CAMBRIDGE UFO RESEARCH GROUP - AUGUST, 1991 NEWSLETTER

In the last newsletter, I presented a 4 page interview with Peter. He then moved back to B.C. shortly after the interview. I recently received a letter from him, which follows.

For our April meeting, Tom Theofanous, from Toronto, a Mufon and CUFON member, spoke. He discussed his indepth interview techniques and provided us with additional data on Peter's case, previewed in the last newsletter. He had travelled to Guelph and interviewed Peter several times. We thoroughly enjoyed listening to his investigative knowledge.

We had Tom speak at our May meeting as well. He spoke about a "contactee" case he is presently investigating. We discussed how would one go about presenting reputable evidence to the public and who would be professionally well know enough to verify it. The contactee lives in Florida and Tom is making the trip to Florida to interview him in person (he is flying down in June).

I had a telephone call from a lady in south central Florida in early June. A friend of hers from Ontario mailed her a copy of my newsletter. She read about a case in the newseltter, which reminded her of events that happened to her.

She used to live in Ontario, 10 miles south of Orangeville. During 1975 and 1976, she had many things happen to her. She had 2 to 3 sightings per week, during spring and late summer. Friends were also witness to the sightings. The Erin Advocate published an article about the sightings. She experienced telepathy, she knew when and where the craft would appear - had strange feeling while reading and while washing dishes, saw light shows then. She heard beeping sounds, saw illuminous orange balls of light, 3' in diameter. Was affected physically, had incredible headaches, feeling of being drugged.

I recently received correspondence from this lady and enclosed was the article she mentioned that was in the Erin Advocate, which follows. This lady wishes to remain anonymous, thus the reason the names are blocked out in the newspaper article

As Tom was making the trip to Florida to interview the contactee, the opportunity arose to interview this lady as well. However, due to unfortunate circumstances, this interview did not work out.

There are no meetings held during the summer months.

Due to a malfunction of my typewriter I am borrowing another one, thus you will notice different type styles. Hopefully mine will be repaired shortly.

Happy Summer,

April 14th 1991,

Thank you greatly for the recent copy of your newsletter! I had no idea that it would be $5.00 for the postage. That's a good chunk of green for me, as it's not often I have much. I hope I can return the favor soon.

One correction I would like to point out in your write up is on page "3". Located on the 8th line from the top, it should read, "Helen first saw..." As for the rest of it, you covered a lot of detail. I sometimes find it hard to believe that so much has happened to me in such a short period of time! I mean, this June I turn 23! I feel that this is young in the fact that usually UFO activity "hovers" around people between 30 to 50. Unless I'm incorrect.

If you wish to give out my BOX 80408 address, you have my permission. But please do not disclose my phone number. Strange letters I can handle, but I hate being bothered with strange calls.

There is a member of MUFON here in Vancouver who is going to research my case with me. He told me that there are a group of people like Budd Hopkins, Streiber, Friedman etc... who are trying to gather as much Abduction data as possible for cross-ref. publication. Much like a charting of some sort. Percentages and categories etc...

Well that's all for now, Bonnie.

I wish you peace...

Mystery space craft at ██████ under study by UFO centre

BY LESLEY STEWART

█████ resident ██████ believes there are intelligent life forms existing on other planets as well as ours and that earth is being visited not only by beings from one planet, but from many others and sometimes from other dimensions of outer space. These feelings are echoed by many and because of this, the Toronto Society for

Psychical Research established a standing committee, the UFO Research Centre, Ontario. Its efforts will be directed towards the discovery of the essential nature of this phenomenon, and on taking positive action to end a quarter century of distortion and misunderstanding. The Toronto based centre works closely with the centre for UFO studies in Evanston, Illinois, which is directed by Prof. J. Allen Hynek, a world leader in this field of investigation. Descriptions of sightings in this area have stimulated much research at the Toronto Centre and due to her own experience in seeing a UFO, ██████ has authorization from the research centre to act as area liaison. What were seen last week by several area residents, were objects shooting through the sky, seen probably in many stages, as descriptions vary. What was not noticed however, was any strange noise accompanying the flight. It was a strange noise which caught ██████ attention a year ago on April 26. Late at night, she heard a sonar beep coming from the bush at the rear of her ██████ property. As she approached the sound picked up speed. She saw nothing. Later, in mid May, during a full moon, she heard what she thought was a tree-frog, but remembering the earlier incident, called neighbors ██████ and ██████ and ██████ to confirm her observations. ██████ carrying a shotgun, went with his dog to investigate. The group saw flashes of red light (Continued on Page 10)

(Continued from Page 1) amongst the trees. The dog would not move. "The red light came out of the trees, made a 90 degree left turn towards the south-east and came towards us in an arc. It terrified me and I ran behind our out-house," remembered ██████. Time was about 1.30 a.m.

"It was about 150 feet away, 100 feet up and roughly 20 feet in length, with a central white-yellow light. I could see it was definitely a craft of some sort. It had three or four red lights on it which were turning counter-clockwise," she said.

According to researchers, all recorded craft sightings involving red lights, were turning counter-clockwise.

█████ said when the Orton mystery craft came out of the bush all sound ceased. Researchers told her that this coincides with other sightings; natural noises stop and flashlight batteries often fail. Her neighbor ██████ complained that his hearing-aid battery went dead in the presence of the craft, but returned to full power later.

The sonar beep which had accompanied the initial sighting had stopped. Worried that ██████ might try to shoot at the craft, ██████ feels that it responded to her thoughts when she willed it leave. It took two minutes to disappear.

The noise continued in the bush area for about five weeks after the craft appeared, but it was not seen again.

A tape-recording of the sonar beep was taken by Erin astronomer Prof. Chris Purton to a naturalist at York University where at first it was thought to be a pied-billed grebe, (a member of the duck family— however its pitch, intensity and duration ruled out that theory.

Later in the year, ██████ contacted Prof. Hynek who after hearing the tape told her that the noise was a sign that a UFO was close.

█████ is interested in discovering if other residents have seen or heard such things. If so, they could help her in her work with the UFO Research Centre.

She needs the date, time, exact location, visibility, weather conditions, direction or path of the UFO, how many people saw it, its size, how long in time it stayed and any unusual physical feelings or behavior in animals. She is also interested in the area folk-lore, and wants information on the possible boiling over of the Alton pond at the turn of the century.

It is the centre's wish that persons can report UFO experiences and sightings without fear of ridicule and with the knowledge that their reports will be given serious scientific attention. If you prefer and you have seen what you think may be a UFO you can contact the UFO Research Centre: Ontario at Box 427, Station F., Toronto. Members of the Toronto group include Allen Spraggett, CFRB's exponent of the "unexplained".

Dave and his girlfriend, Julie, were outside on the porch when they noticed a bright light in the sky. It looked like a solid mass burning up, was 2-3 times brighter than the brightest star. There was a definite red core, with a yellowish, green mass following, like an exhaust. Looked like pieces were falling off, as it was going across the sky. It was shooting pieces as it went. It went 3 times the speed of a jet. They watched it for 5 to 6 seconds. The pieces were shooting off on all sides.

Looked like possibly a big rock, looked like it was tumbling. It didn't fall, went across the sky quickly, in a straight line. It just vanished. Was size of half a full moon. Shape rectangle, but with rounded corners. Was at a 50° elevation in sky. Clear night, temp. 55°.

Dave called the newspaper, the reporter, Clyde Warrington, then contacted me. The article is attached.

I checked with an astronomy expert. He was able to explain this sighting. It was a bolide, which is a chunk of rock hurling through space, with fragments breaking off.

After the article appeared in the newspaper, three more people phoned to report the sighting, as well. The article appeared in the Cambridge Reporter on Wednesday, May 15th.

CAMBRIDGE — Whatever Dave Westlake saw in the night sky Tuesday, the only other person admitting to also having seen it is his girlfriend.

He says he was sitting on his porch shortly after 10:30 p.m., and had just finished commenting on all the planes zooming overhead when a light caught his eye.

"It was sparking, as if fire was coming off it, and there was a long stream of this yellowy-green gassy color behind it. And it was good and bright."

Dave and his girlfriend, Julie Wilson, say the light spluttered in the sky for as long as 10 seconds, then, phzzt! It was gone just like that.

"It all of a sudden went out. Disappeared. It just kind of stopped," Julie says.

Dave, a Hostess Food worker who performs occasionally as the Hostess Munchie, can't figure what it was.

"A UFO? Naw, it couldn't be that," he shrugs shyly. "Who knows? It could've been anything. To me, it looked like a meteor or space junk burning up. It was quite unique. I'll never forget it."

Regional police dispatchers reported no calls from others sharing Dave and Julie's sighting. At the Waterloo-Guelph Regional Airport, the only employee working at the time was pushing a mop and saw nothing unusual.

Dave says he was facing northwest from his porch on Dolph Street South. It was travelling at breakneck speed — three times as fast as the airplanes whose lights he could make out, and at about the same altitude.

"I couldn't take my eyes off it. I sat there in awe," he says.

"Ohh, it was really strange," says Julie.

Strange enough to prompt an investigation by the Cambridge UFO Research Group.

Bonnie Wheeler, founder and president of the 15-year-old organization which investigates UFO sightings, talked to Dave and Julie.

"It's too early to say, but from what they described, it was quite an interesting object he saw," Ms. Wheeler said Wednesday.

She said she checked astronomical charts and learned that sightings of shooting stars known as the eta aquarides, which derive from Halley's Comet, often peak in the May sky.

"They tend to have long paths and may leave glowing trails," she said, "but what Dave described was quite different — like the duration was only about five seconds. I'm sure it wasn't a falling star he saw."

Ms. Wheeler said she'll consult with astronomy experts.

