of the fifteenth century and begging her to pray for him. People in nearby cells could also hear him speak.

A physician named Kerner was called in by the prison authorities to investigate. On October 15, he joined Eslinger in her cell. About half an hour before midnight, he heard something he could not see make a sound like it was hitting the wall. Eslinger gasped out that the phantom had come. The doctor laid his hand on her head and told the apparition to leave. There followed a rattling, crackling sound, and all was silent, and nothing else happened.

Three nights later, Korner returned to the cell, this time bringing along his wife and the wife of the prison warden. All saw and heard the same things the doctor experienced on the 15th.

On the 20th, Kerner and a judge named Heyd spent a night in Eslinger's cell. Eslinger said she could see the phantom that night; the doctor and the judge saw nothing, but felt a cool wind, even though there was no opening for air to blow in. Kerner heard the same sounds as before.

The warden's wife returned to the cell a few nights later, bringing her niece with her.

About midnight, she saw a yellow light enter the cell, followed by a trail of sparks. She smelled something rotten and felt her face itch. Before long, all three women heard a voice sounding like nothing human, moan, wail, and beg for prayers.

On the 9th of December she, her niece and a female servant joined Eslinger. They saw a blurry image of a lamb run across the room and a stool rise and fall to the ground. Then came some shuffling and cracking sounds followed by that unearthly voice screaming, "In the name of Jesus, look on me!"

A light appeared in the cell and gradually took the form of a shadowy figure of a man; Eslinger got on her knees and prayed. The warden's wife told the phantom to leave the cell and go to her husband. The apparition floated out of the cell, returned in fifteen minutes, laughed at the women in the cell, and then vanished sixty minutes later. In the morning, the warden told his wife that someone must have broken into his home the previous night, since the door to his bedroom, which he had locked securely before going to sleep, was open when he awoke.

The wardens wife spent one more night in Eslinger's cell, that of December 24, but that time she saw only a whitish shadow floating around the room.

Frederica Follen, who was imprisoned for eight weeks in the same cell as Eslinger, saw the same apparition as her cellmate, and reported that it grabbed anyone it heard swear by the throat and made the victim kneel and pray. Catherine Sinn, another prisoner, claimed that she was bothered by crackling sounds from the moment she entered her cell and had asked to be put into another room. She was thrown into the cell where Follen and Eslinger were kept and continued to hear the same frightening

OCCULT SECRETS OF THE PHARAOHS

By Cristopher Hill

The following article is an excerpt from the book "Rays From The Capstone", by Cristopher Hills, DSc., Director of University of the Trees in Boulder Creek, California and leading researcher of "Supersensonics", the Spiritual Physics of All Vibrations from Zero to Infinity.

Pyramids are very common in Egypt. Several hundred of them rise up as funeral homes for many of the Kings and nobility of the ruling classes. To understand why anyone would spend so much energy, money and time building such great architectural monuments, we must first understand the Egyptian religion.

Just as Christians use a cross to symbolize Christ, the Egyptians built pyramids in honor of Osiris, who was their equivalent deity. Just as we have the myth of Christ as the savior of our souls, the Egyptians and their priesthood also believed that the soul could be saved under certain conditions.

Christ himself, didn't teach religion as personality cult, but all his words referred us to the one. It was only later when the metaphysics of Paul created a different belief around Christ, as the personal intervenor of Christianity as we know it today was born. This changing of Christ's teachings caused much dissent against Paul, and among the disciples of Christ. Fifty years later the disciples acknowledged Paul as a True Christian for his work in establishing churches throughout the country. In a similar manner, Egyptians had their own myths and personalities.

In 1960 a leader in the Gurdjieff movement in England told me that by harnessing the Pi-ray we could capture the same "ray of creation" that Ouspensky had said began its octave in the sun. This was the reason the ancient Egyptians worshipped the sun's light rays as the essence of "life."

The common myth taught at the time was that the first king was a

God called Osiris. His wife was Isis, which corresponded to the Hindu Aryan belief in Shiva and Shakti. This God supplied all knowledge and skills concerning laws, cultivation, mathematics, astronomy, etc. Seth, the brother of King Osiris had desires to usurp this power and sit on the throne instead. He killed Osiris and separated his body into parts while Isis fled. Later Isis through divine knowledge or magic recovered the parts of Osiris's body and put it back together. In doing this magic a son was born, called Horus who had an all-seeing eye. But since all his life forces were gone from his body Osiris was no longer the King of the Living. He now became King of Heaven where the dead spirits lived in another realm of consciousness. Horus, the son, avenged his father and became victorious over the usurper and sat on the throne in his father's name. From then on the links of this Egyptian myth with royal power became complicated. Essentially, the story up to this point, can be seen to be similar to the teachings of Christ, concerning the usurper Satan, who sits-as-the Ego, the selfish sense of the throne of God the father and thereby separates man from the wholeness of the "One" universal spirit.

However, to maintain power, the pharaohs, like our long succession of Popes, made the religion suit the politics of the day.

Every Egyptian King therefore became an Horus on ascending to the throne, reliving their victories over the separative ones. Every Pharaoh that died re-enacted the death passion play of Osiris, putting all the parts together and thus became Osiris. In order to keep the soul of Osiris powerful in the next realm in which it would be resurrected, the "Ka" or spirit body would need the channeling of life force as a support system from this world. This meant that the physical body and its parts had to be preserved as a "witness" of the spirit which had inhabited it, and it also had to be fed by the energies generated by the pyramid form.

In order to make the dead body last as long as possible, it was pickled and the heart and entrails were taken out and preserved in air tight jars. The body was sealed in waterproof bandages and pitch in order to keep its moisture. Up to the 4th dynasty when the Cheops pyramid was built around 2590 B.C., the ancient Egyptians had already many thousand years of experience with the cosmic energies of the pyramid form and they already worshipped the life force known as Prana in Sanskrit. They revered the primal life forces as the source of the self-created energy of light or the first cause. From the time of the 5th Dynasty the pharaoh was also called "Son of Re" or son of the sun's rays, which illustrated different manifestations of the same life force concept between the King and God.

The ability to store more life-force in our body and mind makes the difference between being loved as an high energy person or being depressed by lack and shortage of vigor and vitality.

For what obscure reason did those intelligent and skilled people spend so many thousand of years researching subtle energies? Because they had discovered this energy through divination in the name of Osiris and Thoth and used it for healing, navigation and growing crops. They ultimately decided to use its amazing growth for the continuous feeding of the dead spirit of the king. After thousands of years all their culture was then centered around the idea of rebirth in the next realm of consciousness.

To get a powerful rebirth, applying this cosmic energy for selfish purposes became the dominant purposes which eventually destroyed the original understanding of the priesthood. A temporary monotheistic campaign was mounted a thousand years later by a man named Akhnaton against these magical concepts. He believed that the priests of Amon had perverted the original Imhotep's worship of the sun's rays which was seen as the source of life and consciousness. But he was too gentle with these power brokers and his own power was undermined by the separative factions involved in the mystery schools and by the temple priests. A great polarization took place during the undermining of the kings power. During the process some of those who loved the king were prompted by priests to rebel against his authority as Horus. The king had to put many to death to preserve the integrity of the state. Because Akhnaton was not ruthless enough with the seperative power cliques who administered his power, the unity and religious life the kingdom was vastly diluted.

The Pharaoh was the symbol for a hot line to Cosmic Forces and the Key of Life in his hand represented our communication with unseen worlds of Being.

Gradually, through ceremony and loss of original meanings, the power of the pharaohs declined and the oral tradition perished, leaving only the shell of the original religion for the later dynasties in the Middle and New Kingdoms.

The rise of the priesthood during the Middle Kingdom (2200 B.C.—1786 B.C.) weakened the king's power even more and the real meaning of the pyramids and the divining instruments was lost. Like our own "Order of the Garter" and other symbolic pageantry, the original purpose was soon forgotten. Thus, the energy of the Pi-ray which was isolated from the sun's rays and cosmic forces, symbolized by the Ankh or "Key of Life," was no longer of great importance and politics took its place.

During the early period when Imhotep was the sage in charge of the oral teachings and design of divining instruments, it was customary to train students to become pure by testing them in the amplified rays of life force that were concentrated by the pyramid form. If they were spiritually clear there was no harm, but, if they were phony and their hearts were not in tune with their minds, the life ray would help to amplify the conflict within three days and eliminate them from the position of priestly power. It was then said that they had been "weighed in the balance and found wanting."

This balance was a divining instrument similar to the balances described in Supersensomics, (another book by Christopher Hills which is an encyclopedia of unusual energies, their detection and use).

THE EGYPTIAN ANKH

The Key of Life in the shape of a "T" surmounted by an oval was called Crux Ansata by the people of ancient times. It was regarded as the key to the myth of the golden key of heaven given to St. Peter. The initiates of Egypt's mystery schools passed through many imaginary and actual dangers in order to purify their imaginations. By holding the Crux Ansata as a divining tool, the powers of darkness in the unconscious mind fell back and revealed the nature of Pure Consciousness at the heart of every human soul.

The Maya civilization had similar representations of the key of life on the breasts of its statues and sculptures at Capan and Palepque. The symbol is always associated in these sculptures with water and it was also the emblem of the water gods in Babylonia. The water divining faculty was amplified to measure the wavefields of consciousness and thoughts.

The Crux Ansata was used by the ancient Egyptians to measure the land surface inundated every year by the Nile River. The symbol was carried in the right hand by the gods and Pharaohs, signifying contact with the life-giving power through this instrument of knowing. The same power revealed the secret of the pyramid and enabled me to build the box which accumulates the life force in the Pi-ray.

ACCUMULATING LIFE FORCE

Harnessing the life-force for proper utilization by our body, nerves and brains is what all life is doing by eating, drinking or holidaying in the sunshine. The ability to store more life-force or oomph in our body and mind makes the difference between being loved as a high energy person or being depressed by lack and shortage of vitality.

The invention of new tools which harness nature's more subtle energies is a new and expanding science which can prove for yourself. You don't need an expert to explain to you what to do because your own magic genie is waiting to serve you at every moment. Your own consciousness is your jewel and Genie which you can now tune in to higher being.

The Pi-Ray Orgone Accumulator Coffin is only one of many fascinating instruments and tools designed by me to be used in collaboration with your own consciousness. The whole background of their usage is given in my book Supersensomics which gives the complete story of the new science of Radiational Paraphysics.

PSYCLES

A New Form of ESP

One evening while visiting somebody in the secluded resort of Inverness, California, I witnessed an example of a new and exciting form of ESP. As an unexpected bonus from studies of the biological "clock," it has to do with a strange and mysterious timing of our troubles.

It was about 10 o'clock Tuesday evening, when my hostess suddenly asked her nephew, who had flown in from Long Beach the day before, if he would mind getting a carton of old photos from the attic.

After placing a six-foot ladder in position, the nephew climbed up, and with one foot braced against the far wall, lifted the trap door with both hands and was giving it a half-turn in order to lower it through the hole to us below. Suddenly, he lost his balance, and nephew, trap door and ladder all came spinning and crashing to the floor in a mishap that left him shaken but unhurt.

"Well!" I began, after we were all comfortably settled back in the living room. "Can you imagine the possibility that you did that on purpose?"

"I fell on purpose...? But that was an accident!" He frowned in disbelief.

All right. Let's see if we can find the reason. Here it is Tuesday evening, going back about 37 hours. "What were you doing in Long Beach yesterday morning about 9:a.m.?"

"Yesterday morning?" he began reflectively. "I had the usual appointment with my therapist, but this time he began probing an entirely new area of my subconscious, which frightened me. I clammed up, retreated, and told him that I didn't want to get into that whole subject."

"Hah! There it is—the reason why you fell. From that incident to this fall is a one-to-one, cause and effect relationship, like stimulus-response, showing its purpose."

"You're putting me on!"

"No, no. I'm serious! What I'm suggesting is that your slipping and falling was engineered with precision, and that you needed to do it for reasons of your own. And that the reason can be clearly seen in the incident Monday morning, 37 hours before.

"Look what happened," I continued. "Note how your therapist was threatening to enter the dark attic of your subconscious mind (symbolically), and how you were afraid of this new unknown, and how you wished to avoid it. It's like the fall dramatized the danger, and rationalized the avoidance, making it correct to stay out of there."

Now, this is only one of some 2,000 case histories that we call "Psychles." Gathered patiently over the past 24 years of investigations, they show that there is a predictable set of time-lags between certain kinds of upsetting stimuli, and the mishaps that we create as a corrective response.

These time-lapse troubles are actually quite common. Happening all around us, they have been missed all these years because we have been looking at the wrong times and the wrong places for the causes. The true cause for this fall in Inverness, for instance, was something that happened 37 hours before in Long Beach.

With knowledge of this timing, it looks like we have a precision tool for pinpointing the hidden reasons for a great many mysterious injuries, misbehaviors and sudden ills. From all this data, it turns out that we're not the innocent victims we pretend to be, but on the other hand, amazingly responsible for causing our troubles. We do exactly what we want.

But before we show how this discovery also proves ESP, we should first take a quick look at the basis for this peculiar timing.

