GOD, MAN AND SCIENCE

In air and ground, men of Science found
Atoms of energy
Of helium, nitrogen, uranium, hydrogen
In which God holds the key.

Man seeks to fly to worlds on high
Into infinity;
By spaceship to travel, the secrets unravel,
The forces of gravity.

Of worlds terrestrial, of glories celestial
New regions to explore,
Men can't comprehend worlds without end
Beyond eternity's door.

His eye can vision flaming worlds in collision
Explosions of meteorites,
High in the atmosphere, beyond the stratosphere,
Display their brilliant lights.

Man's eye can see thru astronomy,
Stars in their galaxies shine;
The auroral display, the giant Milky Way,
The works of God's hand, divine.

Eyes of faith can see, immortality
Beyond this veil of flesh.
Mankind shall rise through starry skies
Eternal life possess. —Alice Dietrich

Isaiah 40:26: Lift up your eyes on high and behold Who hath created these things that bringeth out their host by number; He calleth them all by names by the greatness of His might, for that He is strong in power; not one faileth.

Daniel 12:4: But thou, O Daniel, shut up the words and seal the book even to the time of the end; many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased.

Roaring Oradell Welcome Wows Astronaut Schirra

"Wow!"

That was Astronaut Wal: to the welcome his hometo him today.

It was the first time in 20 years that the 39-year-old orbiting American returned to the scene of his childhood — and the little town of 8,000 people gave him a hero's welcome.

The 15-car motorcade began in Hackensack and wended its way past 40,000 wildly cheering Jerseyites lining the route from that city through River Edge and into Oradell.

At times the exuberant crowd shattered police lines in an effort to pat the handsome astronaut on the back as he rode in a bright red convertible, top down, with his blonde wife, Josephine, and their children, Suzanne, 5, and Walter III, 12.

American flags broke out in the town only a few miles from the George Washington Bridge. Two brass bands oompahed the hero's homecoming after his six-orbit flight around the earth on Oct. 3.

"Welcome Home Wally," read placards the crowd held above its head and the music was "When Johnny Comes Marching Home"—except folk sang, "When Wally Comes Flying Home, Hurrah, Schirra!"

The 12-man Oradell police force was backed up by 150 National Guardsmen and 150 State Police. They were needed

Cmdr. Schirra was a half-hour behind schedule when he pulled into Oradell at 10:40 a. m. and then was taken to the bleacher-lined football field behind River Dell High School.

RECEIVES AWARD

There he was awarded the Distinguished Service Award by Space Agency Administrator James Webb.

A message from President Kennedy was read to him. The President said:

"I would like to add my warmest congratulations and the thanks of our nation. Your flight was an exceptional achievement. That we are climbing back up the ladder is apparent in the matchless performance of our most recent flight. We bow to no one in the quality of our space team—their devoted and determined efforts will, in this decade, restore our leadership."

During the motorcade through Oradell, a detour was made so the astronaut could see again where he lived as a boy at 371 Maple st.

PARENTS THERE

In the sedan behind his, rode the astronaut's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Schirra Sr. of San Diego, California.

Comdr. Schirra seemed quiet, though he acknowledged waves from townsfolk. Born in Hackensack, he grew up in Oradell.

He was home.

FLYING SAUCERS..... Are Not Real

By Thomas E. Wade

I can only say this as a matter of opinion of course.. But I have been reading stories off and on for several years now, Some have reported happenings that point to them as being a real space ship of some sort of course ...Some people have made claims of meeting crews of flying saucers...and what else?,.. But on the other hand most such stories point to the idea that they are nothing more than Projections.

I have read where people have seen such objects as horses and cows and other different objects in the form of some light of various colors, Which along with my own experience points out that there must be a space ship anchored out in space somewhere, and that they must have a projecting machine, and with the use of such machines they can cast any object that they may have the machine set for.

I have also read reports where people in airplanes have attempted to catch a flying saucer, or to get near enough to it to tell more about it, But when they seemed to get so near to it it would move away from them like a flash and station itself in another place, anyway after several attempts of the crew of the airplane to catch the flying saucer had proven frustrate they gave up the chase.

No doubt in my mind that there was a space ship anchored somewhere in space that was responsible for the flying saucer...also the crew of the space ship could see the airplane in pursuit of the flying saucer, and they were playing a little game of touch and tag with the airplane, Only there were no tags or touches, This could be demonstrated by using a small mirror to cast a sun ray...Spot of Light...and then tell someone to catch it, or to put their hand on it, Then give the mirror a slight angle with a twist of the wrist and see the spot dart off to some other place.