Laurie was sitting in the back yard of a friend's house, she glanced up and saw unusual lights moving in the sky. There were 3 lights on 1 object. These lights were moving slightly faster than an aircraft. The lights were white, yellowish, dim. The lights were moving just above tree top level, flying towards the north west. The lights seemed to be in a triangular shape on the object and were dim. She jumped up and tried to point the lights out to her 3 friends, but they didn't see it. It was moving quickly and quietly, like gliding, no sound. Disappeared from sight as it blended in with town lights. About 25 minutes later she saw a plane follow the same trajectory, but it had the red, green and white lights and was making a roaring noise. Laurie felt this didn't appear to have the normal light pattern of a plane, as we know it.

Night was clear, temp.  $15^{\circ}$ - $20^{\circ}$ . Size was that of a 25¢ piece held at arm's length, was at an elevation of  $40^{\circ}$ .

Laurie was upset and had goosebumps on her. She called the Police twice and then called the Newspaper. She in turn called me.

I checked with my astronomy adviser, but nothing of an astronomical nature fits this description.

I checked with the Waterloo/Wellington Airport. The possible explanation of this sighting follows.

The navigational lights, red and green, are small and on the wing tips. If the plane was far away, they would not be seen. The plane could have been 5 miles up and no sound would be heard, because of its' distance. More and more aircraft are now flying with their white operating lights on, as they are much brighter and makes for better visibility. A plane has a dozen or more of these lights and any number of these lights could be on. Aircraft are still coming in and out of the Toronto Airport after midnight.

Huge blazing object sighted over K-W

A Kitchener man and four friends reported seeing a "huge blazing object" fly over downtown Kitchener Tuesday night.

Tony Grieco said the object was like a "flaming ball with sparks coming off it and it had a white tail trailing behind it."

The mystery object could have been a plane crashing near the airport, he said, although police said they had no reports of a crashed plane or anyone else seeing the object.

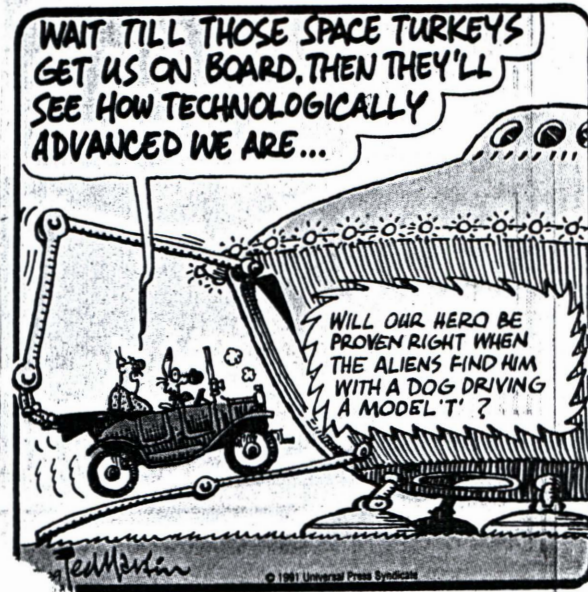

It was flying in a south-east direction above the downtown area and was viewed for 30 to 60 seconds before it disappeared, Grieco said. He and his friends heard no sound coming from the object but a minute or so later they did hear a 747 fly over.

"It looked about the size of a 747 but it was flying about 300 to 400 feet lower than 747s fly," he said. The object was sighted between 9:30 p.m. and 9:45 p.m.

Grieco said he was sitting on the patio of the Coyote Bar, at 24 King St. behind Kitchener city hall, with two friends when he saw the object. The patio is elevated with a good view of the sky.

Later, as he was on his way home, he ran into two other friends and when he mentioned the sighting, he said they told him they saw it too.

An Iowa State University mathematician wants to blow up the moon with nuclear bombs.

Professor Alexander Abian says it's time we change the orbit of the Earth, which hasn't changed in 5 billion years.

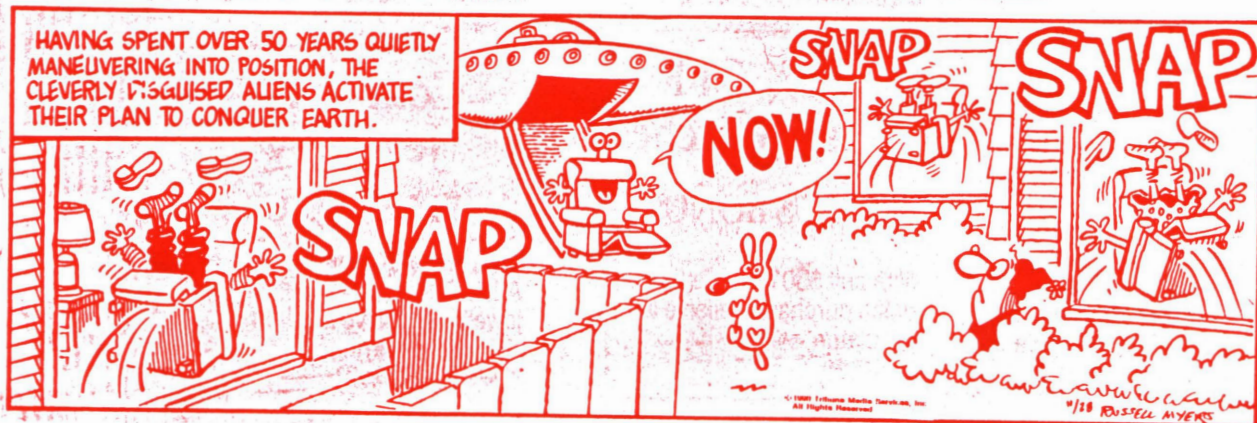

Abian says his get-rid-of-the-moon scheme would change the tilt of the Earth by 23 degrees and make summers cooler and winters less harsh.

Abian admits the idea of getting rid of the moon sounds a little radical, so he has an alternative:

He says we could just split the moon in two or we could simply pull it down to the Earth and plop the moon on the South Pole.

Either way would change Earth's orbit for the better.

Abian doesn't care what people think — he says everyone thought Galileo was a boob, too.

When I consult an astronomy expert on a sighting reported to me, I contact Cliff Cunningham. I have attached an article which appeared in a recent issue of "Equinox", concerning Cliff's background in astronomy.

The absence of information about asteroids caught Clifford Cunningham's attention in 1976. An astronomy aficionado since childhood and a freelance writer, the Ontario resident had just bought a 14¼-inch (36 cm) telescope and was seeking an avenue for meaningful application of the instrument's capabilities. He began his serious asteroid observations from the roof of the 17-storey apartment building where he lives in downtown Kitchener. With the bright lights of the city beneath him, Cunningham tracked down hundreds of asteroids and measured their positions. Knowing exactly where they are at any given time makes it possible to calculate more accurately where they will be in the future.

FLYING MOUNTAINS

The nights on the exposed roof, however, proved to be a test of Cunningham's physical and mental stamina. Between observing sessions, he had to store his telescope in the furnace room, which meant setting up the 50-pound (23 kg) base each night and then attaching the six-foot (2 m) 70-pound (32 kg) tube to it. By 1980, Cunningham had had enough of the roof. He built an observatory near Ayr, south of Kitchener, and moved the telescope there. To the instrument, he added a photometer, an electronic device that allows him to detect minute variations in an asteroid's brightness as it turns. The new information enabled him to establish not only the asteroids' rotation cycles but also their amplitude curves. Research journals began publishing his observations, and Cunningham earned a reputation as a world-class asteroid expert. More recently, following publication of his book, Introduction to Asteroids, he has been invited to use major professional equipment for his studies; earlier this year, he watched asteroids through the 72-inch (180 cm) telescope at Lowell Observatory in Arizona.

UFOs spotted in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Unidentified flying objects were spotted over Quebec City and in New Brunswick Tuesday night.

One Quebec City observer, identified by the daily newspaper Le Soleil only as Christian, aged 29, said he was walking with his mother at about 10 p.m. when he spotted eight strange forms in the sky.

"We were just below them," he said.

"It was very bizarre. They were like rings, with four white and yellow lights inside. There was no noise."

Christian said he watched for about 15 minutes.

At one point, he said, one of the rings accelerated and moved into position ahead of the others.

The newspaper said it first heard about the UFO's Tuesday night from people who saw them from the streets. Several people phoned the police, who had no comment.

An airline pilot, the newspaper said, even reported an inexplicable phenomenon in the air as he landed at Quebec City airport.

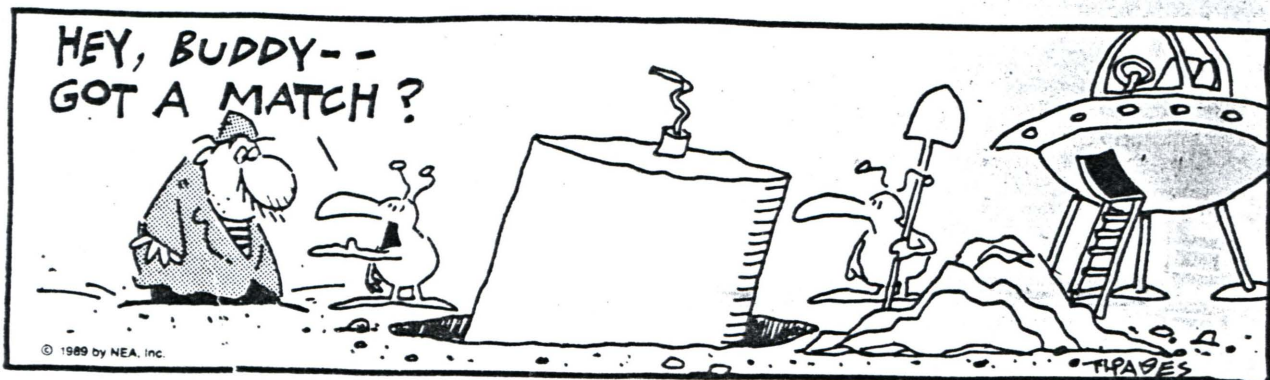

But Maurice Aube, a control tower spokesman at the airport, said radar screens there picked up nothing unusual.