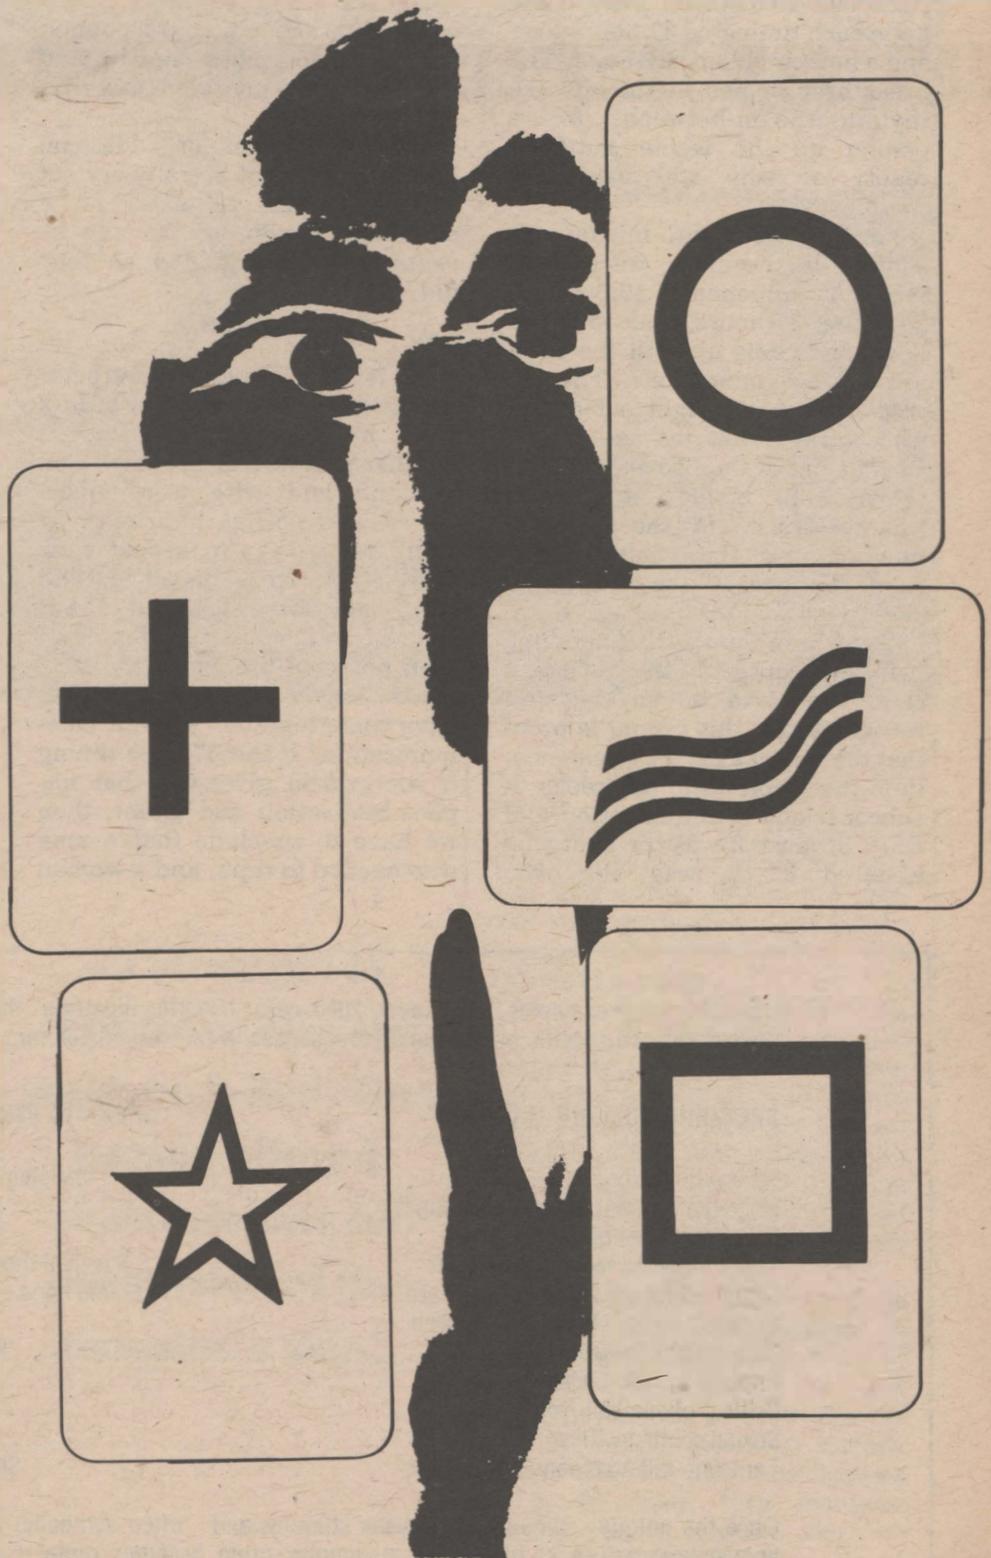

THE CIRCADIAN RHYTHM AND ITS HALF-WAVE

For all living creatures on Earth, and within each of their individual cells, there are chemical and physical processes that rise and fall with a rhythm that averages about 24.8 hours (the lunar day) and is called the "circadian rhythm," from the Latin words for "about one day."

The ebb and flow of blood sugar levels, liver cell enzymes, body temperature, seed germination, wake-sleep activities and respiration, to name just a few, are all circadian. If plants are placed in a constant environment (black box), their leaves and petals will rise and fall, or open and close, in circadian rhythm, without any known external cue. And if we lived in caves, without clocks, our living rhythms would creep away from the regular 24-hour solar cycle, and become circadian.

Its origin is a mystery. Among biologists there are deep differences of opinion as to whether it is an internal clock, based on chemistry, or whether it's generated by cosmic fields. But until recently, researchers noticed only the repeating events at these cycles, ignoring what happened in between, at the half-cycles. They studied the peaks of the wave, but missed the troughs.

Now, with the troughs—or the circadian half-waves—we come upon such timing as 37 hours (one and a half circadian rhythms). The breakthrough lies in the inverse rhythm, the in-betweens, for opening up the whole gut-level reality of why we make our troubles.

For any accident, mishap, or sudden ill, therefore, we scan to see what happened at 12.5 hours, 25 hours, 37 hours, and up to 3.2 days, and come up with the most astounding connections. The secret reasons pop right out of the woodwork! What we see is the “balancing of the books” subconsciously. In biology, it’s called “homeostasis,” for the universal function of maintaining equilibrium. It’s how we keep an even keel, deep inside.

But where does ESP come in?

If we accept what the biological clock seems to be saying, and recognize that this timing is proof that the fall was not a coincidence, then the whole attic fall reeks of subconscious communication and ESP. Because it was the aunt who initiated it! It was she who suddenly set it up. She had no knowledge of the therapy session the day before, nor the nephew’s need to do something about it, but when 10:00 arrived, she responded to his unconscious need, and spontaneously provided the avenue for action.

We have scores of additional Psycles cases that literally cry out that ESP had to exist as a necessary condition, for the events to have unfolded as they did.

A RAPE

A female dancing instructor was attacked and raped in a dark alley, by a stranger, in an unfamiliar part of Cincinnati. When husband and wife were questioned as to what happened 37 hours prior, they looked at each other, their faces blanched, and they said they “saw it,” but refused to divulge the details of their personal life.

How could these two bodies have come together without communication? If the 37-hour timing is the critical giveaway that implies motivation and intent, then we have to conclude that a man who needed to rape, and a woman who needed to be raped, came together by mutual consent (however subconscious) in a confluent event that was preceded by the appropriate communication (ESP).

THE NEAR ROBBERY

When Susie returned to her apartment in Costa Mesa, California, on Monday noon, she surprised a burglar who had collected her most valuable possessions on the bed, ready to be stolen, but had fled out the window, leaving them behind.

This may seem innocent enough, until we backtrack 37 hours. There, on Saturday evening, about 11:00 p.m., this young girl had had a tempestuous date in which she almost lost her virginity. The drama of the near-burglary is suddenly full of meaning. We see a symbolic re-enactment, with the would-be burglar substituting for the would-be lover, and the clock radio, stereo, jewelry, portable TV and tape deck—her most valuable possessions substituting for her virginity.

Here again, because of that unique circadian timing, we are led to conclude that some type of

The following examples, from over 2000 case histories illustrate the specific painful incidents underlying the specific psychosomatic responses in the second column.

SPECIFIC TRIGGER INCIDENT

SPECIFIC PSYCHOSOMATIC RESPONSE

Severe Rejection	Violent coughing, nausea, vomiting
Heated argument, suppressed anger	Eruption of Hives
Crisis reminder of birth trauma	Asthmatic attack
Acute threat to security structure	Survival threat syndrome: Hypoglycemia
Criticized for spanking baby too hard	Same hand enveloped in flaming gasoline
Wife left home, stuck with children	Sharp migraine headache
Catastrophic failure in life goals	Belly-up syndrome: Hepatitis
Impulse to kick husband out of bed	Sharp pain in that foot
Critical phone call from mother	Earache in that phone ear
Sexual conflict with wife	Sudden severe depression
Tantrum, felt abandoned by mother	Sudden high fever in small boy

Once the unique time-lapse between stimulus and often symbolic, response is understood, the homeostatic nature of the symptom-complex often becomes quite clear, and in some cases the exposure of the etiological base results in termination of the symptoms.

communication (ESP) brought together two strangers in an appropriate confluent interaction.

THE HIGHWAY SNIPER

In an incident north of Los Angeles, a sniper killed and wounded ten in a spree of shooting at motorists speeding along Highway 101. A high school junior, Michael Clark, took a high-powered rifle, selected a good vantage point, and early on a Sunday morning, April 25, 1965, proceeded to pick off his victims at random. But just how random were these "victims?"

Joel W. Kocab, a 28-year-old aircraft engineer and bachelor, is our giveaway clue because on Friday evening he announced his engagement to be married. Was he trapped—with deep sexual conflicts? Because about 36-37 hours later, early Sunday morning, he was dead, shot by a total stranger, far from home. Could it be that he chose Michael Clark to be the instrument of his suicide?

THE ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

One of our researchers, on a late Friday evening, between 10:00 and midnight, experienced an intense depression and cried on her bed for almost two hours. Searching events of the past three days turned up no good reason. About noon on the following Sunday, 36-37 hours later, she was again overwhelmed by the same extreme emotional disturbance, and again cried on her bed, without being able to account for her troubled feelings.

Late that afternoon, the phone rang. The call was from about 50 miles away. "Your daughter tried to commit suicide this noon. She is out of danger now."

Such examples of being "tuned in" to a loved-one are quite common. But here we have an awareness of both the upsetting trigger incident, and the suicide attempt—36 hours apart. Both upsets were explained.

And so with the rest of the cases in Section B of Table I: the colliding with cars, police brutal-

In this second category, the "effects" could not have been brought about, i.e., engineered with precision, as intended, unless un-ordinary awareness or non-verbal communication (ESP) was in operation. The "victim" of crime or "accident" had to have more information than normally available, and the cooperation of others involved.

Kennedy Space Center, — Technicians in protective suits, load hydrazine aboard the European Space Agency's (ESA) GEOS spacecraft in a Cape Canaveral spin-test facility. Hydrazine is used in the satellite's altitude control system. The ESA spacecraft is scheduled for launch aboard NASA's Delta Rocket during late 1977. It will be placed in a geostationary orbit 22,300 miles above the equator to study magnetic and electrical fields.

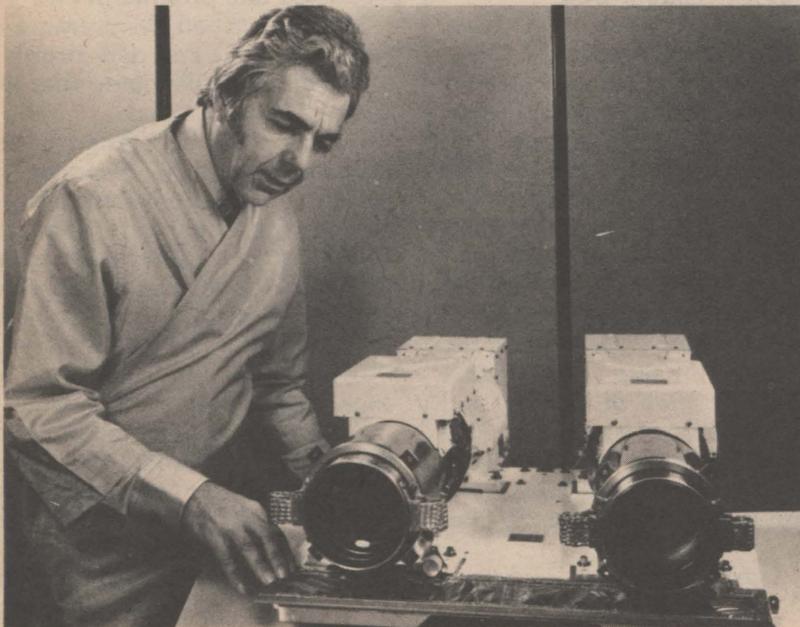

This is a photo of a gigantic iceberg the size of Rhode Island and one of the largest ever recorded. Photo was taken by NASA's Landsat satellite which orbits the earth at about 370 miles altitude. The big iceberg seems to be temporarily grounded near the tip of the Palmer Peninsula. Navy Fleet Weather Facility forecasters have been tracking it since 1967 via satellite. The berg is 45 miles long.

Space Shuttle Space Suit— The new space suit, or extra-vehicular mobility unit, is designed to allow space travelers to perform more tasks with much less physical exertion than equipment worn by the Apollo astronauts. The new two-piece suit has an upper torso made of rigid aluminum, with the life support backpack permanently attached. The suits will be available in small, medium and large sizes. Each size will be individually adjustable to fit the wearer. The suit is a significant improvement over the expensive customized suit worn by Apollo astronauts.

Global Mapper— RCA Program Manager Bert Soltoff, checks out a pair of new high resolution TV cameras that will be flown on NASA's Landsat-C earth resources spacecraft. The cameras, designed and built for NASA Goddard Space Flight Center by RCA Astro-Electronics, will take pictures of the earth in 50 by 50 square mile frames. High-quality maps can then be produced of remote regions of the earth never before mapped in such accurate detail.

THE GLOUCESTER SEA MONSTER!

On a very calm day in early August of 1817 a Coast Guard vessel put into Gloucester, Massachusetts, her captain and crew reporting that they've seen in the waters near the harbor entrance a serpent-like creature that was at least as long as their 60-foot ship. The townspeople, a somewhat provincial lot not given to embrace every stranger who called at their docks, met the crew's account with scornful disbelief. As soon as the wind permitted, the captain and crew set sail once again, their story having fallen upon deaf ears.

Several days later Mrs. Amos Story was standing in the backyard of her home on Eastern Point, the spit of land which closes Gloucester Harbor off from the sea. Casting her gaze westward across the bay and back toward the town, Mrs. Story thought she discerned something moving on the shore of Ten Pound Island, a rocky outcropping which rests in the middle of the bay. She fetched a spyglass to more closely examine the object; through the glass it appeared to be a large, dark log. As Mrs. Story watched, the strange object moved suddenly from the shore into the water and quickly disappeared.

Less than a week later Mrs. Story's husband, Amos, the keeper of the Ten Pound Island Lighthouse, made a similar sighting from the Story property on Eastern Point. Story said he saw "to the southward and eastward of Ten Pound Island...between the hours of twelve and one o'clock, a strange marine animal that I believe to be a sea serpent."

Story described the head of the creature as being very much larger than that of a dog and shaped like that of a sea turtle. He watched the creature for more than an hour and at times the strange animal was no more than 350 feet away.

At least 11 other sightings occurred in and around the harbor of Gloucester in the week following. By mid-August, the local magistrate had taken the testimony of many more who claimed to have seen the monster, among them not a few of the town's more respected and prominent citizens.

Most described the creature as being very long and dark brown in color, with peculiar caterpillar-like humps" along its back.

On the morning of August 14th, William Bonaparte Pearson set out in a double-masted boat to pursue the monster. Near the mouth of a narrow inlet called Webber's Cove, Pearson spotted it; he described it as being "nothing short of seventy feet," with distinct "bunches" on its back, and having a "flat head."

Other townspeople soon joined the hunt. A reward of 350 dollars was posted for the creature's capture, dead or alive. Then the reward increased to 5,000 dollars. By month's end, one wealthy gentleman was offering 50,000 dollars for possession of the monster's skin!