Fred took off in his Piper Cub and climbed gradually into the sky above. Then suddenly he saw what looked like a shining lozenge.

PLEASE! Listen to me! I have a story . . . it's an incredible one, sure . . . but it's true . . . every word. I swear it!

I'm Fred Reagan. Remember the headline in the newspapers last July about the guy who was found in a farmer's field beside the wreckage of a small airplane? That was me.

No one could understand how I had escaped unhurt . . . not even bruised . . . while my plane had been completely demolished. I told them how it happened, and they wouldn't listen.

The CAA inspectors said the plane must have dropped from several thousand feet. I know it did. The motor buried itself six feet in the ground. And I didn't get a scratch. I told them the straight story . . . every detail . . . and they looked at me as though I were crazy. They wouldn't believe me. You must believe me!

IT WAS a hot day . . . awful hot. Those clouds looked so cool . . . inviting. I took off in my Piper Cub and soon I was climbing. I passed the lower clouds and climbed up and up until my little plane wouldn't go any higher. I leveled off in the cool, clean air and glanced at my altimeter. Almost eight thousand feet. I felt good.

Suddenly I saw it. It looked like a bright, dazzling lozenge in the distance. Slowly it grew larger. Then I realized what it was . . . had to be . . . a flying saucer! I knew because I'd read descriptions in magazines and papers.

I watched it grow . . . tried to judge its size and distance but couldn't. It was too brilliant and had no definite shape. It looked like . . . well . . . like a glowing lozenge, that's all. I banked my plane and headed for it. Why? I don't know exactly. I think I had a funny idea I could chase it . . . capture it . . . solve the mystery once and for all.

Good Moos! — Milk Without Cows!

Milk is now being made — without cows!

And it will be on the market by the end of the year. The milk is made from green-leaved plants — cabbage leaves, pea pods and even weeds.

The process has been developed by scientists at Watford, England.

Cows eat greens to produce milk within themselves.

The scientists just bypass the cows and extract milk directly from the greens.

The greens are mashed in water warmed under controlled conditions until the protein is separated.

Vitamins, minerals, vegetable fats and carbohydrates are then added.

They've been able to get rid of this milk's greenish color.

Soon, they hope to eliminate its slight vegetable flavor which makes it taste funny.

When that's done, the man-made milk will go on sale in liquid, powder and condensed forms.

LOOK!

The flying saucer, coming full tilt, could not avoid a crash with Reagan.

Too late I saw it was coming right at me!

Frantically I threw my plane into a tight, diving turn but it hit me anyway. It hit me, I tell you! I heard the ripping and felt the shock as it tore away the tail . . . and then I was falling. Somehow I was thrown clear. I could see the plane with its motor still running, diving with me. The tip of the wing slanted by as it fell. The ground rushed to meet me . . . the wind hit me in the face, choking . . . blinding. And me with no parachute! I knew this was it . . . the end.

Then the wind stopped! My panic kept me from realizing what had happened, but suddenly I knew . . .

had stopped falling. The checkerboard of farms and fields remained motionless below. Far below I could see the wreckage of the plane dropping away. But I floated there . . . like a human cloud, thousands of feet in the air.

HOW long I couldn't tell. Time had stopped for everything, for the earth, the sky . . . for everything but me. I was afraid to move lest I disturb the mysterious balance which held me there. Then I tried to turn to look upward. I couldn't . . . I moved my muscles but my body didn't . . . couldn't . . . respond.

Then I felt it, a sticky, clinging force which penetrated my clothing, my flesh, pushed through to my brain . . . and grasped me like a huge, invisible suction cup. As my mind groped for some rational explanation, the force grew stronger and more compelling, and I felt myself rising, sucked upward by that inexplicable something.

I was being pulled upward faster and faster. For one hysterical moment I felt that life had turned backward, that a whimsical fate had turned my film of life in reverse, that soon the reel would stop and run forward once more to continue my plunge toward destruction.

I felt, before I saw, the monstrous, brilliant object above. It loomed, bulged around me, swallowed me. And I realized the truth. I was where no human being had ever been before.

I was inside a flying saucer!

The rest was a nightmare. The room . . . if one could call it that . . . was completely dark. The thing which grasped me held me suspended over the round opening through which I had been lifted. Outside, and many thousands of feet below, I could see the countryside. It looked friendly but far away.