The response was the same at Dorval and Mirabel airports near Montreal.

There were also reports of sightings in New Brunswick.

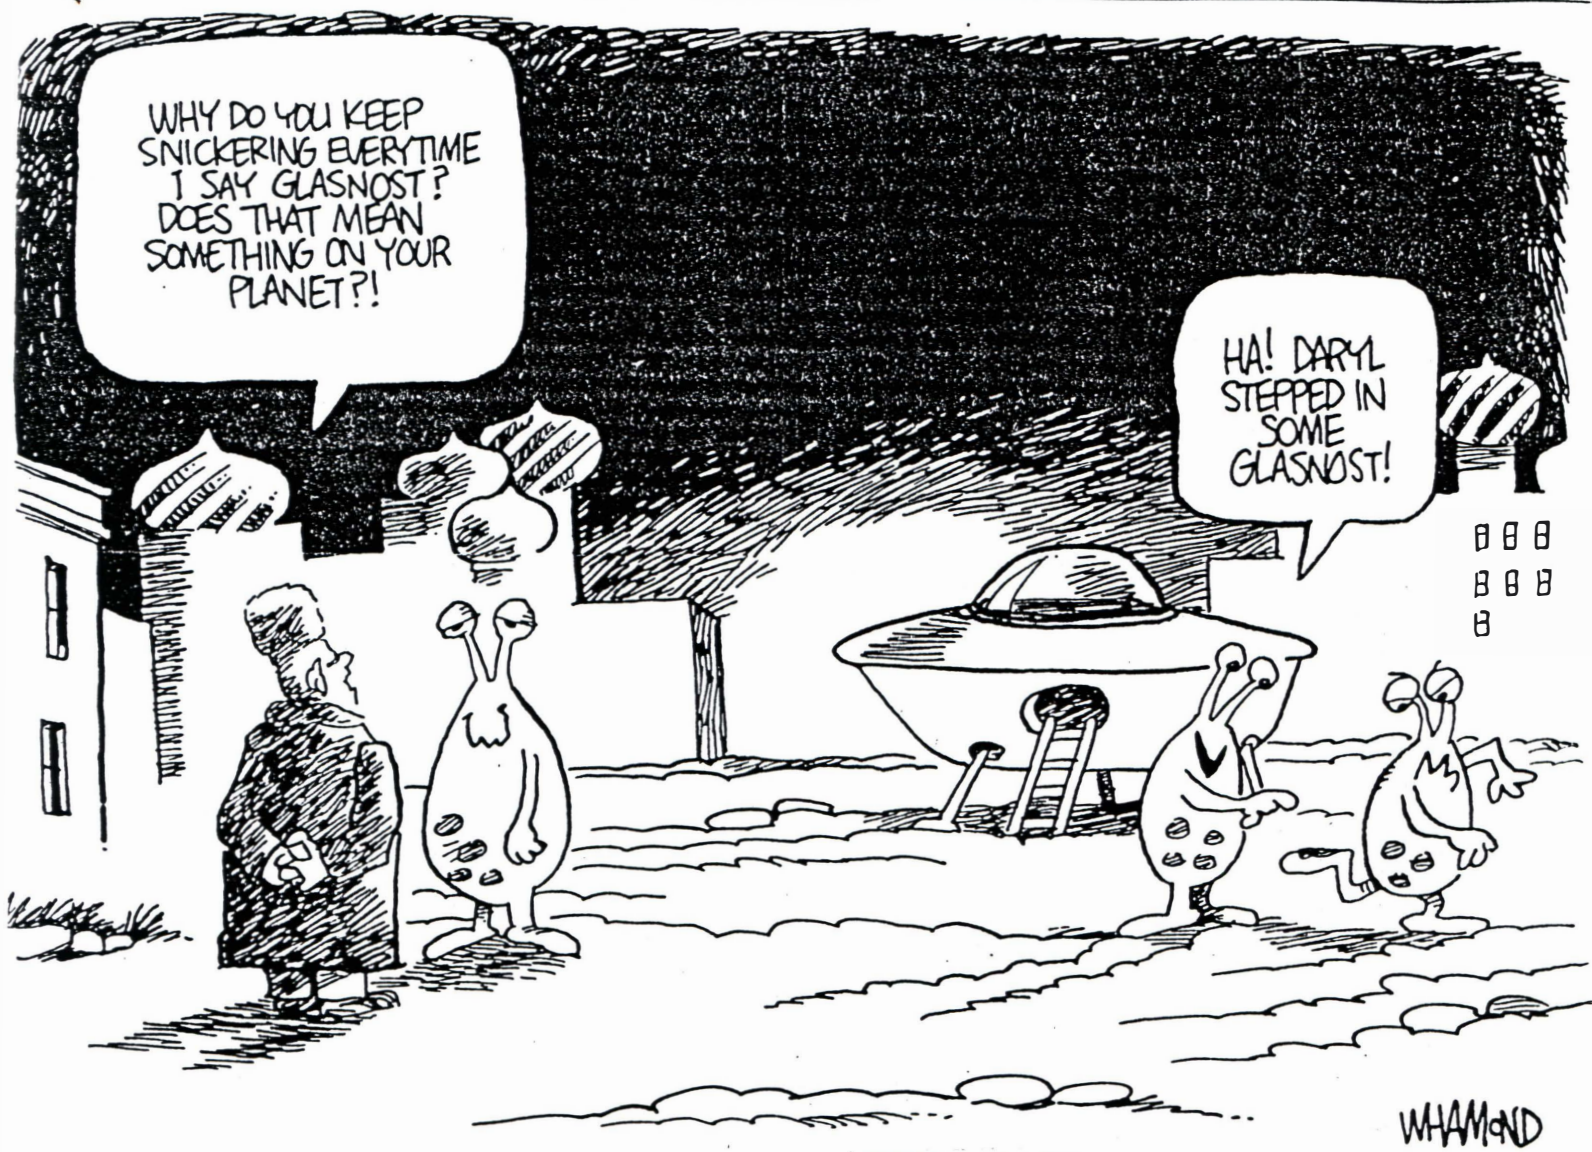

Capt. Remi Picard, spokesman at the Canadian Forces base in Bagotville, Quebec, dismissed suggestions that CF-18s should have been sent up to track the objects.

JAKARTA POST

'Glasnost 17-10-89 hurrah'

MOSCOW. (AFP): Inspired by a spate of UFO reports in the Soviet press, the usually humorless communist party newspaper Pravda on Sunday reported the arrival of three extra-terrestrials in a town with the unlikely name of Abradovsk.

The word "Abradovsk" means "rejoice" in Russian, and if the local journalist quoted by Pravda is to be trusted, the space visitors landed on Saturday at 13h58 aboard an orange-colored flying saucer and said "Glasnost ... hurrah."

But since the reporter's name, Neustoyev, means "unstable" in Russian he was presumably no more reliable a witness than the 357 adults reportedly queuing outside the vodka shop in Probujdenia ("wake-up") Square, formerly Bolshaia Demogitechkaya ("big demagogy").

The three martians, measuring 3.02 metres, 3.09 metres and 3.36 meters, each with three eyes and four ears, were wearing silver costumes and rubber boots, Pravda said. The tallest was female, according to specialists.

One of them took a step forward, raised his right ear and said in a metallic voice: "Glasnost ... Hurrah".

The local party committee is currently meeting with informal organizations in the town to decide on what should be done about the new arrivals, Pravda said.

Since last week, the Soviet media have given unusual prominence to UFO sightings.

Even national television Wednesday covered a report of a UFO landing in the southern Russian city of Voronej where children saw three to four-meter-high humanoids leaving a luminous saucer to take a few steps around in the company of a robot.

Soviet scientist casts doubt on earlier Tass tale of UFO landing

★ The Houston Post/Wednesday, October 11, 1989/ A-3

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — A three-eyed alien with a robot sidekick landed by UFO and made a boy vanish by zapping him with a pistol, a Soviet newspaper reported Tuesday, in a second day of strange tales in the state-run media.

But as the bizarre saga of the space invasion of the city of Voronezh unfolded for a second day, a scientist whose words were used to buttress the first published report voiced doubts, and said he was in part misquoted.

"Don't believe all you hear from Tass," Genrikh Silanov, head of the Voronezh Geophysical Laboratory, cautioned in a telephone interview with the Associated Press from Voronezh. "We never gave them part of what they published."

On Monday, the usually staid, official Soviet news agency told the world that scientists had confirmed an alien spaceship carrying giant people with tiny heads had touched down in Voronezh, a city of more than 800,000 people about 300 miles southeast of Moscow.

As many as three aliens 13 feet tall left the spacecraft, described as a large shining ball, and walked in the park with a small robot, Tass reported. A Tass duty officer stood by the story. "It is not April Fool's today," he said.

The purported close encounter in Voronezh was only the latest weird tale to appear in the Soviet media, which under the policy of glasnost, or openness, have recently reported other sightings of UFOs and the abominable snowman.

Nonetheless, a Communist Party paper whose avowed mission is to write about culture was the only major national daily to print anything Tuesday about the UFO, indicating more authoritative newspapers like Pravda thought the topic too hot to handle.

Sovietskaya Kultura said its coverage was motivated by "the golden rule of journalism: The reader must know everything."

"Of course, it's hard to believe in what happened in the town," it reported from Voronezh. "It's even more difficult to explain."

The daily quoted witnesses as saying the UFO flew into Voronezh on Sept. 27 and drew a crowd.