Of course, by the end of the month word had spread far from the formerly placid shores of Gloucester Harbor. The town now lay besieged by curiosity seekers, its beaches choked by the carriages of those who had driven many miles from their homes in hopes of catching a glimpse of the beast.

All attempts to capture or slay the creature failed. Nets, shark hooks baited with raw meat, guns, and harpoons, all were to no avail; The creature, who was said to be "faster than any whale," eluded them all. Indeed, the creature seemed to be "playing" with his pursuers, would let them come as close as 50 yards or so, then quickly and cunningly slip away. The creature never attacked or exhibited any ferocious tendencies, but seemed to live a rather docile existence, feeding on herring and other small fish in the harbor.

With the onset of September, sightings began to occur less and less frequently. When the first cold wind arrived, presaging the coming fall, the creature disappeared entirely.

During subsequent summers it was again spotted, but never so frequently as it had been during the sultry August of 1817. Sightings continued through the remainder of the 19th century, the creature always seeming to arrive in late summer. And it continued to elude all attempts at its capture.

To this day, the Gloucester sea monster remains an enigma. In this century there have been at least five sightings, the last occurring in July of 1960. For the last 17 years, however, nobody seems to know what has become of it. However, fifty thousand dollars awaits anyone who can deliver the monster's skin. □

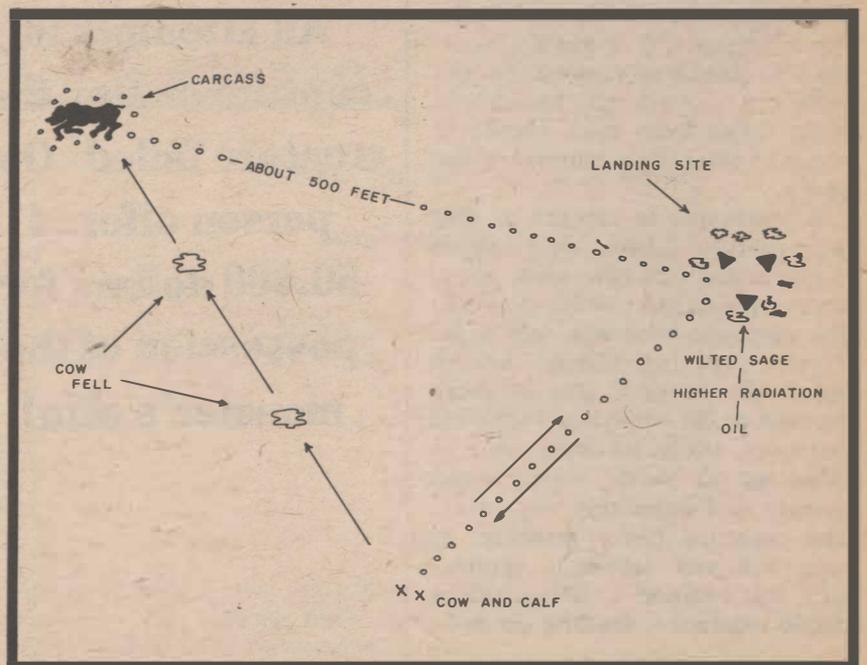

CATTLE MUTILATION:

By Howard and Lovola Burgess

Witchcraft Rituals or Space Invasion?

The cattle seemed to have been butchered in a ritual manner. This photo was taken several days after the discovery. The evidence shows that it is not the work of scavenger animals.

After examining the site, evidence was found which pointed to some sort of strange machine which had landed not far from the mutilated animals. 4 inch pod prints were found in soil.

What kind of cattle rustler flies around in a tripod-type landing craft and rides a pogo stick that covers exactly 28 inches to the bounce? It may sound like a small child's riddle, but it is serious business—for each time one of these dry-gulchers drops in from the sky, it's the last roundup for some unfortunate animal.

A bizarre form of cattle rustling has been happening all through the western countryside and rural areas of the Midwest. In fact, stories are so bizarre that there are implications the acts are being committed by visitors from space.

If all the cases were reported, the total number would probably be more than 2,000 animals destroyed or missing. The property loss for this type of operation may have passed the million dollar mark. It is time that officials and law officers admit that we have a full-scale operation in progress, which often appears to be associated with space vehicles.

One such incident happened at Dulce, New Mexico; it left the investigating team puzzled completely and not a little apprehensive. The investigation of this weird event has given us more good measurements, more hard data, and more unusual pictures than any other in our almost 30 years of UFO chasing. But firm evidence is not always pleasant. It can leave you with the uncomfortable feeling that you almost met the visitors but you completely missed the party.

When the data is a bit hazy, it is always possible to let your imagination fill in the gaps. It is also easy for investigators to generate excuses. This was not the case in the high mountain meadow of northern New Mexico in mid-June of 1976.

Perhaps extraterrestrial visitors were not involved in this strange happening. The reader can judge from the facts as we found and recorded them on film and paper. Maybe the whole thing was just a hoax or the work of a twisted mind. But in any case, it required skill and resources far above those available to the average human being.

It began like hundreds of other cattle mutilation stories that seldom make the news, but this time new and exciting evidence spotted by an alert State Police officer opened up what may become one of the best-documented events of the year.

Manuel Gomez is a rancher who also operates a small store in the village of Dulce. He keeps his cattle in a fenced and locked 5,000-acre area about ten miles out of town. On a routine weekly inspection, he found the body of one of his cows on which a precision surgical job appeared to be in progress. In the classic mutilation case, the pattern is to remove the rectum area, udder if a cow, tongue, lips, left ear, and all of the blood. Sometimes the heart is also removed. Manuel's arrival was well timed, when he reached the animal, some of the above mentioned parts were still with the body. Although it was more than a mile inside the nearest fence, there was no human, vehicle, or horse tracks inside the pasture. But near the body were the prints of what appeared to be something walking on suction cups or pods four inches in diameter.

Gomez left the scene immediately and went back to town to notify Officer Valdez of the New Mexico State Police. When the two men returned to the pasture area, it was soon evident that the unknown visitors had come back while Gomez was away to complete their interrupted surgical work. All of the preferred items were now missing. Over the tire tracks left by Gomez on his first trip were more fresh pod prints. There was no blood left in the animal, and none had been spilled around it.

State Police Officer Valdez, known to his friends as Gabe, is a very perceptive investigator with an open and inquiring mind. As evidence of his technical and mechanical skills, Gabe is a pit assistant to his good friend Bobby Unser, the famed two-time Indianapolis 500 winner. Gabe's curiosity was caught by the round pod prints. They wandered around the animal as if whatever had performed the surgery was walking on inverted suction cups four inches in diameter and about one inch deep.

On further searching, he found a line of the weird prints leading up a small hill. When they traveled any distance the prints were in a straight line spaced 28 inches apart. They did not have the human type of left, right walking. About 500 feet up the slope the trail ended at what appeared to be the landing site of a tripod-type vehicle. The vehicle seemed to have stood on three legs with each leg resting on a triangular base pad or foot, measuring about thirteen inches on each side. Three base pads or feet were spaced six feet apart to form a triangle. The miniature sage and chamiso bushes were wilting and dying around each pad print. A dark, oily substance was found near the prints.

At this point in the investigation we were contracted to do radiation and other measurements. As we investigated further we found several lines of prints, all leading to a single point at the landing site. Perhaps it was the side of the craft where a door was located.

No soil compression test equipment was taken to the remote location. However, a crude test print was made in the same soil. It left us with the feeling that if the pod prints had been made by something walking, it was perhaps of slighter build than an average human male. When the pod prints were in a line, they were slightly deeper on one side. This might indicate the direction of travel.

Investigation of the landing site suggested the possible use of a helicopter-type machine. However, aviation professionals, including a designer of helicopters, and also U.S. Air Force officials, told us they knew of no chopper with tripod landing gear. Such an arrangement, they said, would lead to instability at the moment of take-off. If this is true, such a craft could not have operated on the sloping terrain of this landing site. It was interesting to note that flat ground was available nearby but was not used.

The track pattern as we mapped it, told a vivid story. We believe the action went like this; the craft set down about 300 feet from where the cow and her two-month-old calf were standing. A trail of pod marks led from the craft to the cow. At this point something happened. Perhaps the cow was given a shot of some chemical. She began to run. After about 150 feet she stumbled and fell, rolled over, got up and ran again.

After another 100 feet she fell again, struggled to her feet and made a final effort. Another 75 feet and she fell again. This was her "last roundup." It appeared that at this point the little pod prints returned to the craft, perhaps to pick up surgical tools and then came down the hill and closed in. The "blood suckers" proceeded to drain all the blood without wasting so much as a drop. They then began to remove the desired parts and during this step they probably heard the Gomez vehicle approaching up the long canyon. Work was temporarily suspended until Gomez came and left. The operation was then completed, and they departed with their specimens and the two-month-old calf.

Although the tracks on the ground gave a clear picture of what happened in this case, we are familiar with other cases that leave you with the feeling the surgery was completed on board a hovering craft and the carcass then lowered or dropped to the ground, or sometimes to water. In some instances this mode of operation would explain the lack of all tracks and the cleanliness of the blood removal. It would explain bones that appeared to have been broken after the mutilation. It might also explain how animals known to be within a few feet of an occupied house at sunset were found in the same spot the next morning, but dead and mutilated—yet no one in the house had heard any struggle. Perhaps animals are less fortunate than the human contactees that are taken to the "examination room" on board.

At Dulce there was no doubt that the visitors left something wild animals could sense but we could not. Dead cattle in the mountains will attract scavengers of all types—coyotes, crows, the works. But for at least four days no animal or bird would come near the Dulce carcass. Only the flies. Cattle in a herd have a natural curiosity about the welfare of others in the group. Even when one member is dead, others of the herd will nuzzle and poke around as if trying to find out what is wrong. This is not true in the type of mutilation we are describing. The herd keeps its distance from the dead member. Another oddity is that the carcass in these cases seldom bloats as is so customary for cattle.

During our work at the scene, we casually asked one of the local young men if UFOs were ever seen in this part of the country. The answer was "No." But then one man added, "Several people in town saw a balloon flying along the top of the mountain range Sunday [the day of the killing] and going back on Monday." This gave us the lead we were looking for. Balloons usually do not operate in this manner in this remote area.

An official in the New Mexico balloon club ran a quick but thorough check and found that "no known balloons were in the region at those times." With a little encouragement, local residents including Indians began to talk more freely.

Many had seen large round objects that would hover and then move rapidly. At night the objects had either red or amber lights that seemed to rotate. One member of the investigating team, who must remain anonymous for work reasons, returned to the site alone on the second day to get more measurements. As he approached the carcass, but was still quite a distance away, he saw a large black object gliding silently away at a high rate of speed. Moving just above the ground, it disappeared into the forest. This sounds very much like the Puerto Rican reports.

The radiation measurements that we made were inconclusive. Due to the chain of events and the distance to the remote mountainous area, it was more than 48 hours before we could get our equipment to the location. However, tests indicated that at the landing site the radiation level was about twice the background level measured in the surrounding area. Radiation experts in atomic research verify our feeling that the measured level has a better than 50% probability of being meaningful.

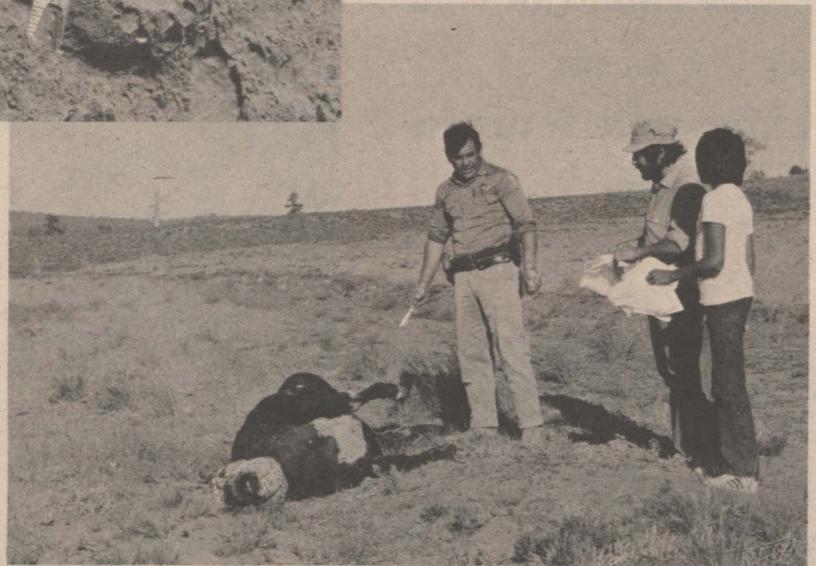

Part of our mission was to document the investigation on film. During the process we recorded the landing site, pod marks, the dead animal and other items. However, the two most unusual pictures were none of these. These two were intended to be only landscapes of the area, for the record.

We took two photos of the general overall area. The big surprise came when we saw the sky in these two exposures. What are the round things there? We did not see them when we shot the pictures. For those who are technically interested we will pass along the following information:

“We are capable of reliving our own birth, and probably even the very moment of conception, as well as life as an embryonic fetus in the womb.”

LIVE YOUR RE-BIRTH

By CHRISTOPHER FOLLETT

Researchers believe that every one of the 13 billion brain cells that each human possesses, has the capacity to recall the birth process.

Freud considered birth to be the first trauma in a human being's life, and thus the source and physiological prototype of anxiety or "angst." Indeed, birth is usually the most traumatic experience in our lives—an experience that if not integrated and relived, can create states of angst and impede one's normal development in later life.

“We are capable of remembering or reliving our birth—and probably even the very moment of conception, as well as life as an embryonic fetus in the womb” claims Johannes Fabricius, a Danish history teacher and author of an impressive list of books on depth psychology.

In a new book called Alchemy—The Medieval Alchemists and Their Royal Art, Fabricius interprets the work of the medieval alchemists, following in the footsteps of Jung and Silberer. The alchemists not only were the fathers of modern chemistry, but their efforts to purify metals for transmutation into silver and gold led them into a mysterious religious search. This was probably aided by the use of hallucinogenic drugs—for the divine meaning behind our existence, the “prime matter” at the root of creation itself.