SPACEMEN FAIL IN POLITICS---------

The Triamphant return to the study of the Flying Saucers again by Kenneth Arnold...the man who coined the word Flying Saucers in 194p and close associate of Ray Palmer, ran in the Idaho Republican Primary for Lt. Governor. He lost by a considerable margin.
Gabriel Green, Editor of AFSCA World Report. He ran for U.S. Senator in the Calif. Democratic primaries. New Deal Comc- and-get-it lefty also lost by a wide margin. Mr. Green is well liked by the U F O readers so we suggest----save your money and keep away from the politicians. He also lost to Pres. John F. Kennedy.

My eyes were becoming adjusted to the darkness and I looked around in the dim light which entered through the hatch. I began to make out objects, grotesque shapes which weren't familiar . . . which I couldn't recognize. Then I noticed three which were distinct from the others. They were next to the hatch below me and glistened weirdly in the light. They seemed about three feet high. I remember telling myself, almost hysterically, that they looked like huge stalks of metallic asparagus.

Then one of the stalks moved!

I screamed and must have fainted because the next thing I knew I was awakened by a smell, stimulating but pleasant. It seemed to be a mixture of a whole florist shop and the funny odor the air has after a violent electric storm . . . ozone, I think it's called. It was both stimulating and soothing. It cleared my head and at the same time dissolved my fear. Finally I dared to open my eyes. The room was dark except for a pinpoint of blue light some distance away. I couldn't tell how far.

Then I realized I was lying on my back on something infinitely soft. I moved my hand, felt it, then quickly pulled my hand away. It was as cold as metal but resisted the pressure of my fingers as though it were alive.

STUNNED, I lay there . . . maybe a minute or an hour . . . waiting, listening to that distant pulsating hum. There was a click like a switch being turned on.

"How do you do, man."

At the sudden voice I nearly screamed again. It spoke perfect English but was hollow and muffled as though it came through a loudspeaker. It continued in an expressionless monotone.

"Do not reply. Only I shall speak. We from outside your planet regret extremely the unavoidable circumstance which caused our vehicle to collide with yours. We are here only to observe your primitive . . ." The voice hesitated, began again, ". . . your civilization."

The last word was spoken slowly, each syllable pronounced separately and deliberately.

"We do not wish our activities to interfere with man-living in any manner. We cannot replace your vehicle, but we have examined your body and assured ourselves of its undamaged condition. We have also corrected an abnormality in your body which we have found is most common in your species. It is called . . ." Again there was a hesitation as though the speaker were groping for the word. Then it came, ". . . cancer."

I was aghast. Cancer! Did I have cancer? And these . . . things . . . from outside our earth . . . they knew the cure for cancer?

"We offer this as slight reparation for the loss we have caused you.

"We shall return you to the surface of your planet. We caution you, for your own peace, not to reveal your experience with us. You will not be believed." A pause. Then, "Think of us in kindness."

The switch clicked and there was only the hum once more.

I lay there, soaked in sweat. A dream? It must have been a dream. The humming grew louder, more shrill. A blue light came close, danced before my eyes, then was gone. The humming stopped. There remained only silence and darkness.

I OPENED my eyes to bright daylight shining through the windows of my room. It was a real room with curtains, white walls, a bed with cool, white sheets. I saw a doctor, a nurse and several men looking down at me.

They told me how they had picked me up near my plane, uninjured. They discussed my miraculous escape . . . and then asked me what had happened.

I told them . . . and they wouldn't believe me, just as the droning, loudspeaker, saucer-voice had warned me . . . they wouldn't believe me.

I've tried to forget my adventure, but I can't. I've relived it over and over again, asleep and awake. I know every detail by heart.

First I was proud of it. I had been the first visitor aboard a flying saucer. Now I'm ashamed of it. People point at me . . . laugh at me.

Here's the whole story . . . in writing. And some day, you and everyone else will believe me. You'll have to because . . . it really happened.

Editor's Note: The following newspaper clipping recently came to our attention:

SAUCER PASSENGER DIES

Atlanta—May 16. Fred Reagan, who made headlines last year when he claimed he had been a visitor aboard a flying saucer, died today in the State Asylum for the Insane. Cause of death was determined to be degeneration of brain tissue due to extreme atomic radiation. Authorities are unable to offer an explanation.

THE END

4-Year-Old Genius Taught Self to Read

FLINT, Mich. — A little four year old girl scheduled to enter kindergarten can read anything from primary readers to encyclopedias and though she may stumble over some of polysyllabic words, it is apparent that she understands what she's reading.

She is Joyce Marie Williams whose parents Mr. and Mrs. Welmon Williams are as mystified by the girls unusual ability as others who have witnessed her astonishing performance.

Self-Taught

"She just picked it up," her father said. "We had nothing to do with it. Nobody, to our knowledge, has taught her."