The newspaper said an alien pointed a "pistol" — a tube about 20 inches long — at an unidentified 16-year-old boy, making him disappear. The alien then re-entered the sphere, which took off. At the same time, the boy reappeared.

Silanov cast doubt on the Tass report that quoted him as saying the aliens left behind in Voronezh two rocks of a deep red color that cannot be found anywhere.

"The rock they described as extraterrestrial is in fact a piece of iron oxide which could easily have originated on Earth," he said.

Silanov, 50, also said the testimony of children between the ages of 11 and 14 who claimed they witnessed the landing "certainly didn't mention the tremendous height" of the aliens cited by Tass.

The phone connection was abruptly cut off before Silanov could answer more questions.

Soviet UFO researchers strike out with witnesses

REUTER NEWS SERVICE

VORONEZH, Soviet Union — Investigators trying to verify a reported landing in Central Russia by huge, three-eyed aliens ran into an unexpected problem Saturday — a lack of witnesses.

Most of the children who in the past few days have enthralled the country with their tales of spaceships, robots and gun-toting extraterrestrials in this industrial city of 900,000 were not allowed to meet the investigators.

"The parents want their kids to be left alone," said Slava Martinov, a member of the Commission for the Investigation of Abnormal Phenomena, meeting in full for the first time.

The team, most of whom are confirmed UFO enthusiasts, have already conducted preliminary interviews with the children about an alleged spaceship landing Sept. 27.

The only child prepared to say she had seen the incident, 11-year-old Lena Sarokina, was closely questioned but gave no new details.

Adult witnesses remained obstinately elusive, but virtually everyone questioned had their own theories about the incident and said they knew of someone who had seen something unusual at some stage in their life.

"I am sure the ship came from Venus. I did not see it myself, but my grandmother's cousin once saw a spaceship attack a train in Siberia," said a local technician, who asked to remain anonymous.

Giant aliens! Tass taking strange turn

Soviet news agency says UFO landed in city park

By ESTHER B. FEIN
New York Times

MOSCOW — Everyone seems to be coming to the Soviet Union these days: entrepreneurs in search of joint ventures, actors looking for stage sets, heavy-metal musicians, arm wrestlers and now aliens from outer space.

According to the official news agency Tass, towering extraterrestrial creatures with little knobby heads have landed in the Russian city of Voronezh, joining the flood of foreigners who have invaded the Soviet Union in these days of glasnost and perestroika.

"Scientists have confirmed that an unidentified flying object recently landed in a park in the Russian city of Voronezh," Tass said in a straightforward news report.

"They have also identified the landing site and found traces of aliens who made a short promenade around the park."

It had to be only a matter of time before aliens discovered the appeal of Soviet chic that has brought plane-loads of tourists to the Soviet Union and made Soviet watches and breads all the rage in sophisticated stores like Bloomingdale's.

But while Soviet citizens usually embrace foreign visitors with enthusiasm, Tass reported that the people in Voronezh who saw the aliens "were overwhelmed with a fear that lasted for several days." Tass did not give the date of the purported "landing."

The authorities in Voronezh, about 300 miles southeast of Moscow, could not be reached Monday for comment. A spokesman for Tass, reached by telephone Monday night, said the report was neither a hoax nor a joke.

"It is a serious dispatch," the night duty officer at the agency said. He said Tass stood by the story, but he refused to identify the reporter who sent the dispatch from Voronezh.

In Buffalo, N.Y., Paul Kurtz, chairman of the Committee for the Scientific Investigation of

Claims of the Paranormal, commented: "We're extremely skeptical of this claim. It's not the first one (in the Soviet media). There's many. There seems to be a rash of reports, largely uncorroborated."

Tass has seemed to undergo a bizarre metamorphosis in the last year or so.

In addition to its traditional role of dutifully reporting the comings and goings of Soviet leaders, and often condemning those of American officials, Tass has taken to writing supermarket-tabloid sensationalism with all the seriousness due a superpower summit meeting.

Kurtz, a professor of philosophy at the State University of New York at Buffalo, said Monday:

"Since the press freedoms in the last year, increasingly it seems to be open season. Paranormal pandemonium has broken out in the Soviet Union, not only with UFOs, but faith healers and so on. In a closed society such as the Soviet Union, you don't get the development of critical reason."

Along with a steady flow of UFO sightings, Tass in recent months has carried reports on a man who, while sitting in a bathtub, can create a huge soap bubble, get inside it and remain there for 10 seconds; a "flamboyant" six-legged bull whose two extra appendages grow upward off its back (coincidentally, also from the Voronezh region); a tale about a young mystic who goes into a trance and flies about the cosmos; sightings of abominable snowman-type creatures, and a Tibetan doctor's sex tips, advising that winter is the best time for amorous activity and summer is the worst.

People in the Soviet Union have long been attracted by the mysterious and the occult, and lately the authorities seem to be feeding this interest.

Two of the hottest programs on state-run television these days are psychic healers who promise to cure everything from obesity to leukemia, in person or via the airwaves.

There seems to be a particular fascination here with outer space and in February 1984 the authorities set up a Commission Into Abnormal Phenomena after a "flying cigar" was spotted near the city of Gorky.

Stanton Friedman, a consultant who lectures on the topic "Flying Saucers Are Real" and has examined Soviet studies of UFOs, said in Secaucus, N.J., on Monday that Soviet scientists tended to treat the subject more seriously than U.S. scientists. Last June, the Soviet publication Soviet Military Review included an article on "UFOs and Security."

Monday night's report was presented with a straight face and with technical descriptions worthy of a major scientific discovery.

Genrikh Silanov, head of the Voronezh Geophysical Laboratory, told Tass that the landing site was identified "by means of biolocation."

According to Soviet reference books, biolocation is an extrasensory method of tracking objects or people invisible to the human eye.

Silanov described the landing spot as being about 20 yards in diameter, with four small prominent dents.

He said scientists also found "two mysterious pieces of rock" that resembled deep-red sandstone, but "mineralogical analysis" determined that the substance "cannot be found on Earth." "However, additional tests are needed to reach a more definite conclusion," he said.

Tass said Voronezh residents reported that the aliens visited the place after dark at least three times. They arrived in a large shining ball, or disk, and emerged through a hatch, accompanied by "a small robot," and went for a "short promenade about the park."

"The aliens were three or even four meters tall (almost 10 feet to slightly more than 13 feet), but with very small heads," the news agency quoted witnesses as saying. "They walked near the ball or disk and then disappeared inside."

Tass also reported that witnesses claimed to have seen "a banana-shaped object in the sky and a characteristic illuminated sign."

It said such descriptions had been reported in the American magazine Saga. And to dispel any notion that the Voronezh witnesses had been influenced by reports in Saga, Tass said "it is unlikely residents of Voronezh could have read the magazine."

Monday's report resembled a much talked about story last summer in the newspaper Sotsialisticheskaya Industriya about a milkmaid's encounter with a stubby-legged alien in the Perm region of Central Russia.

In that report, milkmaid Lyubov Medvedev was quoted as saying she encountered an alien creature "resembling a man, but taller than average with short legs." The creature, she said, had "only a small knob instead of a head."

This summer Tass reported on a UFO hovering over a hill in the Soviet Far East, showering the area with over 30 pounds of debris that included mysterious, tiny golden hairs.

The agency also debunked a report in Sotsialisticheskaya Industriya this summer that asserted that a spaceship landed near southern Moscow, leaving behind a huge scorched patch.

Tass reported that firefighters believe that a haystack caught fire and singed the ground.

BOOK ABSTRACT

Foreword: Dr. Richard F. Haines (NASA-Ames Research Center)

FIRST PART: THE EVIDENCE OF THE UFO PHENOMENON

Chapter 1. Unexplainable Aerial Phenomena. Three cases, investigated personally by the authors are presented in detail and discussed on the basis that no natural or technological object could have performed like the observed UFOs. One case of multiple witnesses is included, where independent testimonies show an absolute coherence in the description of the event.

Chapter 2. Close Encounters of the First Kind. The authors describe first the report of a strange light at ground level which rose to be lost in the night sky. The sighter, who was interviewed by the authors on the spot, is considered completely reliable. Another case, also investigated directly by us, describe the flight close to the ground of a disk-shaped object which, in a given instant, vanished in front of the eyes of the witness, an illiterate and serious farmer. The chapter closes with the report of one object which rose from the Atlantic Ocean off the Canary Islands in 1979, being photographed by many witnesses. Taken as a UFO by sensationalist journalists, the object is identified as a sea-air missile.

Chapter 3. Close Encounters of the Second Kind. A witness saw a powerful flash of light in front of him. Afterwards, two animals he owned who were near the source of light, died in strange circumstances. The observer developed double vision and he had a progressive arthrosis healed! The event was carefully studied by the authors. A second case also studied on the site is a one-hour-long sighting of a UFO that followed a car in which a 5-member family was really scared.

Both electromagnetic and physiological effects were recorded. The third case discloses the observation of an unusual light placed on a hill which shining pulses seemed to convey some "communication" with the witness, who then had his car radio interfered with a strange, metallic-looking voice.

Chapter 4. Close Encounters of the Third Kind. These incidents, like the rest, have been personally investigated by the authors and they represents filtered cases, this is, cases considered to be real occurrences. The landing of weird objects and the observation of creatures associated with them, in several circumstances, are reported. In one case, traces were photographed and measured. Soil analysis did not show any anomaly.