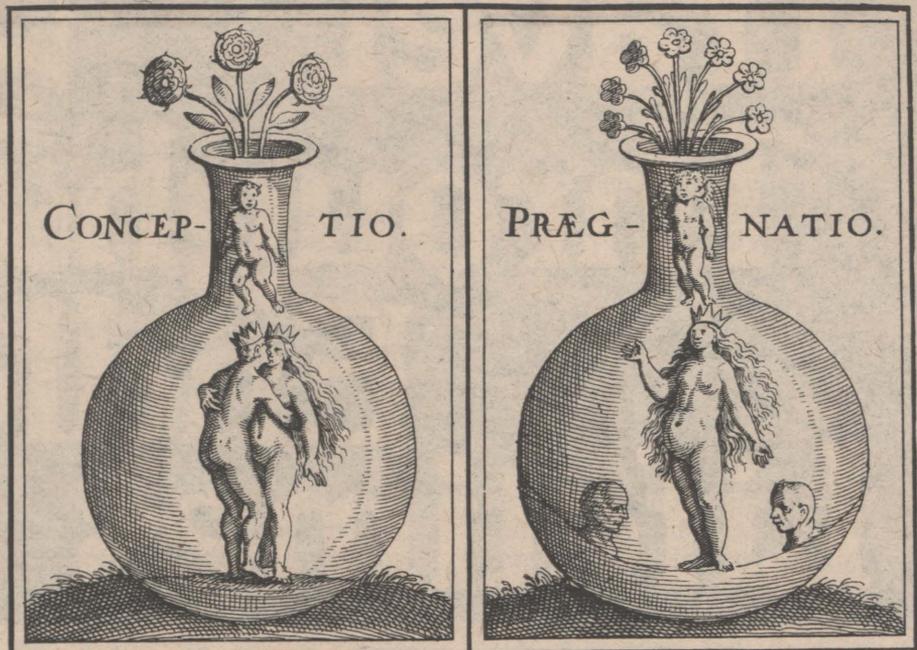

This book is one of the most comprehensive analyses of alchemical symbolism to date, with reproductions of more than 400 woodcuts, engravings, water-colors and paintings, obtained from archives and libraries all over the world.

“Every single one of the 13 billion brain cells a human being possesses has the capacity of recalling the process of birth—on the unconscious level our memory goes right back to the first moments of our being,” says Fabricius. On a purely medical level, his ideas have been fully collaborated by Dr. Claus Bick, a German physician, who recently claimed to have induced some 170 patients through hypnosis to give vivid accounts of their experiences prior to birth and immediately following it.

“The re-experiencing of birth and conception on the unconscious plane takes place in dreams, which is a process vital for us if we are to become mature,” adds Fabricius. This is a vital part of what Jung called the “individuation process”—the act of becoming a fully integrated individual. Jung’s theories on spiritual rebirth are related to the re-experiencing of our material birth.

Most people suffer great feelings of primordial angst about their birth—especially in their late twenties and early thirties. It is at this time in life that the unconscious is flooded with birth dreams that act as an antidote to birth angst. If these unconscious manifestations of the psyche are not properly assimilated on the conscious level, the result is neurosis. “Angst caused by a blocking of birth reminiscences can perhaps only be freed by drugs, like LSD,

Travel Through Endless Lifetimes

By Rev. Dee Kuespert

Reincarnation and regression by hypnosis are very controversial subjects. Many people who are studying Metaphysics are finding that reincarnation is the only reasonable answer to the many questions unanswered by the teachings of their "orthodox" religions. As you open your mind and let this "new" idea buzz around, pieces of the unsolved puzzle will begin to fall into place. The age-old questions of "Why do small babies die?"...or "Why does a young healthy person suddenly contract a painful, lingering, incurable disease?...or "Why is a child born blind, crippled or retarded?"...are not answered by the reply we have received from ministers and laymen alike, "It is God's Will and we must not question." But these questions are answered clearly and sensibly by the principles of reincarnation, in which karma is the main factor.

In the past few years many investigators have begun to pay attention to cases of people regressed backward in time to a former life by hypnosis. After much trial and error, hypnotists have been able to distinguish between a true regression and a fabrication. If a person is unable to regress back to a former life

(only one person in ten can be regressed), an individual under hypnosis will still weave quite a story. A person under hypnosis wants only to please the hypnotist. Now, techniques have been perfected to enable the experienced hypnotist to recognize true regression from a story that is fabricated. Therefore, it is imperative that if you wish to be regressed, be sure the hypnotist is aware of and uses this technique.

I am working on a new concept in performing regressions that I feel may give us concrete, unchallengeable evidence of reincarnation. This research study will take two or three more years of work to complete. I am moving slowly and deliberately in this research until I have solid evidence.

The following is a regression we did during a metaphysics class I was teaching. The subject under hypnosis was a 19-year-old female who prefers to be referred to as Miss A. We are still researching the information she gave us regarding her former life.

HYPNOTIST: Miss A, we are going back in time. We are going to go back to Monday morning. Just turning the hands of the clock back in time to Monday morning at 8:30 a.m....Monday morning at 8:30 a.m....What are you doing?

MISS A: Watching a movie.

HYPNOTIST: What are you watching?

MISS A: This crazy movie in class.

HYPNOTIST: What is it about?

MISS A: Civil Rights Movement.

HYPNOTIST: Can you tell me some of the dialogue?

MISS A: They are showing a picture of Martin Luther King and they are talking about his "I have a dream" speech. I'm not paying much attention.

HYPNOTIST: Is it kind of boring?

MISS A: Very.

HYPNOTIST: All right...we are going to leave that time and go further back, further back. We're pushing back. We are going back to last Saturday. Last Saturday morning at 10:30 a.m....Saturday morning at 10:30 a.m. Where are you?

MISS A: Under a hair dryer.

HYPNOTIST: Under a hair dryer?

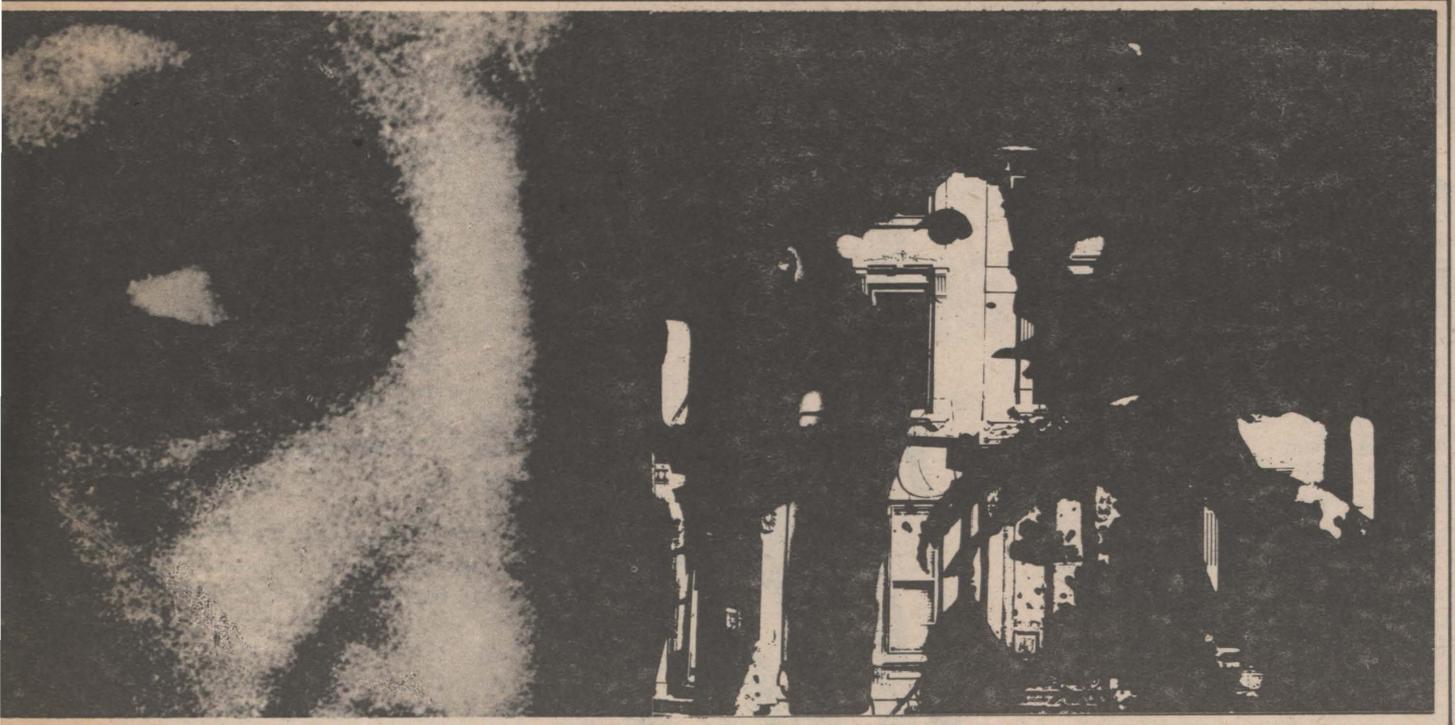

Are you getting your hair fixed?

MISS A: Yes.

HYPNOTIST: Is the dryer hot?

MISS A: Yes, very hot.

HYPNOTIST: All right, I want you to go further back in time. This time we are not only pushing the hands of the clock back, but we are going to turn the pages of the calendar all the way back to December 24, 1974, at 10:00 p.m. in the evening. All the way back to December 24, 1974, at 10:00 p.m. in the evening. What is going on?

MISS A: We are at practice.
HYPNOTIST: Practice for what?
MISS A: With our church singers. We are getting ready for Midnight Mass.
HYPNOTIST: What are you singing?
MISS A: Well, right now we are having a family circle.
HYPNOTIST: I see. What did you do earlier this afternoon?
MISS A: Went up and wrapped presents.
HYPNOTIST: What do you want? What do you hope to get?
MISS A: A record player.
HYPNOTIST: Think you will get it?
MISS A: No...money is scarce.
HYPNOTIST: It's a kind of expensive gift, isn't it?
MISS A: Yes.
HYPNOTIST: Now, we are going further back in time...further and further and further back...back to the sixth grade...It's the last day of school, the very last day. What is going on?
MISS A: Oh, just about everything. Sister B is giving away all the stuff we used during the year. We're raffling it off, picking numbers.
HYPNOTIST: Do you have a number?

MISS A: Yes, I picked seven.
HYPNOTIST: I want you to go back, back still further in time...way back...to the second grade. You are sitting there in your seat at school, and it's a cold winter day. As you look out the window you can see the snow blowing and coming down, but you are sitting in your seat, nice and warm...who is standing up in the front of the room?
MISS A: Miss Jackson.
HYPNOTIST: Who is Miss Jackson?
MISS A: My teacher.
HYPNOTIST: Do you like her?
MISS A: Oh, yes!
HYPNOTIST: Who sits in front of you?
MISS A: David.
HYPNOTIST: Do you like David?
MISS A: He's okay...he's a boy...
HYPNOTIST: Do you have a best friend?
MISS A: Yes, her name is Collette.
HYPNOTIST: You do things together?
MISS A: Yes.
HYPNOTIST: What do you like to do best?
MISS A: Oh, we usually just mess around, whatever we can get into...we hang around the swing set a lot.

HYPNOTIST: Miss A, I want you to look at your desk. Do you have books on your desk?
MISS A: Yes.
HYPNOTIST: What are those books?
MISS A: There's a reader, and a speller, and a math book and a bunch of wrinkled papers.
HYPNOTIST: Have you any pencils or crayons?
MISS A: Oh, big fat pencils and crayons. They're hard to hold.
HYPNOTIST: All right, Miss A, let's go deeper asleep, deeper asleep. We are going to go further and further back...and now you are one year old. Just one year old. Really, a little gal, and it is afternoon on a nice warm summer's day. What are you doing?
MISS A: I'm crawling on the floor.
HYPNOTIST: Do you know how to walk yet?
MISS A: Yes.
HYPNOTIST: Do you fall down now and then a lot?
MISS A: Uh huh.
HYPNOTIST: Do you have any favorite toys?
MISS A: A doll...Patty doll...
HYPNOTIST: Patty doll? What does she look like?
MISS A: She's just a little stuffed doll with a plastic face and she's pink.
HYPNOTIST: Okay now, we are

Please turn page

going back, further and further back. You just came into this world...You're a brand new baby; you just got here, you just got here...How does your body feel? ...what do you see?...what do you hear?...what do you feel?

MISS A: Its so cramped...

HYPNOTIST: You're cramped?

MISS A: Yes.

HYPNOTIST: Where are you?

MISS A: In a big room...with a bunch of people with funny things on white dresses, it looks like.. with funny things on their faces... they're funny looking...

HYPNOTIST: Are you frightened?

MISS A: Yes, I didn't want to come...

HYPNOTIST: You didn't want to come? What did you want to do?

MISS A: Stay where I was...so nice there...it was open and all you did was think and you were where you wanted to be, but now I'm stuck here and I can't get out. I've got to stay here, and I have to be where I am. Oh, I could leave, but they tell me I should not.

HYPNOTIST: Do you know your mother?

MISS A: Oh, yes...a long, long, time ago. She was my best friend.

HYPNOTIST: Can you hear anything that is going on around you?

MISS A: Oh, there's all sorts of sounds...there's a beep, and there are people talking and kids are crying...

HYPNOTIST: Who is crying?

MISS A: Me for one, and others, too...they are new here, too.

HYPNOTIST: Fine now, Miss A, I want you to go deeper asleep, back further in time...you haven't come into this world yet...you haven't come into this world yet...but you're in a nice place, aren't you? Can you tell me about it?

MISS A: Oh, you can go anywhere you want, it's all open and comfortable...and you are never cold, and you don't have to dress if you don't want to...but most of us do...you can have anything you want that you have had before...

all you do is ask for it.

HYPNOTIST: Where are you at, and who are you?

MISS A: I don't know where I am at...I don't know what it is called...It's not here and it's not there...It's wherever I want to be whenever I want to be there and I was called...I don't remember what I was called..it was soooooo long ago...I was called something...

HYPNOTIST: Now we are going to go back to that time...we are going to go further and further... way back to before Miss A ever was. Way, way back, just let yourself go drifting, further and further, just floating back...pretty soon maybe you are going to see something, or hear something, or you're going to feel something... just let yourself drift back there, and when you do, I want you to tell me...

(Note: Subject's voice changes now to the sound of an old southern woman.)

MISS A: I'm watching a burial... They're buryin' me, only I'm not in there any more, I left yesterday...

HYPNOTIST: What was your name?

MISS A: Marian.

HYPNOTIST: Marian what?

MISS A: Marian Wesley.

HYPNOTIST: What did you die of, Marian?

MISS A: They're not sure...those doctors don't know nothin'.

HYPNOTIST: Do you know?

MISS A: I think it was jus' ol' age.

HYPNOTIST: How old are you, how old were you?

MISS A: Seventy-two.

HYPNOTIST: What year is this?

MISS A: 1876.

HYPNOTIST: Can you tell me the date this burial is taking place?

MISS A: The thing they've got sittin' there says July 15, 1876.

HYPNOTIST: What thing?

MISS A: The tombstone, the grave...wooden board...What a waste...

HYPNOTIST: What's a waste?

MISS A: Why don't they do it and git it over with and don't stand there looking silly.

HYPNOTIST: I want you to look at that body...would you like to be back in it?

MISS A: Good grief...no!

HYPNOTIST: Why?

MISS A: Oh, it was a bother—git up in the mornin', git breakfast, then git out thar and git the hogs fed, and the chickens fed, cows milked, then git lunch, jus' work, work, work, all the time. Didn't mind it when I could git around ...these past few years have been rugged...