During a recent visit South to visit her grandparents, Joyce visited the editorial offices of the Sherrill (Ark.) Commerical and so impressed the editors that they write the following account of her visit.

"Joyce Marie Williams came into the Commercial editorial office Friday, picked up a copy of the paper and began reading —headlines, small type and advertisements.

Space Girl

"She didn't hesitate over any word, although she pronounced some by sounding out the letters. But most of the words including "astronauts," "pneumonia," "analysis," and "cantaloupe," were pronounced correctly.

"Joyce read in a soft, low voice but with expression, and she knew the meaning of most of the words. When reading about the Russian astronauts, she began talking about John Glenn, who 'went round and round the world in a big long rocket! She said she wanted to be a 'space girl' when she grew up. . .

". . . When asked who taught her to read, she pointed to herself and said emphatically, 'Me!'

"Her father said the family first noticed that Joyce could read when they were on a trip about five months ago. He said that as they drove by a service station which Joyce had never seen before, she began reading the trade names on a sign. After that, he said, Joyce began reading anything she came across.

In the late summer of 1922 I saw a light come down from high in the sky, and within a few minutes it lit up the earth as far as the eye could see, it was as bright as any sun light only it had a more of a pinkish glow, it started as a spot of light high in the sky, and the light spread as it came down to the earth, This happened between 11 and 12 O'Clock at night and as to the best I can remember it lasted about 40 minutes, and it left by decending in the same way it came.

About 50 years ago when I was a child of about seven. I saw a pink Moon in the sky and it had a High Hat on...and this moon would split in half and the hat would split in half with it, Then it would change to a quarter and the hat would change with it, Then it would become a Full Moon with a Full High Hat again, as near as I can recall this scene lasted about 30 to 40 minutes, Then the whole scene dissapeared, This happened about 9 O'Clock at night.

So with this experience alone with the stories I have read concerning The U.F.O. gives to my mind enough evidence That Flying Saucers are not real Machines.... But Projections, and the same applies to other objects...That are and have been seen in the sky..Such as ...Lights, Balls of Fire...and other objects seen in the sky....Recognized as...UNIDENTIFIED FLYING OBJECTS.:

EGYPTIAN MAGIC

By Sir Wallis Budge

The same man who translated the famed "Book of the Dead" now brings us EGYPTIAN MAGIC, revealing the unique system of magic existing in ancient Egypt. Where others invoked the aid of benign beings to combat threatening evil, the Egyptian priest commanded darkness as well as light. He used his powers by spells, enchantments, amulets, pictures and ceremonies accompanied by potent words spoken in a certain manner.

THE PAST AND THE FUTURE

Dr. Budge gives us the dialogues, poems and stories the Egyptians used in an attempt to heal the sick, raise the dead, live through eternity, destroy enemies, part the waters of the sea (long before Moses), stop the sun, know the mysteries of life and death—and know the past and the future. In EGYPTIAN MAGIC the very air of the ancient land seems aquiver with invisible forces hastening to obey the magician's command.

The text also discusses many curious modern survivals of the old Egyptian "black magic."

Side One: Helps HYPNOTIZE OTHERS, passes control to you.
Listen as the Hypnotist blends his compelling suggestions with the unusual Echo-Chamber background beat. Expertly done, this side of the record is designed to help you hypnotize others . . . either in groups or individually. The record passes the hypnotic control by ending as follows: ". . . the next voice you hear will take complete control of your hypnotic sleep . . .", now you take over.

Side Two: For SELF-HYPNOSIS
Here is the fastest, easiest, least expensive way we know of to attain the state of Self-Hypnosis. The authoritative suggestions of the hypnotist combine with the effective background beat and work together to help put you into a state of Self-Hypnosis. Once you have attained this wonderful state, you will be ready to practice Auto-Suggestion . . . direct helpful suggestions to your own sub-conscious mind. Before the record wakens you, you are given a Post-Hypnotic Suggestion for rehypnotizing yourself at will.

Use it to develop YOUR OWN HYPNOTIC TECHNIQUE.
Study the suggestions, delivery and timing of the Hypnotist. Study the slow, sure way he gives suggestions. That way you will be able to develop and improve your own hypnotic ability. Many experienced hypnotists study this record for suggestions, surely if they can learn from it, you can too.

The record is made of pure "unbreakable" vinyl plastic and is a true fidelity recording. Though a 10", 78 rpm size . . . it has very fine grooves that greatly increase the playing time. This is known as an Extended Play Recording. Order the "Kit" now—get the record, simple instructions and FREE "Eye Fixation" Spots . . . all for only $4.95 ppd.