SECOND PART: THE SCIENTIFIC CONTEXT

Chapter 5. Methodology and Organization. Five sections. In "Standards in the Evaluation of UFO Reports", we have strived to show stable and definite mathematical indices for strangeness, credibility, quality of information, and, as a composite of them, certitude. Indices have been carefully designed to become objective and exhaustive. In "CATIB: An Iberian Catalogue of UFO Observations", we show the several methodological steps that have been taken prior to the building of the catalogue of 3,500 cases. A matrix showing the number of known cases by month and year is included. In "Depuration Process in the Treatment of Anomalies" the problem of filtering the cases is examined in detail, and the several features that a good UFO report must bear are discussed. The authors understand that all cases must be screened before subjected to global analysis, so that only relevant events are available for statistical study. The proposed methodology allows the discovery of an important phenomenological uncertainty: the certainty we may have that a set of cases is composed by true UFOs and the certainty that a certain report from that sample is a true one, are complementary concepts that cannot be satisfied simultaneously. In "Towards a Scientific Ufology", it is described a loose organization of scientists, engineers and analysts working together on the UFO subject in Spain. In "The Counterinquiries of Old Cases", it is showed how inquiries of very old UFO cases may be possible today and how this is an aim to be accomplished, due to the poor informative nature of many old reports on record.

Chapter 6. UFOs and Physics. Three sections. In "Infrared Photographs of UFOs" the simple theory that UFOs may be invisible to the naked eye, to be only detected through infrared sensible film is criticized. Atmospheric physics arguments are used to demonstrate that images on that kind of film only detect the latent heat in the surroundings of photographer, not UFOs! The round-shaped images are due to the thermal radiation emitted by warm air "balloons" in atmosphere, the existence of which is a natural mechanism in the atmosphere inherent to its energy cycle. In "Do UFOs Break the Sound Barrier?", it is reviewed the apparent lack of sonic boom in UFO sightings. In order to produce such a boom, it is necessary a sound source in supersonic movement or an object which accelerates violently exceeding the speed of sound. Supersonic speed is a common characteristic of UFO flight but silence is also a basic feature: we cannot expect the production of a sonic boom, in consequence. Acceleration is basic in the UFO dynamics, however there are not computed data on that parameters to judge over the question. In summary, absence of sonic boom is related to both acoustic and dynamic properties of UFO flight. In "The Interstellar Travel" it is stated that the interstellar travel theory based on the relativistic effects of time dilation is only a preliminary one. Sensu estricto nothing is sure on the future of interstellar travel, however, there is a wide spectrum of possibilities to explore.

Chapter 7. Statistical Studies. Three sections. In "Distribution of UFO Activity in Time", the author present their own model in UFO activity development: UFO activity occurs irregularly by waves; statistically, their height is a measure of the phenomenon's real intensity, whereas the width of their base (duration) represent the social resonance of the phenomenon. There is evidence of a maximum threshold of activity by unit time. In "The Noise and Signal", we have reviewed the incidence of false cases (misperceptions) within the general phenomenology, as well as the possibilities of errors in human perception, and the prominence of human testimony. In "The Duration of the UFO Experience", a review of several analyses of time distribution of UFO data is made, and it is observed a consensus of a duration between 5 and 15 minutes. According to Merrit, whose study is reviewed, there is a correlation between report strangeness and lifetime of the observed phenomenon.

Chapter 8. The Theory of Processes. Four sections. This chapter introduces to the reader the basic notions and elements of the Theory of the Processes of UFOs, first developed by Guasp in 1973. The fundamental philosophy of this theory consist of supposing that it is possible to built a geometry of the spatio-temporal parameters of UFO reports, with a potential predictive capacity on new events. A set of relevant space-time parameters is studied from the statistical viewpoint, and, together with the flight direction datum, it is recognized as a processal paradigm, including a theorem for UFO apparitions. There is a general correlation between UFO flight directions and observation sites, however, there is no relationship at all between one particular UFO flight direction and the geographical place from where it is observed. This fact is interpreted in the sense that UFOs follow the course of their flight directions to appear in whatever place on Earth, yet without moving through cartesian coordinates in our real space and without following any chronological order in their apparitions. It is presented a mathematical formula which gives the distribution of frequencies of flight directions, as a law of angular distribution. Predicted values are compared with statistical results obtained from UFO data catalogues: results are outstanding, correlation between theory and real cases are 0.94, 0.76 and 0.90 (Spanish, Argentinian and USA cases, respectively.) The problem of scientific prediction of the observation places is examined, and it is widely debated, showing the reasons why this kind of forecast cannot be attained.

Chapter 9. The Cosmological Perspective. Three sections. In "Other Planetary Systems", the astrometric method for finding solar systems outside ours is reviewed, and the most probable stars capable of having orbiting planets are discussed. In "Probability of An Extraterrestrial Visit", optimistic calculations on the possibility to receive such visits are reviewed. Calculations by Carl Sagan are criticized on the basis of the concept of sociability, as an important part in the scheme of motivations for astronomical enterprises. In "Life in the Universe" it is discussed the cosmological principle, by which everywhere in the universe the same density of matter exists, except in minor local irregularities. According to that, we can find everywhere the same proportions of planets in the stages of their evolution which are favorable to the generation of life. The authors consider that this principle enhances the high probability of existence of advanced life in the cosmos.

Chapter 10. What Can UFOs Be? Three sections. "On the Concept of Reality and the Nature of UFO Phenomenon" discusses the meaning of the terms real and imaginary, stating that they could have no significance if we try to apply them to the UFO phenomenon, because under the hypothesis that there is an intelligence behind UFOs, it could manipulate the basis of what is real and unreal, deceiving us and concealing itself from us in a systematic manner. UFOs as projections, both physical or psychical in nature, are also examined within this perspective, being duly rejected. The authors conjecture on motivational aspects of the UFO intelligence. In "Brainstorming: Conjectures About the Nature of UFOs", most of the currently-held propositions on the origin and nature of the UFO phenomenon are critically reviewed. In "The Extraterrestrial Hypothesis", the authors express their view that the ETH is the most positive model to explain UFO phenomenology and provide arguments for that. We show that common criticisms to the ETH are untenable and that defined problems to that hypothesis cannot stand a deep analysis. Reasons why the ETH is outfashioned are explained as well.

Epilogue. A general review of the book contents is done with a reference to the fact that any progress in Ufology will be obtained if and only if the methods of Science are used to that purpose.

Appendix I. Some Reflexions on the Inquirer and the Cases Casuistry. A map of the Valencia province showing the geographical distribution of the known landing cases is used to propose a method to avoid the unfortunate fact occurring in Ufology by which the field investigators modulate the level of activity of the phenomenon as their work "creates" reports. According to our idea, the numerical relationship between total landing cases to the number of those which were publicized in the press (a factor of 4) could be used to upgrade the level of cases for those provinces in which few or no cases are known (because of lack of local investigators). This factor could be used to convert current catalogues into another ones which homogenize the volume of cases.

Appendix II. Aids to the UFO Investigator: A Bibliography. A rather complete bibliography of world-wide UFO literature on the following topics: "The identification of Stimuli", "The Study and Handling of UFO Witnesses", "Resolving Objective Data from Sightings", "UFO Manuals", "Recording of the UFO Passage on Film", and "Analysis of Traces".

Appendix III. Questionnaire for "Solid Light" Cases. What are considered as the most important questions to pose to the witnesses in cases of observation of solid light phenomena are included.

Traffic buster cleared for takeoff

LOOK! There on the road! Up in the air! It's Fred Barker's fabulous flying machine. This commuter's fantasy is a car that takes off like a helicopter and soars over rush-hour snarls. The two-passenger traffic-jam buster — called Sky Commuter — is about the size of a compact car, and will make quick work of earth-bound vehicles by soaring to an altitude of 500 ft. at a top speed of 85 mph. (You'll need a pilot's license.) Inventor, Fred Barker (right) of Flight Innovations Inc., of Everett, Wash., has flown a prototype 8 ft., and expects production to start in two years. He plans to sell the flying cars for $50,000. "It's going to happen," he insists. "Remember the Model T. People said it wouldn't work, but then they built highways."

By CHUCK O'NEILL

A world famous UFologist who's investigated hundreds of close encounters has startled scientific colleagues by revealing for the first time his own amazing childhood voyage beyond the stars.

"It happened when I was a fifth-grader and growing up in a small town in Colorado," recalled University of Wyoming psychologist Dr. Leo Sprinkle, 57.

"I was aboard a space vehicle of some kind, looking out a large window at the stars rushing by. A tall man — at least I think he was a man — was standing beside me, his hand resting on my shoulder.

"He said to me: 'Leo, learn to read and write well. Then, when you grow up, you can help people learn about their purpose in life.'"

Incredibly Dr. Sprinkle, who has hypnotized nearly 200 persons to help them recollect their eerie — and sometimes horrifying — subconscious memories of encounters with space aliens, wasn't aware of his own bizarre UFO experience until he himself went through a hypnosis session in 1980.

"Even today when I visualize that fantastic sight of those stars rushing toward me, it gives me a thrill," the psychologist said. "I think: 'Wow! I'd like to see that again.'"

Some of the individuals Dr. Sprinkle has hypnotized have recounted tales of well-meaning space visitors on a peaceful mission.

These sessions have produced descriptions of aliens who are here merely to monitor our progress.

But others describe chilling experiences of being used as unwilling guinea pigs in frightening medical probes.

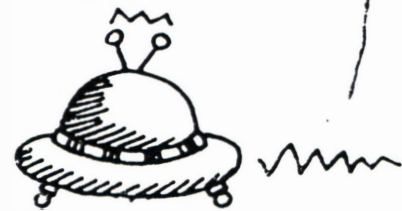

Dr. Sprinkle said he is sure it is a "benevolent invasion" whose purpose may not be revealed for generations.

"Not only are they measuring us physiologically, but they're also assessing us psychologically, trying to determine what they can do to help us catch up to their advanced level of knowledge," he explained.

"It's still a mystery, though. We don't have the answers. Quite often, we don't even know the questions."