HYPNOTIST: Let's go back into that time for a little while—back, back, back you are twenty-five years old...it's your birthday... Happy Birthday!

MISS A: Thank ye...

(NOTE: Subject's voice is now young and still southern..)

HYPNOTIST: What are you doing?

MISS A: I just' birthed my third baby...and on my birthday.

HYPNOTIST: What is it, a boy or a girl?

MISS A: Oh, its a little boy.

HYPNOTIST: What did you name him?

MISS A: Andrew Marcus.

HYPNOTIST: Is he named after his father?

MISS A: His daddy's name is Marcus, my daddy's name is Andrew.

HYPNOTIST: You said this is your third child; what are your other two children?

MISS A: Well, the first one is a boy and the second one is a girl.

HYPNOTIST: What are children's names and how old are they now?

MISS A: John Matthew, that's the boy...he's five and Sarah Ann, she's three, and now I've got Andrew Marcus.

HYPNOTIST: Where do you live?

MISS A: In a house, a big house.It's up on a big farm, and it's not really big compared to the Adamson's whose house is big. They've got a mansion, but that is because they're rich.

HYPNOTIST: Are you poor?

MISS A: No, but we're not rich...we git by.

HYPNOTIST: Does your house have a number or address?

MISS A: No, It's the Wesley Place, out off the road.

HYPNOTIST: How would I find it?

MISS A: Well, you go through the town and jus' follow that road...

HYPNOTIST: What town?

MISS A: Creekville.

HYPNOTIST: Where is that at?

MISS A: Georgia.

HYPNOTIST: How do I get there again?

MISS A: You go through Creekville, there's only one street, you can't miss it, and you follow it on out west right out past the town, and pretty soon you come to a real pretty house with green shutters. It's way back off the road, that's ours.

HYPNOTIST: Marian, what year is this?

MISS A: Oh, let me think—I..

At this point in the session, I brought the subject out of the deep trance because it was getting late.

Again, I want to make it clear that reincarnation and regression are very controversial subjects. Remember, an open mind can bring peace and understanding, but a closed mind keeps us in a tight little trap of fear of the unknown.

Use your mind to reach out and receive god's Universal Knowledge. It costs nothing but quiet meditation, and the wisdom reaped will exalt your soul to a higher spiritual plane than you ever thought possible to attain in this lifetime. □

The two exposures were taken with our back to the sun. These exposures were nine frames apart on a twenty-exposure roll. The only place on the entire roll that such objects occur are in the sky in these two frames. Special care was used with this roll because the investigation was a one-time thing. Under the microscope the images show to be in the emulsion as part of the picture. They are not water or other such spots. When developed for the right contrast, they show a slight halo and one can be seen to be beyond the wispy clouds.

A professional photographer in Durango, Colorado, which is located about 50 airline miles northwest of Dulce, tells us that he recorded two similar objects in the sky over a large fire he was covering. The objects in his picture also were not visible as he took the picture.

When the pictures were shown to people in the Dulce area, they immediately agreed they were similar to the flying objects that they had seen. Although nothing was seen in the sky by any of the investigating team, two women in the group each remarked, "I keep feeling like something is watching us."

We give you the pictures; we make no claims or comments—except that the spots did not happen during the developing

There are two incidents connected with the investigation that we cannot explain. Perhaps they are only coincidence—maybe not. Samples of the oily substance were gathered and taken to the state crime lab for analysis. We waited over two months for test results. The answers could have been a breakthrough on UFO questions that have been with us for a long time. Then the test results came. "The oily substance has disappeared from the test sample container while waiting for the test. We have nothing to test!"

And tissue samples were sent to the state medical lab for analysis (a different lab). The final report? "The tissue had been soaked in a special fluid to extract any unusual chemicals that might be in the tissue. After extended soaking, the lab technicians who were to make the tests on the fluid found that it was missing from the test container." No one knows how or where it went. Once again nothing to test!

While the Dulce event has given us a large file of hard data on some kind of peculiar visitors, it has actually told us more about humans, especially those in places of responsibility. We feel very fortunate to have been working with an officer like Gabe Valdez. Others were not so pleasant.

There were those such as the state police officer in Taos, New Mexico, who told us with authority that it was a well-established fact that there had never been an animal mutilation. Or there was Dr. McGinity of the University of Missouri Veterinary Department, who has looked at many such cases in that region. He very happily told us that all mutilations were just small-toothed animals, eating cows that had died a natural death. When we explained that we knew the Dulce case was different, he became very mean and escorted us from his office. He told us we were wasting his time and interfering with important work. These were not isolated cases; they became a familiar pattern.

Far too many people at decision-making levels refuse to admit anything that they cannot explain.

Now—enjoy a life of unbelievable riches, lasting love and constant protection with the secrets in this startling WITCH BOOK—

THE MAGIC POWER OF WITCHCRAFT

Whatever it is you need or want, Witchcraft can get it for you quickly, easily, and automatically, say these experts. You'll discover how it can bring abundant and overflowing wealth, find or bring back a lover, ward off evil influences, and much more—step-by-step in plain English, with complete easy-to-follow instructions!

Yes . . . Witchcraft! Every time you hear the word it brings with it the feelings of deep occult secrets—secrets that you would like to know so that your life can be better; so that your enemies will stop bothering you; so that serenity, love, power and comfort can be yours!

THE MAGIC POWER OF WITCHCRAFT lays bare these secrets for the first time! Do you want a bank account bursting at the seams with money? A love life that would make a sultan envious? Supreme power to crush your enemies and reward your friends? What would it be worth to you to utter a simple incantation that would cause any pain to vanish? Or say another, and immediately recover some lost object?

What would it be worth to you to fly through time and space, on astral wings, as Witches do . . . go wherever you wish . . . do whatever you wish . . . without being detected . . . watch the antics of others behind closed doors . . . hear private conversations . . . make time run forward or backward . . . read tomorrow's newspaper in a "black mirror" . . . find out what really happened in history . . . make your face old or young at will!

BRINGS AUTOMATIC ASSURED SUCCESS!

Witchcraft can bring your heart's desire! You can use it to heal someone, influence the boss to give you that raise, or make someone stop bothering you! It's easy! The easiest thing in the world! You don't have to be wealthy or super-intelligent to get started! Thousands of ordinary people all over the world are using Witchcraft Power right now!

Witches have known for centuries that people are scared of them and their powers! And rightly so! NOW YOU CAN SHARE THE SAME POWER that gives you—literally—life and death control over other persons! Is someone bothering you? No problem at all, with Magic Witchcraft. For example, there is a spell called the "Cross Not My Path" ritual, for people who are having neighbor trouble. When you use it, you know you will never again have trouble with this neighbor!

With these amazing Witchcraft secrets, other people will look up to you—in awe—you'll automatically dazzle others with your power to make things happen at your will, you'll be Master of your destiny, and never have to apologize to anyone for anything!

Whatever you want or need, whatever frustration is bothering you, Witchcraft will help you. It is not evil—nor is it Black Magic. Like electricity, it is simply a power given by nature for the use of men, to make life easier.

You'll see how to get paid without working . . . how to get expensive clothes and furs FREE . . . how to get a first-class plane

Now! Let This Amazing Witch Book Bring You INFINITE WEALTH, FINE POSSESSIONS, A COMFORTABLE NEW HOME, FINANCIAL SECURITY, LOVE, CONTROL OVER OTHERS, And More—Easily And Automatically!

For centuries, these Witchcraft secrets were hushed up, so that those in power could stay in power! Feudal lords kept their bondsmen as slaves. Factory owners kept their employees in dreaded sweatshops, because these masters knew they must not allow their workers to realize that they need not labor their lives away. Witchcraft was suppressed because it works! Not because of any "evil" in it. If it hadn't worked, no one would have worried about it. If you want to gain power, all you need is this amazing Witch Book!

By using these Witchcraft secrets, you too can change your life and gain health, wealth, someone to love—or anything else—surely, swiftly and automatically!

• THE WITCH'S MONEY JAR!—You'll discover the secret of the Witch's Money Jar, a mysterious jar that fills with money—whenever you want or need it! All you need is some water, pennies, and an ordinary jar or bowl! You'll be amazed at the speed with which it fills with money—a seemingly endless supply of needed cash!

• THE WITCH'S MONEY MAGNET!—You'll see how to magnetize a dollar bill so that it multiplies! All you need to make your own Witch's Money Magnet is a dollar bill, a green candle, and the words on page 38. Once you do this, your dollar will double and keep doubling! You'll enjoy glittering luxuries, and start living like a millionaire, as Witches do!

• THE WITCH'S BLACK MIRROR!—Just as your TV set has been called your "window on the world," so the Black Mirror is your "window on the psychic world"—the world of the unknown. Making your own personal Black Mirror takes only a few moments and can open the way to unguessable visions. All you need is a bowl of water, some ink, and the chant on page 23. Suddenly you will see scenes from other places and times, or any scene you wish to see!

IN THIS WITCH BOOK YOU'LL DISCOVER . . .

- How to Cast Spells that Really Work!

AMAZING TECHNIQUE HAS HELPED THOUSANDS!

Witchcraft secrets like these can make you rich faster than anything else in the world! Here's how others have used them to make miracles happen in their daily lives! You'll see how Vern, a man who likes to give a lot of expensive parties, was always short of cash until he discovered the amazing WITCH'S MONEY JAR—now all he has to do is dip in, for it brings him an endless flow of cash! Evelyn, a waitress, was always lending money to friends, and was always broke. Finally, she placed her last dollar on the table, and worked the MONEY MAGNET SPELL over it. All at once, dozens of people who had borrowed money from her, rushed to pay her back!

Hank was perpetually broke. One night he got together with some friends, and they decided to cast the MONEY SPELL. The very next day, Hank received in the mail a check for some $250 worth of insurance. (He had never heard of the company that sent the check, he was not insured with them, and had never even made a claim—but he accepted the money.) Another member of the group that used the spell, a 40-year-old secretary, received an automobile as a gift! All the other members of the group received amazing windfalls of money, as well! You'll see how Dexter, a retiree, lives RENT FREE and receives $200 a week at the age of 78, with a secret you'll find in this Witch Book! You'll see how Claudine, a secretary, was able to wear the finest, most expensive furs—FREE—and spend weekends at an expensive ski lodge in the mountains, where she met a wonderful man! How Ruth L., a widow—with nothing but a small pension, and a little savings—received her dream house, by using a simple 5-minute ritual on page 38 of this book!

Using the same Witchcraft secrets, YOU can achieve peace of mind and freedom from money worries for the rest of your life!

YOU CAN HEAL YOURSELF AS WITCHES DO!

Feeling sick today? Plagued by a lot of troublesome illnesses? Perhaps some relative is sick and constantly demanding your attention? Or perhaps it is even a pet that needs help? With the MAGIC POWER OF WITCHCRAFT, you can cure anything, say authors Gavin and Yvonne Frost: "In our experience . . . we have not found a single incurable disease!"

• ANDY DISSOLVES A GALLSTONE!—Andy M. developed gallstones. When his illness became too troublesome to ignore, he went to a doctor. Urine tests revealed that he was chronically alkaline. His body was badly out of balance. Using this Witchcraft method to restore balance to the mind and body—in a short while, X-rays showed that he had no more gallstones! Andy never again suffered the excruciating pain of passing stones!

In the same way, say Gavin and Yvonne Frost, almost all illness can be prevented. You are actually employing an ancient Witchcraft method to remove diseased tissue! Even if you do not have any belief in the results, the power will work for you!

One woman, who had been in a wheelchair for 26 years, due to polio and arthritis, used the Witchcraft healing method, and reported that she had no pain and could walk and garden again! A man reported that his son's deep 3rd degree burns miraculously healed overnight!

• SO SIMPLE A CHILD USES IT!—A 4-year-old girl asked if she could try to heal a man who was limping—due to a torn ligament—with this simple Witchcraft healing method. In a matter of moments, she started her chant, laying her hands on the weak ankle. The man was miraculously cured! To skeptics, this should be convincing PROOF that anyone can use it!

CODE NAME “CANON 1151”

They stood over her, chanting while the poor girl with the hollow cheeks stared into space. Slowly, her eyes closed, and seconds later her body stopped shaking...she had found peace at last...she was dead.

“Canon 1151” is the code name given by the Roman Catholic Church to the ritual which permits exorcism when practiced by prudent priests who have proved their piety and integrity. So because of “Canon 1151”, West Germany is still rocking over a morbid exorcism which involved a young school teacher, Anneliese Michel.

Anneliese died of starvation on July 1, 1976 after two Roman Catholic priests tried to exorcise several demons from her body. She weighed only 75 pounds at death, and the bizarre circumstances have stimulated much criticism.

Many Germans believe that exorcism is a relic from the middle ages which should be banned. However, Miss Michel’s parents still live in the age of devils and demons. Her mother being a proud Catholic and a firm believer in the devil, said: “I am shocked that despite the fact that my daughter has been killed by the sinister one (devil), no one believes in him.”

Josef Stangl, Bishop of Wurzburg, Germany, who was responsible for the exorcism that brought death to the young girl.

The German government has taken a grim view of such happenings and more than ten manslaughter suits have been filed against the two priests involved; Josef Stangl, Bishop of Wurzburg who authorized the exorcism, and Father Arnold Renz who has made more than 40 tape recordings of the exorcism procedures which have been turned over to a psychiatrist for further study.

It was found that, although the priests knew that Anneliese was an epileptic who suffered chronic fits, she received no medical attention for over a year. When the girl was carried away it was reported that she looked like a “dried up heap of bones.”

Its been over two hundred years since an exorcism was performed in Wurzburg, and if the German people have anything to say about it, it will be the last. □ fission reactor he describes in his book. According to the December 1974 edition of "The Journal of The British Interplanetary Society," the U.S. military was ready to test a nuclear powered vehicle hundreds of times larger than Ezekiel's vehicle. In 1955 the nuclear scientists at Los Alamo Scientific Laboratories, started working on Project Orion, a giant rocket powered by atomic and hydrogen explosions. The first vehicle was nearly ready for flight testing before the program was cancelled in 1963 and it was capable of sending a 1,000 ton payload to the planets. Project Orion was also in the design stage and it would have been capable of sending a city the size of Chicago, including all if its office building and population, to the stars. This giant spaceship would have been one mile in diameter and it would have been powered by thousands of hydrogen bombs exploding at the rear of the vehicle. (See The New Yorker magazine, December 1973) Both programs were cancelled in 1963 because the test ban treaty stopped all nuclear explosions in the atmosphere.

Other technologies which Mr. Blumrich forgot to include in his book are fusion and anti-matter power. The government is very close to harnessing fusion power for space flight and a fusion engine would be at least 2,000 times as powerful as Ezekiel's spaceship. According to the April 27, 1975 edition of The New York Times, the Defense Dept. has been operating laser-powered fusion reactors since 1960. Literature on fusion energy goes back to the 1930's and after World War II when there were many hundreds of articles and textbooks published on this subject. Space engines powered by anti-matter would be 15,000 times as powerful as the engine he describes in his book, and anti-matter is now being produced in limited amounts in two nuclear laboratories according to the 1974 edition of The Encyclopedia Britannica. The literature on anti-matter goes back to the 1920's and anti-matter particles were first seen in the laboratory in 1955. Again, the scientific literature is full of articles on this subject.

There are questions I would like to ask Mr. Blumrich, who happens to be a top NASA engineer, about our nuclear technology. First, what happened to the NERVA rocket engines and the dozens of nuclear turbojets tested in the 1950's for nuclear aircraft? Is there any connection between the billions of dollars spent on nuclear aircraft and rockets, and our "modern" UFOs? These questions and their answers, should have been included in his book instead of praising the "superior" technology of the ancient astronauts.

After a near-fatal heart attack in 1965, comic-actor Peter Sellers became interested in the afterlife, clairvoyance and Spiritualism. "I'm sure now," he says, "that death is nothing to fear." Sellers claims that his reassurance derives from a series of psychic encounters, still continuing to the present day, in which he hears "guiding voices." The voices, he further claims, are responsible for the revitalization of his film career in recent years.

The voices constantly speak to Sellers. "They warn me. I'm very well guarded. They are my friends."

Now at age 50, Peter Sellers is enjoying the fruits of renewed success following the revival of the highly acclaimed "Pink Panther" film series. He says the voices told him he should resume the characterization of Inspector Jacques Clouseau, the bungling French detective, and the role which many feel is his greatest comic portrayal.

Although Sellers claims not to subordinated his entire life to the guiding voices, he says that they are "always correct," and that through them he can, nine times out of ten, predict what is going to happen during the course of a day. He recognizes one of the voices as that of his mother who passed away in 1967. "It doesn't matter where I go or what I'm doing. I hear her words clearly. Whenever I feel low she comes to cheer me up."

Sellers' psychic experiences have had a markedly healing effect on his life and he claims that the voices give him a continual feeling of inner peace and well being. He adds that he is a firm believer in psychic power because, as he says, he has "incredible proof." □ probably contaminated, and went out of the area, possibly to bury it. In the final step, the command capsule was returned to, and recoupled to the top of the main configuration. (Ezek. 8,9,10)

In regards to the astronauts, in all biblical depictions they were always portrayed as human beings; accordingly, the space visitors must have been future earthmen. The odds against 'alien' beings having a close resemblance to earth people would be astronomical.

As for the spaceships, Blumrich believes that they were manufactured by a low space technology not far ahead of ours. Taking into account the distances between stars and the overwhelming technological difficulties of interstellar travel, it seems highly unlikely that the hypothetical mothership of the biblical vehicles would have been capable of propelling itself to Earth from another star system in our universe.

Therefore, the spaceships must have come from a nearby planet in another universe. An 'alien' extradimensional world is ruled out because there is only a slight chance that it would have a parallel geological, biological, and technological development. There is only one possibility remaining: the vehicles originated on an identical Earth existing at a time period in the immediate future.

There is direct evidence for this conclusion. We know that the biblical spacecrafts had two separately powered stages, like the American Lunar Modules; and that they were identified by the United States space engineer. Also, a crude model of the biblical craft has undergone successful testing at NASA's Langley Research Center, and Mr. Blumrich has secured a patent for the wheel system on the spaceship. These facts favor my theory that the space vehicles came from our future (a future Earth).

In addition to evidence of fulfilled prophecies, spaceships, and astronauts; there is the ancient Hebrew health code. Before the nineteenth century, poor sanitary conditions were commonplace. But this was not the case in the early Hebrew community. medical officials were surprised to discover that the Israelites had reasonably modern health laws pertaining to body issues, leprosy, and circumcision, among other things.

Issues: As modern medical science knows, many harmful

Although it is possible that the health laws were given to the ancient Hebrews by spacemen, it is also probable that they came from future earthmen.

bacteria can be transmitted by body discharges. The Hebrews had many comprehensive regulations dealing with this subject. For example, a person must have easement outside camp, and the excreta had to be buried. Individuals who came into contact with pathological discharges or other issues were "unclean" until the even. They were ordered to wash themselves and their clothes.

Leprosy: A victim with a skin disease was expelled from the community. After the quarantine, the infected person washed his body and garments. The scalp was shaved and antiseptics were administered.

Circumcision: All males were commanded to be circumcised on the eighth day of life (Gen. 17:12, Lev.12:3).

Circumcision is the cutting off of the excess foreskin on the penis. If the tight foreskin is not discarded, proper cleaning is not easily accomplished. Under the dirty foreskin, bacteria can grow profusely. This includes the cancer-causing Smegma bacillus. Penile cancer in men and cervical cancer in their mates could result.

Why did the astronauts pick the eighth day? The reason is that a newborn has bleeding tendency during the first week of life. The probable reason for this condition is that vitamin K, a clotting element, is not manufactured in the proper amount until the fifth, sixth, or seventh days. Since circumcision causes bleeding, it would make good sense to wait until the eighth day—the first safe day—before it is done. At that time there would be little bleeding, not only because of the presence of K, but because another clotting agent, Prothrombin, is at its highest level of availability 110½ of normal.

Although it is possible that all these health laws were given to the Hebrews by alien spacemen, it is more probable that they came from future earthmen. The time travelers would be fully acquainted with our complex life forms as well as the languages spoken on this planet.

So all the evidence presented fulfilled prophecies, LEM-type spaceships, human astronauts, advanced health laws—strongly support my hypothesis that the ancient spacemen were future earthlings.

their culture—just as there are great centers of culture in our world today. Perhaps all those “theories” about where Atlantis was located are correct. Perhaps a far-flung colonial empire, with centers here and there—?

Throughout the Edgar Cayce readings on Atlantis, he speaks of aircraft, radio and wireless transmission of power—all imply a civilization at a very advanced state. Atlantis sent out ships and men to all parts of the world, and established trading posts, colonies and independent kingdoms. There seems to have been an ample supply of copper to fill the people’s needs.

The climate at that time must have been equable, and not unduly subject to atmospheric disturbances, for much of the Atlantean architecture seems to have been of roofless stone buildings laid on large stone blocks. They must have used the navigator’s compass, for they accomplished navigation that could not have been done by the stars alone. Crete and Atlantis both apparently had sea power, imperialism, public works, and both practiced the ceremonial use of bulls.

It has been said that this great civilization fell “suddenly.” This is far from our seeming facts. The destruction of Atlantis appears to have come in the form of at least three catastrophic devastations.

As Plato described it, the land of Atlantis was no legend, but more like a telescoped history of those things that happened before recorded history

Finally, the remnant of a once vast civilization, still capable of scientific achievement, was plagued with the problems of greed and selfishness—problems that have beset mankind in all times.

Many believe that man brought the final destruction of Atlantis upon himself. He took useful resources (atomic?) and used them for evil and destruction.

Somehow, man triggered an unrest inside the earth. The results were volcanic explosions that divided the great continent into islands. The three great destructions are thought to have taken place between 50,000 B.C. and 10,000 B.C.

There was ample warning of the catastrophes. Many refugees migrated to other parts of their world: the final exodus from Atlantis seems to have been an organized flight. The survivors apparently attempted to continue their way of life in their new surroundings, but found themselves among less civilized people, and gradually there was a blending of the two dissimilar cultures.

Edgar Cayce told that some day the land that was Atlantis will rise again. And that somewhere in our world will be found records which will verify the history of that ancient land and its people.

The modern discoveries of evidence attesting ancient civilization do not prove that ancient Atlantis actually existed. But do they make you wonder? How else do we explain the missing islands, with relics of a distant past? How else do we explain the small pockets of advanced civilization among less civilized cultures? How do we explain a philosopher’s graphic story of a lost continent? □

Give up a can of tuna for a porpoise!

During the last 15 years over two million porpoises-friendly, air-breathing mammals of the sea, have been killed by the purse seine nets now used by the tuna industry to catch tuna.

The fishermen use the porpoises to locate yellowfin tuna—the kind called light meat in the cans—and then set their nets around both the tuna and the porpoise in order to catch the tuna.

WHY ARE THEY HERE ?

SPACE SHIPS From Other

Worlds have been seen in our skies for many years. This has a very good reason. It is of utmost importance to know the reason - It could be of great benefit to all.

Sensationalism never brings results, only confusion. We have had enough of that.

sounds, together with disembodied voices.

By this time, Eslinger was reporting new apparitions. She said she saw images of Kerner, Judge Heyd, and various people she never had seen in the flesh floating around the cell. Once the apparition of Heyd had come to her wreathed in smoke and told her that trouble was impending for the judge. A few days after, Heyd's child died. The bars on the cell window, which six strong men could not move, started shaking from some unseen force.

A number of men confined in a neighboring wing of the prison heard the same crackling, shuffling, and stamming sounds that the imprisoned women heard. Two of the men saw a blurry white figure enter their cell and declare "You must have patience!"

More people from outside started spending nights in the prison to investigate these phenomena. They included lawyers, judges, clergymen, mathematicians, and noblemen. All of them perceived the same lights, sounds, stenches, and so forth as earlier witnesses had.

The warden of the prison asked Eslinger to send the apparition to him. He made this challenge in a spirit of ridicule, as he did not believe in any of the things she said had occurred. The night afterward, however, he awakened by a pain in the left elbow, which came from a wound much like that Eslinger said had been produced in her by the phantom's touch. The next night, he got a similar painful sore in his right arm. Then his house became filled with the same shuffling and crackling that the apparition had produced in the prison. The warden never saw the spectre, though his wife claimed she could occasionally see it floating around the house.

Soon after this, Eslinger was released from prison. The apparition did not go away, however, and continued to haunt the cells of the jail. Then it started showing up all over town, and in neighboring communities as well. People in all walks of life, all over southwestern Germany saw ghost figures and mysterious lights invade their homes. They also were witness to crackling and sizzling noises with no obvious source.

On February 11, 1836, Eslinger traveled to the city of Wimmenthal on orders from the phantom. When she got there, she saw the spectre appear before her, and she got down on her knees to pray. Then two other images in human form appeared next to the first apparition. Eslinger wrapped her hand in a handkerchief and offered it to the ghosts. The handkerchief caught on fire. Then came a bright light accompanied by apparitions of wild beasts. Eslinger fainted in terror at these sights. After her recovery, the Weinsburg apparition never appeared again.

What was behind all this?

One thing is sure. This was certainly something real, and not just a delusion or tall tale. Delusions and fictions cannot produce changes in physical objects, nor are temperaments likely to produce the same sort of imaginative creation.

Beyond this, little more can be said. It is even impossible to say whether these phenomena were the creations of some intelligent life or were purely physical with no mind directing them. The fact that the apparition was able to make sounds resembling speech suggests some intelligency behind it, but it must be taken into consideration that certain types of humming and buzzing sounds can often be misinterpreted as speech by someone who is frightened or confused and/or has a good imagination. I can recall myself in moments of stress mistaking the sounds of an electric fan for a human voice, and something similar might have happened to the people who reportedly had heard voices in Eslinger's cell.

The Weinsberg phantom and its attendant phenomena, and the whole subject of objective apparitions which this case proves to exist, are probably best regarded now as an unsolved mystery. Hopefully some new discovery will be made before long that will enable someone to provide a solution. Possibly the solution will be found in something similar to holography, the creation of three-dimensional but intangible images by laser light. Perhaps the old theory of palingenesis, or the production of images of living things by chemical treatment of material taken from their bodies, which seems to have real experimental evidence in its favor even though modern scientists rarely take it seriously, may explain these things. Or the solution may be found in something which nobody past or present has suspected to exist. □

Secret Air Force report admits the threat is real.

UFOs May Doom Life On Earth

Read The Official U.S. Government Findings!

Ever since the first UFO sightings (shortly after the atomic bomb was dropped on Hiroshima) the government has been calling the UFOs a hoax. Yet all the time, Air Force intelligence was working frantically to discover where the UFOs were coming from!

SCIENTISTS DISCOVERED THE ALARMING TRUTH AND OUR GOVERNMENT HAS HIDDEN IT FROM YOU!

PROJECT BLUE BOOK was the government's code name for the top secret, multi-million dollar investigation that had FBI, CIA, special investigators, university scientists and the RAND Corporation (a government "think tank")—all working feverishly in a national security effort to trace the origins of the UFOs. The findings shocked even the scientists themselves because who could believe all this was just coincidence—

April 12, 1960 The National Science Foundation attempts to communicate with intelligent life in outer space using its giant radio transmitter at Green Bank, West Virginia. On the same day, a scientist reports seeing a UFO!

YOU GET ALL THIS

Complete case listings including date, location, and type of observer for 562 UFO sightings the government was not able to explain by any known earth phenomenon • 79 photos from official U.S. Government files • photos of UFOs being tracked on radar • a UFO photographed through an observatory telescope • sketches of UFO markings made by an eye witness • sketches of the crash site of a military aircraft believed to have come too close to a UFO • 12 official U.S. Government drawings of the basic types of UFOs • 5 graphs indicating intensity of sightings for each type of UFO • Graph indicating sightings by type of UFO • RAND Corporation calculations of UFO origins • Russian calculations of UFO capabilities and power requirements • Official Air Force UFO reporting procedures • 8 UFO Incident Maps, Charts, and Graphs • Special Report USAF ad hoc Committee • Project Blue Book Briefing for Air Defense Command • The Findings of Project Sign • A Summary of Project Grudge • And that's just the beginning . . .

November 22, 1963 President John F. Kennedy is assassinated in Dallas, exactly one month after observers at Cupar Fife, Scotland, report seeing a UFO!

July 28, 1964 The day after UFOs appear over Norwich, New York, scientists reveal that dozens of dangerous bacteria have developed a strange immunity to miracle drugs!

PROJECT BLUE BOOK FILES NOW PROVE THAT . . .

Early in 1966 while the U.S. is building up troop strength in Vietnam, UFO sightings increase throughout the world • UFO sightings precede the Detroit riots of 1967, the assassinations of Robert F. Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King, and the seizure of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo by North Korean communists • UFOs are sighted at the same time the Supreme Court shocks the conscience of the nation by letting down the floodgates on pornography, yet this is only part of the total picture you'll find when you read Project Blue Book!

READ THE SPINE-CHILLING FACTS IN THE GOVERNMENT'S OWN WORDS!

Only by reading Project Blue Book will you understand why the government kept saying PROJECT BLUE BOOK did not exist—until, after 30 years, it was finally forced to open its top secret files by relentless public demand. Read the Official U.S. Government findings for yourself and discover why Air Force Intelligence may believe UFOs are a deadly threat to life on Earth!

ity, getting traffic tickets, being crowded off the highway, being robbed, and even being bitten by a strange dog or stung by a bee. In all of them, we have the same circadian timing, and the logical reasons in the earlier incident. And in each of them, there was the necessity for an unconscious, distance-spanning form of communication (ESP).