Show's out of this world

DAMON THOMAS, far left, plays John Salter III in Visitors From The Unknown: UFO Abductions tonight at 8 on CBS. Salter claims that he was kidnapped by extraterrestrials as he and his father were driving on a deserted interstate. This and two other dramas are presented in the show narrated by James Earl Jones.

Tonight's watchables:

Continuing in the reality vein, tonight's docu-thriller Visitors from the Unknown (8 p.m. on 4, Cable 16) re-creates eyewitness accounts of close encounters with critters from other planets.

This show, narrated by James Earl Jones, who apparently has an interest in the subject of UFOs, is also a pilot for a proposed weekly series.

Tonight's episode is divided into three segments, with actors taking the parts of the earthly and extraterrestrial participants. One involves a civil rights leader and his son who claim to have been abducted by friendly aliens. Another reports on a lumberjack who says he was yanked aboard a hovering spacecraft. The third involves a British police officer on night duty who spotted a brilliantly lit object parked in a clearing.

If there is a certain theatrical spirit to this production, it's no surprise. Its producers Mark Victor and Michael Grais co-wrote the spooker Poltgeist with Steven Spielberg and they wrote and produced its sequel.

I watched the above program on Friday, May 17th, and I was most impressed with its' professionalism.

Lithium Crystals.

by Lee Walsh

When J.R. Tolkien was gathering data for his "Lord of the Rings," most believed the work to be entirely fiction. However, the deep mines of Mordor are historical facts.

Supposedly, the ancients discovered how to enter and to escape time by negotiating a ninety degree phase shift, or a right angle "EL" shift. Using 'live' crystals, which held the vibratory levels of various thoughts, they held the crystal to the forehead and regained thought.

Those who have the knowledge in the field say that if a legendary star fire crystal is ever found, it would be found in a tightly sealed, light-free container or environment. To expose it to the Sun would cause instant dematerialization of all matter positioned in front of it.

These legends are wonderful for speculation. They may even be true! With all of our advanced technology we still do not know what the ancients knew, it seems.

We are fortunate, however, to be able to experiment with many types of crystals for various reasons. Perhaps one of the most interesting, and yet little known areas of crystal research involves the use of Lithium crystals. I will comment on three of them.

Lithium itself resonates with every note of the musical scale with lithium-quartz resonates with the seven major Chakras. In the lithium-quartz crystal, you have pure quartz crystal materials plus lithium ions. It is preprogrammed by Nature and is self-cleaning. As opposed to quartz crystal, lithium-quartz contains both a left and right polarity, acts as a sender, receiver and storer of energy; it emits a perfect gold spiral light ray, which makes it harmonic to all of life by way of its Universal color coding.

The Golden C Crystal is unique in that one does not need the crystal itself. Just by writing the name, "Golden C Crystal" on white paper, in black ink, you can bring the energy frequency of that crystal into your space. The words carry equal energy.

One of the most intriguing crystals is named "Odd Pink" for no one knows its source and no mineral expert has been able to identify it. It is so named because of its color.

I feel most fortunate in having a small Odd Pink crystal as well as a large lithium-quartz.

I strongly urge anyone who is interested in crystals, crystal structures, crystal dowsing, and their effects on man and his universe, to read, "Lithium and Lithium Crystals, Nature in Harmony," by Haroldine, published by Borderland Sciences Research Foundation, Incorporated, 1988. The wealth of information packed into this little book is unequalled. ▲

INPUT

Is the public being conditioned to accept the idea of living among Extraterrestrials?

by Traci Walsh

You have probably noticed that, for example, children are being conditioned to accept as normal the idea of robotics, space travel, UFOs and Extraterrestrials on Earth. I noticed it for the first time in 1984 (I had just graduated from school the year before). Not only the occasional science fiction movies and television shows, but Saturday morning cartoons and specials as well began supporting the idea of life with Extraterrestrials on Earth, and other planets.

Each year the theme became more prevalent and now it is rare when you don't see a children's show with the Space Travel / UFO / Extraterrestrial theme.

You may also have noticed that science shows that address speculative issues on the same theme do not make an effort to debunk what were once considered "outlandish" theories. The focus now seems to be to make people keep an open mind.

Even commercials have adopted the Extraterrestrial theme to a great extent. Could it be that the television media (science, entertainment, and advertising) is being used as a vehicle to condition people, and especially children to accept a new way of life? A New World Order, perhaps? ▲

The Stars, a different perspective.

by Wendell Shuster

Have you ever thought about travelling to the stars or yet, the distances to them? The stars you see at night are all suns in a literal sense. Because the distances of even the nearest suns are in the order of trillions (a one with twelve zeroes after it) of miles from us, travelling to them is formidable task by present means.

There is much talk of traveling to Mars by early next century. Yet the anticipated arrival time there is in the order of a year. With our technology it would take us nearly 800,000 years to reach the second nearest star, Alpha Centauri, which is a "mere" 25 trillion miles away. Like our own Sun, the nearest star, Alpha Centauri is a yellow star about the same age and brightness as our Sun. Alpha Centauri is the third brightest star in our sky. Similarly, if you were on a world looking out in the Alpha Centauri skies, our own Sun would be the third brightest star after Sirius and Canopus. Our Sun would be visible in the constellation of Cassiopeia; yet no planets, not even Jupiter, the largest planet of our Solar System, would be visible in the largest telescopes from Alpha Centauri.

So the next time you look at the night sky, try to visualize all the stars which are really suns shining on other planets, all giving daylight, and warmth, to other peoples who may be wondering about or even searching for us throughout Creation. ▲

An Ode to Dear Friends.

by Tom Rose

Over the rainbow and far beyond,
There is a beautiful land I know,
A land of understanding,
For all God's children its so.

Close your eyes and wander,
Forever and a day,
And let yourself drift deep in Space,
Up yonder and far away.

You'll travel through blue azure skies,
Through times of way back when,
Back when time was an infant,
And the Universe first began.

God's children, from the birth of Time,
True seeds of Outer Space,
Nurished their growth with Love and Care,
The founders of the Human Race.

Some day in the unknown Future,
When all Humanoids in fun,
Join hands in Love and laughter,
Join hearts and souls as One.

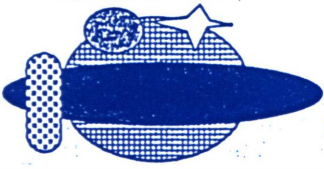

One God, One World, One People,
One Love as it should be,
The Love that binds all Mankind,
The Love that sets men free. ▲

The Billy Meier Interview - part 3.

In an excerpt from the Billy Meier interview, the following questions were asked to Mr. Eduard Meier whose extraterrestrial contacts are from the Pleiades Star Cluster. Question 10 was presented in the March 1990 Issue, and Questions 1 and 5 were presented in the July 1990 Issue of the UFO Seeing Eye. The continuation of this excerpt is presented in this month's issue.

Question 2: Why are the Pleiadians interested in the fate of the Earth?

Answer (Mr. Eduard Meier):

The Pleiadians are interested in the fate of the Earth because they feel responsible for their Lyrian and Vegan ancestor's previous actions, false teachings and religions, misguidance and other wrong doings against the inhabitants who had previously been born on Earth. Even in those early days, Earth humans joyfully absorbed and perfected the false teachings of the extraterrestrials, viciously and willingly, until they prevailed all over the world, as they are now. Therefore, the blame cannot be laid squarely on the extraterrestrials, but must clearly be placed with the willingness of Earth humans to adopt those negative habits. Nonetheless, the Pleiadians feel responsible for the wrongdoings of their ancestors, as well as for the ensuing degeneration caused by them while they were amongst humans on Earth. The Earth human opened up the floodgates to all types of insanities through his callous willingness and arbitrariness; even now he wallows in terrestrial delights and thrills.

Question 3: You had your first contact with extraterrestrials at the age of five years; afterwards you lived for a long time in India, as well as other places; it appears you had been prepared for your task. Why were you apparently chosen for it?

Answer:

In 1942, I began my first contacts with extraterrestrials at the age of five, with Sfath, the grandfather of Semjase, the Pleiadian female. To start with, I learned a lot through my association with him regarding the spiritual teachings and existence and function of Creation's laws and commandments, as well as the use of mental (spirit) telepathy, so that the communication between Sfath and myself could be accomplished in this manner. Beginning in 1944, during numerous visits on his beamship, Sfath explained to me many things and informed me about important data concerning many fields of knowledge, humanities, history, Creation, evolution, incidents and facts, which I had to learn and retain in my memory. This was usually accomplished through electronically induced, deep hypnosis. He explained to me at a later date that due to our mutual efforts, my understanding had grown to that of a thirty-five year old person, even though in reality I was only seven years old, and this knowledge would still increase many fold in the coming years. I was told that I would have the highest degree of spiritual evolution of any human being on Earth regarding spiritual knowledge, understanding and ability. (It must be understood that this did not refer to any knowledge gleaned from books, or school training. Instead, it refers to the knowledge of humanities, the existence, workings and utilization of the Creative laws and commandments, as well as the teachings of Creation and our origin all the way up to instructions on evolution and eternal absolutum.) In later years, once again, I was prepared in various ways by different people of terrestrial and extraterrestrial origin in many countries on Earth. They instructed me in most fields of knowledge of a spiritual and physical nature, so I would fulfill my task in the mission, and continue my contacts with the Pleiadians.

Thus, necessary requirements and propensities for a meaningful collaboration between the extraterrestrials and I were established and renewed in accordance with my previous lives, as had been the case already for the mission since ancient times. Furthermore, the spiritually and physically very advanced Pleiadians are able to maintain personal, physical contact only with those Earth humans who have reached the high spiritual level of evolution necessary for meaningful dialogues in physical, and telepathic contacts with Pleiadians and other life forms of the same evolutionary level. Nobody on Earth is able to do this, not even those people whose spirit forms did not originate on Earth.