PRESIDENT FORD'S COLLISION

Gerry Ford's limousine was struck broadside in the middle of an intersection in Hartford, Connecticut, in October 1975. A meaningless accident? Not when we check it out with Psycles. Although we weren't privy to the exact happenings within his family, we can bet money that either 37 hours before, or 3.2 days before, there was a serious confrontation with his son Jack over his public statements about smoking marijuana. It was in the papers.

We can almost hear the President's subconscious crying out... "Dammit! You're hurting my public image, running at cross-purposes to your Dad's best interests. I'd be doing better in my public relations if my own family weren't torpedoing me from the side!" It was a carload of teenagers, who came and hit him from the side, and the driver was a young guy about Jack's age.

Now, this took cooperation—to bring that about just right. They all had to be in communication, subconsciously. That's ESP.

We have been selling ourselves short, pretending to be ignorant, helpless and innocent of what happens to us, when all along, we've actually been engineering the most fantastic things, with skill, precision, and purpose. Reviewing our 2,000 cases, we are led to the conclusion that there must be some species of omniscience that guides all life, subconsciously. To recognize this, to search it out, and to become more aware of our inner motives—this has been stated again and again by sages and mystics as of the essence of self-liberation.

One of the best ways of using Psycles for our own greater health and happiness, is by keeping a diary. Each night, before retiring, jot down the day's events with their approximate times. Note also the troubles of any sort. This, then, becomes a guide for back-tracking, whenever we wish to explore and solve actual problems.

Although Psycles will still have to go through the standard scientific process of experimental testing and statistical analysis, we need not wait for that before actually putting it to use. The method is so simple, and so harmless to try out, that its benefits should not wait. Much anxiety can be relieved by discovering the why of our troubles. And besides—you may solve some of your problems! □ sents the shape of the pyramid. It has been found that this symbol actually produces the same energy as the pyramid form, making the physical pyramid unnecessary.

The discovery of Supersensonics has been researched by means of the same faculties which you can also train. With the addition of magnets, spirals and a special powdered element the coffer exactly duplicates the forces playing upon the sarcophagus which the ancients placed in the King's Chamber in the Great Pyramid.

There are three pyramid energies in any pyramid, regardless of size, which come from the wave-field of the pyramid shape itself. The positive green life-giving energy comes off the top of the capstone, while flowing downward from the top is negative green energy which dehydrates both organic and inorganic objects, including the human body. Also present beneath the pyramid is the Pi-ray, which flows from the top at a particular angle that was known to the ancient Egyptians.

The Pi-ray is the life-preserving energy that was used to keep mummies moist for centuries. The ancient Egyptians who understood these spiralling psycho-physical forces, placed the mummy coffer in the Great Pyramid directly in the path of this mysterious ray at a certain angle from the capstone.

More on pyramids, psychotronic devices and the coffer can be read in Rays from the Capstone by Christopher Hills, University of the Trees, Box 644, Boulder Creek, Calif. 95006. □

- one mid-western housewife, whose family was hard hit by inflation, used the great Money-Spinning Ritual and turned $5 into $50,000—twice!
- another woman, who lived with agonizing kidney and liver problems for 25 years, turned to the secret Disease-Banishing Ritual and a week later was told by an astonished specialist that she was completely cured!
- one poverty-stricken man accidentally discovered the Knowledge-Unknown Spell and the next day received $100,000 plus an incredible income for the rest of his life!
- another man started out with $20 and the Good-Luck-Is-Mine Ritual, and walked away from the track at the end of the day with over $400,000!

The ultimate power is literally at your fingertips—power to bring exactly what you want. Says Frater Malak, "Somewhere in the pages of this book is a spell or ritual that will change any and all parts of your life into what you wish them to be. Try it—you're going to be surprised, delighted and blessed beyond your wildest dreams with health, wealth and happiness!"

"Vacations In The Sun At Exclusive Resorts, My Own Private Plane, A Swimming Pool, A Yacht, Servants—I Never Have To Lift A Finger Anymore!"

That's the kind of life Christine L. leads, but it wasn't always so good. She grew up in a dingy tenement building with an alcoholic father who barely supplied her with enough money for clothes. One day, while searching through the pockets of an old coat she discovered a crumpled piece of paper with the miraculous Gold-Creating Ritual written on it—Christine's life has never been the same!

She decided to follow the hand-written instructions and minutes later learned that she was to receive a $500 share of an anonymous donation. The very next day her lottery ticket was picked, winning her $150,000! A few months later she sold her share of a business she had invested in for just under $1,000,000! Today the money just keeps rolling in!

And when you start using these amazing spells and rituals you will see the same kind of results raining down on you in a veritable deluge of good fortune—riches, happiness, vibrant health, secret knowledge and supreme power fly to you irresistibly, as a needle is pulled to a magnet!

Just Take A Look At How These Contented Miracle-Workers Have Used This Potent Magic To Improve Their Lives:

• Betty J. used to suffer from anemia, excruciating back pains, a childhood shoulder injury, blinding migraines and spreading arthritis. After dragging herself from clinic to clinic, the doctors all told her she was incurable and must learn to accept it. Not Betty. She discovered the supreme Back-To-Health Ritual and in practically no time at all was bursting with good health and vitality. Says Betty, "I've come back to a new life and my relatives are amazed!"

• Graham D., a small-time guitar player who had made it only as far as dark little clubs and small dance halls, was just about to give up trying to make it big in show business. Tired and hungry, he managed to learn about the thrilling secrets of the I-Can-Wow-Them Ritual from a top recording star whose initials cannot even be revealed. Literally overnight, Graham signed his first contract—for $1,000,000—and that was only a fraction of what he received later on!

• Floyd Y. had used magic before and was constantly seeking to help others as well as himself with the marvelous powers it generated. When news reached him that the 8-year old son of a wealthy oil tycoon had been kidnapped, he decided to use the See-Where Ritual to come up with some answers. Floyd saw in his mind that the boy was alive and also where the kidnapers had taken him—he even told the police what was written on the ransom note that was about to be sent! The kidnapers were quickly arrested and Floyd received a $100,000 reward for his information. Not bad for simply working the See-Where Ritual!

Now YOU are going to name it and IT SHALL BE SO! With this Mystic Grimoire in your possession, the benevolent Cosmic Beings will obey your every command. You can accomplish exactly what you desire and nothing can stand in your way!

It's your turn to discover the awesome magical powers that helped unattractive Joseph W. to make a beautiful, vivacious girl fall madly in love with him, or that turned William K.'s almost-bankrupt business into a million dollar operation—along with dozens of others who have performed miracles restoring health, building fortunes and winning the love mates of their choice!

"Such Knowledge Must Be Spread Around! Work It For Yourself And See Its Powerful Results!"

That's what Victor G. advises, and you'll probably be saying the same thing in a short while. Victor used one of the special health-returning rituals to completely cure a disease that was causing excruciating pain and permanent exhaustion. Today he lives a life that's full and satisfying—he's one person who knows the power of magic!

And so is Evelyn P., who went from a life of downtrodden misery to one of ultimate luxury. The day after performing the dazzling Ticket-Come-To-Me Ritual, a complete stranger walked up to her and put a state lottery ticket in her hand. Even Evelyn thought it might be coincidence, but when she won the grand prize of $500,000 she had no doubts about how it happened. Whenever she finds herself running short of cash she just performs the ritual again and lets her chauffeur take care of the details.

Just remember, results are what this thrilling wizard's handbook has to offer you. Results that will make others yours to command, bring money cascading to you in glittering showers, revitalize you with vibrant good health and vanquish your enemies forever!

Best of all, using this magic is as simple and easy as tying your shoelace—and just as mechanical. The correct gestures, materials and words will transmit the invisible commands of your spells and rituals—and every last thing you need to know is contained in this book!

which make the unconscious conscious," maintains Fabricius. Around the age of 55-60 the unconscious returns again to the birth theme—going back even further this time, though, to relive conception and embryonic life in the womb.

Fabricius sees a whole host of unconscious manifestations in art and everyday life. In the Norwegian expressionist painter Edvard Munch's famous painting "The Cry," he sees an obvious expression of primordial birth angst, with the fjord in the background representing the vagina, and the howling white embryo-like head in the foreground going through the painful process of birth—entry into life. Fabricius sees unconscious symbolism also in Grimm's "Little Red Riding Hood" fairy tale, where the wolf swallows Granny and Red Riding Hood takes on the proportions of a pregnant woman. When the hunter appears later and cuts open the wolf, a birth—or rebirth—takes place. Here a vital place in the individuation process has been completed. Similarly birth or rebirth angst is seen in popular cartoon strips, where monsters and dragons with terrifying massive gaping jaws abound. The huge popularity of the film Jaws Fabricius also puts down to our unconscious birth anxiety, with the indented jaws representing the vagina and the horrors of birth.

In the United States, Dr. Arthur Janov and other Primal Therapists have been guiding patients to re-experience their early traumas. It has been found that many people do find themselves reliving their own birth at some point during the therapy.

Numerous other psychologists have been doing research that tends to support these findings. Buried memories of our birth may be our most important key to self-knowledge. □

In a recent issue of a science publication, a writer stated his firm conviction: "If you see a phenomenon, you can explain it on the basis of what you already know. If you cannot explain it, you did not see it."

At this point we will not hazard a guess as to why certain parts of the cow are preferred. Perhaps "something" has a different way of getting some of the same information that we are trying to extract from our Mars lander. It has been suggested that certain of the items removed from the animal are done so only to mislead investigators and create false assumptions by those who are eager to dismiss the whole thing.

Although this incident has not given us the answer yet, it has left us with more firm information than any that I have been privileged to see.

* It was possible to measure and map the whole space and time sequence of events.

* We know definitely that the parts were removed surgically, and we know which parts were taken.

* We know the time of day that it happened.

* The "footprints" were measured, photographed and roughly checked for pressure.

* The landing area was measured, photographed and checked for radiation.

* The reaction of other animals was visible and noted.

* Peculiar flying objects were seen nearby on the day and night that it happened.

* We know that a two-month-old calf disappeared.

* No human signs (cigarette butts, gum wrappers, matches, Kleenex, Coke cans, or tracks) were visible within miles.

* Over a dozen people, including State and Indian officials, saw and verified the facts.

Yes, we just missed the party and we didn't get to see the visitors, but we did get there in time to have a very good look at the unique litter they left.

As Sergeant Bell of the Sheriff's office in Colorado Springs told me, "We would like to think this particular kind of incident is being done by humans, but a Colorado cattleman's association has had an $18,000 reward offer for more than a year. That's a lot of bounty money. Most people who would do this kind of a thing would also sell their own brother for less. There have been no takers."

Perhaps Sheriff Graves of Logan County, Colorado, has the right answer. He is another officer who is eager to solve the problem, and he jokingly said there's no real problem; it's just "Bionic Coyotes!" □

How to make others secretly DO YOUR BIDDING with the astonishing power of AUTOMATIC MIND COMMAND!

Here's how to get started in just 3 minutes . . .

Dear Friend:

New power is about to leap into your life . . . an astonishing way to control the thoughts and actions of others without their knowing it . . . no matter how much they may not want to follow your instructions, they carry them out to a "T" every time!

With "Automatic Mind-Command" you'll be running the show. Make a wish, turn on The Power, and watch those around you drop everything and do what they're told.

And nobody will even have the faintest idea that you're behind it all. That's the beauty of "Automatic Mind-Command"—you are the only one who knows what's going on—you alone decide when things should start . . . stop . . . change around.

CONTROL YOUR FRIENDS OR STRANGERS!

You can use it to control your friends or strangers, one at a time or in large numbers, at any time, and ANY WAY YOU LIKE.

For example: You go into a bank for a loan. The credit man smiles but says "Sorry. You don't qualify for a loan right now; however, if there's anything else I can do for you, I'd be glad to . . ." Then in a flash, his tune changes when you let loose your "Automatic Mind-Command." He continues, "In fact, we'll be glad to give you $1,000 more than you asked for. And any time you want more, just see me personally! Thank you so much for coming by!"

Impossible? You'll be doing things like that every day without even thinking about it. As soon as you need something done, it's done! The people who do these things for you will remember what they did, but not why!

FUN POWER—TOO!

You can have a lot of fun with this power, too. Look how Evelyn C. used it at work . . . One day, while sorting papers, her boss angrily inquired why she had to make so much noise—and scolded her in front of everybody. Evelyn said nothing, but smiled to herself—for she had just turned on the "Automatic Mind-Command . . ." Suddenly the boss apologized for being a scoundrel. "Please . . . I'm sorry," he said, in front of everybody. "I'd like to make it up to you!" And he told her what a wonderful person she was! When Evelyn turned the power off, the boss just stood there with an open mouth, wondering what made him say all those things.

Think what this power can mean in your life. You need money . . . and it's there! You want some affection . . . you'll be smothered! You want peace and quiet . . . the world stands still!

NO MORE SECRETS WILL BE KEPT FROM YOU!

People who think they can hold back the facts will meet their master in you! You just fire a little "Automatic Mind-Command" at them, and they'll sing like meadowlarks . . . Nona J. was at her wits' end when she tried to find the money she'd put aside to pay the rent—it was gone. A frantic search through the house turned up nothing. There was only one possibility left . . . she asked Billy. A look of surprise crossed his face. No—he hadn't seen any money. But Nona didn't believe him, and started using "Automatic Mind-Command" to find out if he was telling the truth. Suddenly Billy reached into his pocket and took out a roll of money. After giving her the money, he acted as if nothing had happened!

Think how many secrets must be hidden all around you! Things your spouse won't tell . . .

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Scott Reed is one of the nation's leading mind-power experts. Presently engaged as a writer on developments in the behavioral sciences, his revelations about the unseen world of the mind have been read by millions. A graduate of the City University of New York, his own life is living proof of "Automatic Mind-Command."

A Master Researcher, Metaphysician, and Psychic Advisor, he has helped countless men and women find true happiness. He has the rare ability of writing clearly and simply so that even the most profound Truths can be plainly understood by anyone.

your neighbors won't say . . . your boss keeps quiet about . . . ALL BROUGHT INTO THE OPEN JUST FOR YOU!! They'll tell you all their secrets, but they won't know why.

Hold on now, because I haven't told you yet about the best part of "Automatic Mind-Command."

You may have to bolt your door to keep people from overwhelming you with love, gifts, favors, rewards! Perfect strangers will be walking up to you and asking, "How are you? Can I do anything for you?" They will never suspect that "Automatic Mind-Command" is impelling them to like you, please you . . . and automatically want to help you.

INSTANTLY YOUR LIFE IS CHANGED!

At first, I couldn't believe it. And yet I know this to be true from my own personal experience . . . time after time. For example . . .