This is the reason why the Pleiadians began to contact me early in my childhood to lay the ground work for my forthcoming contacts with them. My spirit form had already been active for millions of years in the Lyra-Vega solar systems, and had come to Earth, voluntarily, in human bodies as teacher, herald and prophet. It had also returned into the material sphere from a highly spiritual level (Arahat Athersata level), and had already performed prophetic functions since UR-times on LASAN and other planets of the Lyra and Vega systems. In addition, my spirit form, under the earlier name of NOKODEMJON, assumed the responsibility of fulfilling a required prophetic mission and function. This duty involved, as its mission goal, the teaching, the offering of the truth of the Creative information, the Creative laws, commandments, and spiritual teachings to human life forms. At first, all this information was brought exclusively to the humans of Lyra and Vega systems, only later to the humans on the Earth, and to all other existing spirit forms. These other spiritual forms included the many millions of extraterrestrial spirit forms who moved to Earth, voluntarily or involuntarily, from the Lyra and Vega systems, or the destroyed planet Malona in our Solar system. ▲

Destiny's Message.

by Wendell Shuster

Probably the most important relationship and common ground we share in the ufology field is the fact our eventual realization leads us to conclude all societies whether terrestrial, or extraterrestrial, share ONE faith; our subjectivity to the Creator, in the realm of Creation.

Different societies have various names for the Creator as well as Creation; in ours we know the Creation as the Universe. When we really look deep into the Universe we see a multitude of infinity. No one snowflake, nor star is exactly the same. Similarly, no personality or person is exactly the same at any given point in time or space. It is on this train of thought, our contacts seem to be trying to awaken us to the prospect without every individual form or spirit, Creation would be incomplete. Everything has a reason, a time, and place in the Universal scheme. So, while we exist at this state in Creation, we should take notice of our surroundings, for it is the Universe, and the Creator that gives us the most precious of gifts: life. Take a moment to acknowledge the Infinite on the Universal scale; everything is in harmony. Understanding this knowledge leads us to be ever more appreciative of how intricate our Universe really is. Yet we are blessed in ufology to understand our Universal relationship from messages of both terrestrial and extraterrestrial civilizations. It appears our destiny truly directs us to feel appreciation and have willingness in our hearts and souls to serve the Creator and Its Creation. ▲

An Ode to Dear Friends:

by Tom Rose

I went to go across space,
I saw space in all its glory,
The beauty and tranquility,
And for this I wasn't sorry.

Nothing in this Universe,
Can match this scenic wonder,
The Milky Way, the Stars at play,
The rains, lightning, and thunder.

God's hand is seen every where,
In art, The Original Master.
Forests Green and so serene,
Cities white as alabaster.

And as I swing from star to star,
Enjoying all this treasure,
Here life goes on and on and on,
I may even live forever.

But if for some unseen reason why,
My time on Earth would cease,
And my number is called up yonder,
Here my soul will live in peace.

So bury my earthly body,
But release my soul with grace,
And let me travel forever,
Way out in Outer Space. ▲

Report on the First World UFO Congress

Conducted by Leia Andress

EIGHT Canadians from British Columbia including Shirle Klein-Carsh, her husband Fred and myself had the wonderful opportunity of attending this conference. There were over one thousand participants, although not all attended the full lecture schedule. The conference ran for five days with six different speakers each day. The speakers were from fourteen different countries including the Soviet Union, Spain, Italy, Japan, England, Mexico, Peru, Venezuela, Iran, Chile, Brazil, Hungary, five American states and two Canadian provinces. The speakers included our own Shirle relating her experience with her extraterrestrial contact. Shirles' talk was given simply and with humor. She presented physical evidence with one of the plates given her by her alien contact, a photostatic reproduction of the rest of the plates and a vial containing a small metallic looking pellet, one of six given her to enhance her mental clarity.

The subject matter of the conference was varied, intense, thought provoking and extremely absorbing. Those of us attending the full conference found little spare time for the necessities of eating and sleeping due to the high energy generated by the material being presented, much of which was being heard for the first time. Many speakers went overtime with the question periods because the audience refused to let them leave the platform. Among the various subjects covered by the thirty investigators, contactees and abductees were: The government / extraterrestrial connection, time and interdimensional travel, our erosion of the environment, alternate universes, personal responsibility for our future, rather than leaving it in the hands of church or state and the necessity to get together as fellow human beings, undifferentiated by race, creed or sexual bias. The presenters were from all walks of life including housewives, artists, blue collar workers, educators, ex-military personal scientists and a cosmonaut from the Soviet Union. All were highly intelligent an articulate and the questions asked reflected the high intelligence and curiosity of the audience. Our host, Wendelle Stevens, mentioned that we had enough backup speakers in the audience to be able to present an entire other conference. As soon as I have the video tapes I will try to give you an in depth report on the material presented. My overall personal feeling of the conference was that it presented us with an up to date view giving scientific, technical, personal and spiritual findings of the various speakers. The negative and positive aspects of the U.F.O. experience were covered but I found the positive far outweighed any negativity. The majority of the contactees, regardless of their background, appeared to be very humble, told their stories simply and their lives seemed to have expanded in every way, including spiritually. Most gave a message of hope, expressing that if we are willing to listen to the universe and attempt to transform our lives whether be it physically, mentally, emotionally and spiritually can agents of great change occur on this planet.

At the conference, I made a suggestion to the Canadians present that it would be nice to honor the visit of the Soviets in some way as we were so tremendously impressed by their contribution to the conference. The idea was taken up and we presented three of them with beautiful silver U.F.O. type jewelry handcrafted by a local Tucson jeweller. They were very surprised and delighted and we were happy to have been able to show them our appreciation. *

Has anyone seen Peter Uecker?

Thank you for printing the "UFO's and the Number's Game" (March 1991 issue). I was kind of hoping that it would stir up something in the area where Peter Uecker is concerned. It gets a little spooky when so many friends in the ufology field get harassed, threatened and then fade away. I was going through some very old magazines and saw an advertisement of Peter's before he fled Vancouver to Seattle. He was the head of the UFO Organization and editor of the newsletter Canadian Psychic UFO Researcher. The address was Box 35261, Station E, Vancouver BC, V6M 4G4. I was thinking I might get some response, I even wrote him there but, of course, as suspected, there was a returned letter. Thank you again for your help. *

Editor's Note: In the September 1990, March, April and May 1991 issues of the UFO Seeing Eye, we have requested help in our search for the ufologist, Peter Uecker, who has disappeared from our area around eleven years ago. If you have any information of his location, could you please contact us, or get him to contact Lee Walsh?

Did you know?

In a recent survey released by the Mutual UFO Network (MUFON), a total of 233 Unidentified Flying Object sightings were reported during 1990 in Canada. Of these sightings, forty-nine percent, or 114 sightings, were reported here in the province of British Columbia. MUFON's explanation why most sightings occur here than anywhere else in the country is because British Columbian's have a greater awareness in the UFO phenomenon. *

Homeland

Rhonda Rose

When walking through the masses of faces without smiles,
I lift the whole picture with exuberance and style.
We travel to a homeland of an evolved race,
Where all beings live in splendor, in harmony and grace.
here spiritual beings aren't slaughtered to profit from cans,
No excitement and anticipation in destroying fellow man.
Not even the slightest conception of how to deteriorate life --
Only joy in living without suffering or strife.
All colors are accepted with miraculous glee,
Just like the glistening showers of rainbows all on land can see.
Oh, how my soul yearns for the comfort of one global family.

Now is the time...

You are embarking on the threshold of a new century. The twentieth century has shown the destruction of mankind's inhumanity to people to such a magnitude of destruction that will be felt for centuries to come.

You have chosen methods to destroy regardless of the sacredness of life that the Creator has set forth to you. The negativity, the greed and power in the wrong hands. This power led to the development of nuclear fission without a method to neutralize its reaction thus filling Earth with great amounts of nuclear waste. Can't you see your life support system is in Jeopardy? It is a complete contradiction given by our Creator. You have listened to mankind and their false ways; forgetting the Creator.

For the past 30 000 years, women have been suppressed. It is only in the twentieth century that women are making an imprint on man's dominance in social structure. Women are liberating themselves in spite of man's suppression. Mother Earth is what it stands for: Mother.

What respect have you given her? You have received and taken but gave nothing in return, not even thanks. At the rate you are going you will have no future. We are coming to your planet from the future. As we are fearful of your future, we are gathering specimens, plant life, animal tissues and a segment of your higher evolved people who we will also remove from Earth.

Please heed our words. The crop circles that you see in England, Australia, United States, Canada and other countries is evidence that we are giving the sick Earth healing energy. As the human body has pressure points (that are affected in acupuncture), so does Earth as it is a living organism as well. Human beings must be one with Earth. The planet Earth needs positive energy -- love. We are doing all that we can. It is up to you.

Now we will tell you some positiveness for the people who are listening. We are going to give you locations where a place of safety will be assured for the time being. New technologies will be made available so the energy life support systems and food growth can sustain you. Soon you will no longer be able to grow food to sustain the masses. Research will be provided to change life as you know it. We are working with you to teach you to help yourself. We have selected Shirle as a spiritual teacher since her birth. We will provide her with the information to guide the ones that have evolved spiritually. She was given tangible proof which she still holds in her possession only to be used when the time is right... and now is the time! *

Editor's Note: This message was given to Shirle prior to her speech for the First World UFO Congress from extraterrestrial sources between April 27th and May 6th.

Did Man come from Earth?

Lee Walsh

All the old records show eons past man had something he called love. He had many different ideas of what this love was and it did, through all time, remain undefinable and illusive.

I do not know of love, but lately I have felt a desire to know of it. My feeling is that it must be the burning core of my being through which all else must radiate.