A STRANGER HANDS HIM $500—Harry G., a low-paid factory worker, wanted to start a business of his own. All he needed was cash to get started, but no one would give him the money. Finally someone told him how to use "Automatic Mind-Command"—and Harry laughingly tried it. A short time later, a perfect stranger handed him $500—saying he'd heard about Harry's plan, and was eager to help him get started!

Unusual? Not at all . . . things happen every day with "Automatic Mind-Command."

RECEIVES NEEDED CASH QUICKLY!—Mrs. Thelma J. reports, "I needed money badly." Her husband hadn't worked in months, and their savings were running out. Then she discovered "Automatic Mind-Command"—and turned on the power immediately! The next morning she received a package containing several hundred dollars from friends and well-wishers she never knew existed!

In all history, few indeed are the ones who have recognized "Automatic Mind-Command." The rest, who do not use it, pay the penalty in suffering, wishing, hoping, dreaming . . . Now I say to you: Wish no more!

HOW TO GET STARTED IN JUST 3 MINUTES!

Minute #1—Fill out the No-Risk Coupon and mail it to us.

Minute #2—When you receive a package in the mail from us, open it.

Minute #3—Lift the front cover, and let the secret feed itself in to your mind automatically. After that, sit back, relax—and see how this power can work for you. It's as simple as that! It won't cost you one penny unless it works!

IN THAT INSTANT, YOU WILL ALREADY BE ABLE TO USE "AUTOMATIC MIND-COMMAND" FOR THE FIRST TIME . . . for money, love, healing, protection, and much more!

Imagine the thrill—after a lifetime of "scrimping" and "penny-pinching"—to see a tidal wave of riches rolling into your life from every direction—pay raises, bonuses, gifts, legacies . . . a rising tide of good fortune!

She dropped what she was doing, excused herself and hurried to visit him. Arriving in record time—she hugged and kissed him, explaining that "something" told her he wanted and needed her, and what could she do for him!

Now here's a most fantastic use of "Automatic Mind-Command"—one I'm sure you'll agree proves that here is a power which staggers the imagination!

For example, cases of health-symptoms relieved with "Automatic Mind-Command!" John C. reports that his hearing now seems normal again! Warren W.'s blurred eyesight cleared, sharpened, and now seems normal! Lydia E. says her arthritic symptoms of soreness and stiffness in the fingers were relieved when nothing else seemed to help, and Mrs. M. S. was surprised when her leg pain disappeared. Bella S., who complained of "ulcerative colitis" with stomach cramps and diarrhea, obtained fast relief . . . And others report relief from complaints of high blood pressure, heart symptoms, "migraine" headaches, weakness, dizziness, fatigue, and more.

Beyond Reality 61

Unusual Universe

By Curt Sutherly

How many times have you overheard your neighbor, Joe Cool, remark about "the lousy weather?" Pretty often, right? Especially during the recent arctic winter! Well, perhaps it goes without saying that the seasons simply aren't what they once were.

Even before the already memorable winter of 1977, there were increasing signs of climate change taking place across the face of the planet. Fortean researchers have noted these changes with increasing alarm, and have speculated that perhaps a new ice age is developing. For example: In areas of Eastern United States during 1975-76 there was virtually no spring season at all! As early as mid-February the temperatures soared from the mid-30's range to an almost overnight 70-80 degree temperature range.

In my own home town, air conditioners were turned on unseasonably early, creating a demand from power utilities for more electrical energy. Jackets were thrown aside, shirts with long sleeves became shirts with short sleeves, and heavy breathing and sweating faces were abruptly familiar. Only the young fared well, seeming not to mind the dramatic climate change, and their shouts of joy could be heard everywhere.

Summer had arrived without a preceding spring, and for many an uncertain fear blossomed with the greenery. The change was too rapid, too extreme. Yet after a few weeks of continuous changes in the weather, the momentary fears vanished, and the air conditioners hummed on while the residents shrugged their shoulders. Today, people are again shrugging their shoulders—but this time about the bitter cold winter of 1977.

Climatology as a science is in its infancy, therefore any attempt by climatologists to report the future and current environmental conditions of our planet must be taken with a grain of salt. However, the following facts are known:

Since 1940 the temperature of the earth's northern hemisphere has been steadily declining; this is followed by a period of some of the warmest weather to occur in the past 1,000 years. 2) Mankind has been further complicating the issue by transferring large, but widely-scattered quantities of heat into the atmosphere at the same time that the natural cooling trend is taking place. 3) A recent breakthrough in scientific understanding has suggested that volcanic activity and periods of glacial activity (i.e., periodic ice ages) tend to go hand in hand. 4) Another recent scientific understanding notes, that as our solar system travels across the galaxy, it encounters regions of dust which help trigger changes in the natural weather of our planet.

In order to clarify these four areas of concern, an examination is required. At the same time we'll try to understand how this might relate to radical changes in seasonal conditions, as previously described.

THE LITTLE ICE AGE

Since 1850, the earth's northern hemisphere has entertained some of the best agricultural weather to occur in many centuries. That is, until 1940, after which climatologists began charting a slight, but steady decline in overall (global) temperatures. In the past 37 years, a change of about 0.6 degrees has been recorded, and although this appears insignificant at the moment, such may not be the case in another 37 years if the process continues as is.

Prior to 1850, the land masses of our planet experienced a harsh cold spell which is thought to have started during the 15th century. This era has become known as "the little ice age."

Statistically this is all very fine, but one might wonder how documented cooling trends could possibly create conditions in which spring is shortened or eliminated completely, and advance the summer season. The best answer to this would be "admittedly" an educated guess. However, some climatologists believe that as the cooling trend advances, summers become very hot and eventually also very short. Naturally the spring season would follow suit and a point might be reached during which spring and summer are both one and same.

We can take this point concerning ice ages a step further by noting the comments of British writer Richard E. Mooney (author of Gods of Air and Darkness, Stein and Day, New York, 1975), who believes there never was an early period of glacial activity. Instead, Mooney suggests that perhaps mankind is now living through an ice age. Whether or not his remarks are solidly based is difficult to say, but they are worth considering

COMPLICATING THE ISSUE

While mother nature seems to be doing her best to bring about one set of conditions on our planet, mankind has been doing its utmost to create environmental changes of his own.

With the advent of the so-called Industrial Revolution (1760-1790), a slight increase in man-made heat began to saturate the earth's atmosphere. This heat transfer went largely unnoticed and at first had no apparent effect on the natural order of things. However, technology continued its dramatic rate of expansion and with the dawning of the Atomic Age, man's need for and use of energy had stepped up similarly. This in turn resulted in a greater amount of thermal pollution (heat) entering the atmosphere.

Today, large concrete cities on the verge of bankruptcy sprawl across the face of the planet. Airport runways and national highway systems push hundreds of thousands of square miles of asphalt across the globe. One almost need not be reminded of the countless small communities and rural roadways scattered everywhere. What has this to do with anything? Well consider this:

These many miles of asphalt and concrete surfaces act as a conductor/accumulator of thermal energy. Long after the warming sun has set, the asphalt surfaces, continue to radiate heat collected during the day. These same surfaces also accumulate a great deal of thermal discharge from large factories and other industrial facilities. What this comes down to is a possible countering of the natural cooling trend climatologists are observing. Of course, man's thermal pollution is widely scattered and its true effects on nature are unknown. At best, we can expect an increase in the complication of events already described.

The recent stir created by aerosol sprays and their potential threat to the Earth's ozone layer only adds to this complication. Environmentalists fear that aerosols accumulating in the atmosphere will eventually create a massive breakdown in the ozone layer. The ozone layer acts as a protective shield against harmful ultraviolet rays from the sun. Some predict that, combined with automobile and industrial pollutants drifting overhead, the increase in ultraviolet radiation would at best make for a "greenhouse effect" here on Earth. The more severe critics believe that without the full protection afforded by the ozone, thousands will come down with skin cancer and the entire ecological balance of the planet may be ruined, starting with the microscopic plant life off which larger life forms feed.

Two separate research teams operating under the direction of (1) the National Center for Atmosphere Research (NCAR) and (2) the National Oceanic and Atmosphere Administration (NOAA) has pretty well confirmed that some damage has already been done to the ozone layer. Meanwhile, the federal government appears hamstrung over these matters, largely because of the influence of such firms as DuPont (a prime manufacturer of aerosols) which insist that more testing is needed. As a matter of record, both the NCAR and NOAA research teams are carrying out additional tests.

Actually, all of this is ironic when one considers that if not for the brief 1940's warming trend which stimulated man's agricultural and industrial output and thereby his population, none of the above would be of any great concern.

CHANGING CLIMATES AND VOLCANOES

In the Feb. 14th, 1975 issue of science University of Rhode Island oceanography professor James P. Kennett and graduate student Robert C. Thunell reported significant relationships between re-occurring periods of volcanic activity and natural cooling trends. According to their findings, which came about as a result of studying the volcanic ash content in "deep drilled" earth core samples, there is an apparent increase in volcanic activity during periods of "rapidly oscillating climate conditions related to glacial-interglacial cycles in the Northern Hemisphere." In simpler terms, everytime there's a peak in volcanic activity, there is a similar peak in extreme cold weather which meaning a potential ice age is developing.

However, no one at this stage of research is certain if intensified volcanic activity (which the planet presently seems to be experiencing) is a symptom of a pending ice age or if the reverse is true. Some climatologists have speculated that when volcanoes increase their activity over a prolonged period (possibly several thousands years) the resulting dust and ash thrown into the atmosphere tends to block out large amounts of solar radiation. This in turn may cause the environment to cool down. Other climatologists suggest that the cooling trend is already in motion when the volcanic upsurge begins.

In the February 15, 1975 issue of Science News, a suggestion is given as to how an ice age might possibly create an increase in volcanic eruptions. The journal cites a hypothesis presented by R.K. Mathews, who says that moderately rapid changes in sea level due to an oncoming or receding ice age may upset the balance of the earth's mantle. This in turn would create a large degree of sub-surface stress which would be released in the way of volcanic activity.

However, if this latter suggestion is correct, it still leaves us with the question: "What triggers the climate changes?"

CLIMATE CHANGE AND SPACE DUST

Over the years numerous scientists have reported that changes in climate may be the result of dust falling into the sun. Among those who have speculated this theory are Fred Hoyle, R.H. Lyttleton, Harlow Shapley, and most recently W.H. McCrea, an astronomer with England's University of Sussex.

While the advocates of the volcanic dust theory believe that particles in the atmosphere block out solar radiation, the space-dust fans follow a different line of reasoning.

According to McCrea, the solar system, which is believed to revolve around the center of the Milky Way Galaxy once every 500 million years, encounters dust lanes which lie relatively close to the spiral arms of the galaxy (think of a hypnotist's wheel and its radiating arms to envision the general appearance of the galaxy). While passing through these space lanes, enormous amounts of dust are pulled into the sun, causing it to burn with greater intensity if only temporarily. With the sun burning more brightly, large quantities of solar radiation are discharged, which in turn results in the creation of a new ice age, so McCrea believes.

To support his thesis, the Sussex astronomer has copious notes and figures available, and at this point no one appears to be disagreeing with him, at least not to any extreme. However, only time will tell if McCrea is truly correct.

WHAT DOES IT ALL MEAN?

To this point we have reviewed the presently understood scientific information pertaining to a possibly altering climate. What does it all mean? Unfortunately each reader must evaluate that for him or herself. At this time, little is known to determine if mankind faces an ice age or if the cooling trend which the northern hemisphere is now undergoing is to be of short duration. In addition, one must consider man's ability to complicate the issue, as earlier described. There is yet another factor deliberately withheld from the reader until now—which is this:

It appears that while the northern hemisphere is experiencing a gradual cooling, the southern hemisphere is undergoing just the opposite sort of transformation. In the July 30, 1975 issue of Nature, researchers M.J. Salinger and J.M. Gunn from the University of Otago in New Zealand, noted that extended study of climate conditions at ten locations in New Zealand pointed to an increase in temperature rather than decrease.

So, the whole ball of wax is further distorted, at least until the infant-science of climatology can grow a bit and provide proven answers. Until that time and as long as the sun continues to rise and set, humanity's future probably won't be too severe. Nevertheless, taking things for granted is something our species is good at, the weather being no exception. □ the ground at a distance of no more than 500 yards from the encamped soldiers. The men said that the second object shone with a bright violet light and that it too had several red flashing lights.

Sgt. Armando Valdez, the squad leader ordered his men to load their weapons, and to take up positions while he set out to investigate. The men reported that Valdez "just vanished" after walking no more than 25 feet toward the hovering UFO. Fifteen minutes later Valdez reappeared with a wild expression on his face and passed out.

He awoke several hours later in a semi-trance. It was noticed that, although it was 7 a.m., his watch showed 4:30—the exact time he "vanished". The soldiers also said that the date of his watch had advanced five days, and although Valdez was clean shaven when he left the group, he had about a week's growth of beard when he reappeared!

When he started to regain consciousness, his men reported that his first word were: "You do not know who you are, nor where we come from, but we will soon return." Questioned later, Valdez said that he did not recall anything that happened during the 15 minutes he was missing. Some skeptics feel that the soldiers saw a desert mirage, but the fact remains that his watch did show an advance in time, and later reports also indicated that the area where the object landed shows some evidence that a mirage was not the answer. □

Recently, a group of psychic researchers spent a night in the haunted schoolhouse. They came out convinced that something very strange and unusual was taking place within its walls.

The Fredonia, New York Normal School burned to the ground on December 14, 1900. Six women students as well as a janitor, trapped within its walls, were killed in the blaze. The school's gymnasium was the only portion of the building which survived the fire. Two years later, on Dec. 25, 1902, the rebuilt building was completed.

Today, rumors persist that the site is haunted by the ghosts of the flame's victims. Students today maintain they hear voices and organ music being piped through the walls in the hallways. Some even complained of being followed by footsteps along the dark corridors.

Recently, a group of psychic research students spent a night in the Fredonia Normal School. They came out convinced that the structure is indeed haunted. After spending seven hours inside its walls, taking photographs with infrared film, and armed with tape recorders to pick up the slightest sounds the students concluded that "psychic activity was definitely rampant there."

THE HAUNTED SCHOOLHOUSE

By Gary Parsons

One member of the group, Toby Hewitt, of Fredonia, said that a fellow member had seen a young female face in a window in a second story room. Others in the group, heard moaning sounds and singing. Another member said he walked around a corridor and saw fire engulf floor and walls. He closed his eyes in bewilderment, and when he opened them again, everything was quite normal.

Said Miss Hewitt: "I heard a girl walking but saw nothing. We heard footsteps close by, and no one was there. We also saw a male figure in the balcony of a lecture hall, but when we went closer, it was gone." Others have complained of odd sensations while in the building—rappings, sounds of several pairs of feet running, cries and moans.

Psychic investigations have revealed nothing to explain this phenomena. However, students' pets, brought into the building for a pet show recently, acted very strangely while there. Outside the building, they appeared normal again. □