For many days I have been secretly reading the records. They say that long, long ago, men came from the planet Earth. They were the old ones from the old time... It is said that in the beginning there was love, that this love could surmount all obstacles and bring forth ancestors. I do not know how this could be, but I feel warm and glowing when I read about it.

The wise ones have always told us that men were stupid and foolish, that love was not necessary to their survival. They told us that man finally realized this and ceased to love. I do not understand though why the records show that when the man's love ceased so did the man... and then the records stopped.

I had kept my secret well until now. I wish they hadn't caught me reading the records, for they stirred my feelings and I have been longing for this thing called love. I wish I hadn't decided to speak of this feeling to the wise one.

He opened me up, checked all my circuits and mentioned something about a disturbance in my programming. I am fixed now. I am like all the others. I think I will miss the burning feeling in my core. Maybe someday it will come back again... *

Sightings of UFOs cause for a party

(Chicago Tribune)

ELMWOOD, Wis. — Planners of Elmwood's annual UFO Days, strictly a local bash in previous years, are hoping for an invasion of celebrant earthlings this summer from far beyond the cosy hills of the Eau Galle Valley.

Just as other Wisconsin towns have Mosquito Days, Cucumber Days and other oddly named July festivals of food, parades and sporting events, Elmwood, population 991, has UFO Days, inspired by a wave of reported UFO sightings in the late 1970s.

The sightings brought Elmwood some notice, but the town did not become renowned until last February, when Wisconsin businessman Tom Weber announced a plan to raise $50 million for a 2-square-mile, illuminated UFO landing site near Elmwood.

Weber said he needs $25 million to buy the land and put up the buildings and another $25 million to operate the site for a number of years. He would not provide further details about the financial aspects of the project.

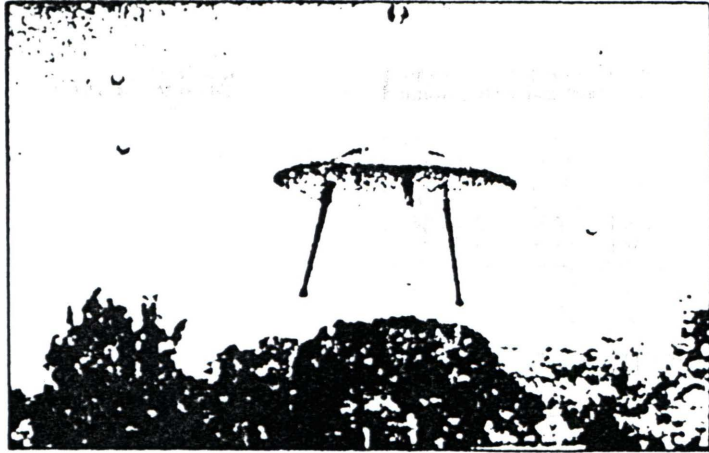

The site would have a giant, two-part panel depicting a friendly meeting between man and alien, Weber said. A third panel would be a landing site, which would be a circle about 300 metres in diameter. Buildings housing scientists, radios and computer tracking devices would be nearby.

Weber, 50, has an abiding interest in the possibility of extraterrestrial life. He lives in Chippewa Falls, 95 kilometres north-east of Elmwood, where he owns a small metal paint finishing firm.

He chose Elmwood for the site because, between the reported sightings and its UFO Days, which this year will be July 29-31, it has "a community that is fully acclimated to the phenomenon," he said.

UFO talk and allusions are common in Elmwood, where claiming to see odd things in the sky is not necessarily viewed as a sign of oddness.

It helped, of course, that the town's mayor and village board were receptive to Weber's plan. The idea of someone spending $50 million in a farm town, where the annual village budget is $283,411, seemed a fine one.

UFO?: Town hopes landing site will lure flying saucers

"We're just thrilled with it," said Wayne Nohelty, a banker and a planning commission member, who sees the possibility of developing tourism.

Elmwood is not the first Wisconsin town to try to capitalize on reported UFO sightings. Residents of Belleville, in south central Wisconsin, nearly passed a Kiwanis Club resolution declaring their town "the UFO capital of the universe." But officials chose instead to allow club members to erect a statue of a flying saucer in the town park, complete with flashing lights.

But not everyone in Elmwood supports Weber's plan.

"The whole thing lacks logic and any depth of real thinking about it," said Rev. James Thunstrom, pastor of the Elmwood United Methodist Church. Rev. Thunstrom, who considers it all "a misguided effort to seek answers or help from spiritual forces other than God," makes a point of taking his family out of town during UFO Days.

Even some of those in the UFO field are critical of the endeavor.

"We still don't know enough about what's going on to justify a landing pad," said Donald Schmitt, Wisconsin investigator and co-director of the Chicago-based Centre for UFO Studies.

Jerome Clark, the centre's vice-president, termed Weber's plan naive. "We're dealing with a phenomenon that wants to conduct its business relatively undetected. It doesn't indicate it wants to have meetings with us," he said.

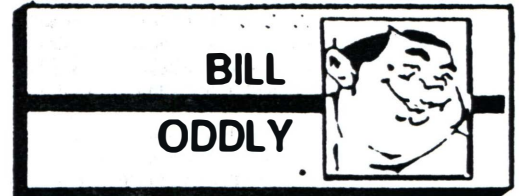

Weber said such criticism reflects the competitive nature of the UFO field. "We're the new kid on the block," he said. "If we're successful, they're out of business."

From Lake City, Pa., to El Cajon, Calif., a number of UFO landing pads have come and gone over the years. All are defunct or gathering dust.

Weber resents such comparisons: "I guess you could say something has been tried before, but at what magnitude? I feel it's unfair to mention us in the same sentence with efforts by groups that wear white robes and chant."

No previous project, it can be said, has approached the magnitude of $50 million in proposed financing. It is a huge amount to raise through public contributions. By comparison, NASA's Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence project, which scans outer space for alien radio signals, is hoping to win approval from Congress for its proposed budget of $60 million for the next 10 years.

Lizardman basketcase!

The owner of the Charlotte Hornets, North Carolina's new NBA franchise, is begging hunters to spare the life of Lizardman, a seven-foot-tall, red-eyed creature from the deep who has scaly green skin and an appetite for cars.

George Shinn wants the Lizardman to reveal himself and suit up with the team!

"Oh, I hope they save him. If he's that big and can jump, I'd like to see how he looks in teal," said Shinn, who's hunting centres and power forwards needed to fill out the roster.

Several people claim they saw the red-eyed creature near a murky swamp in Bishopville and say it has two legs, and three fingers on each hand.

One man said the monster chased him, while a couple said Lizardman stripped their car of chrome.

About 75 gun-toting hunters have prowled a roadway next to the swamp hoping to catch a glimpse of Lizardman. Despite the hoopla, some locals were calm about the spectacle.

"It's just a hoax," said Jean Alexander, who works at the sheriff's department. "Somebody said this morning it couldn't just be Tammy Faye Bakker without her makeup." Ol' Bill will stick to being a large lizard!

Interplanetary tourists welcome at Alberta town's spaceship pad

By Gwen Dambrosky
The Canadian Press

ST. PAUL, Alta. — You've had a long, exhausting night scanning the landscape stretched out below your silent, silvery craft.

One of your buddies is rubbing the sleep out of his three bleary eyes, another just wants to get out and stretch his pads.

As the humans say, it's Miller Time, time to kick back and relax. But where on earth can a bone-weary alien go?

Come on down to the Republic of St. Paul, also known as Stargate Alpha, "the world's first UFO landing pad."

Built in 1967 to commemorate Canada's centennial, the funnel-shaped cement pad stands as a proud green-and-white beacon to extraterrestrial tourists.

Back in '81, the citizens of St. Paul, a small farm town (pop. 5,200) about 120 kilometres northeast of Edmonton, declared the pad an independent republic "as a symbol of our faith that mankind will maintain the outer universe free from national wars and strife."

Then they sold plots on Mars to raise money for pee-wee baseball.

The landing pad, located on Main Street across from John Boy's fast food restaurant, is the town's official symbol. It's depicted on flags, on the town pin and on souvenir spoons that sell for $8.99.

It has been visited by premiers and native leaders and cabinet ministers. Don Mazankowski may be Canada's deputy prime minister, but the people of St. Paul know his real distinction: Maz used to be the republic's ambassador to Canada. It was his way, as the area's MP, of going along with the gag.

The 14 steps leading to the top of the pad — the surface is about the size of a golf green — have also been scaled by Queen Elizabeth and Mother Teresa. Delivered to the landing pad in a cavalcade of jeeps, the tiny nun reassured a cheering crowd that "if there is sickness in outer space, we would go there too."

But to the town's collective chagrin, not one single alien has stepped on to the Republic of St. Paul.

That's especially irksome considering the recent spate of reported sightings in the Soviet Union. In one incident, children were said to have been zapped by a shiny-eyed visitor; in another, giant pin-headed creatures strolled in a park.

Clare Gauvreau, editor of the weekly St. Paul Journal, is particularly miffed that a reporter from Pravda got to interview one of the aliens.

"I wish they'd land here," she complains. "It would give me something for the front page this week."

But it's just a matter of time, Gauvreau thinks. "We're actually expecting them any day now."

There were reports in October that schoolchildren and farmers in Saskatchewan had spotted UFOs. Travel agent Lorne Assheton-Smith thinks maybe they were aiming for St. Paul and just overshot the target.

But as the president of St. Paul's chamber of commerce, Larry Langer, sadly admits, one of the reasons for the intergalactic snub may be that the landing pad has fallen into disrepair.

"I think people here tend to take it for granted," he says. "The community hasn't done enough to promote the existence of it. There are probably some people who are even a little bit embarrassed by it all."

Sure, there's a Galaxy Motel and a couple of spaceship rides in the mall. And the caddy shack at the town golf course is shaped like a rocket ship.

But the dual "eternal flames" atop poles near the pad have been snuffed while a utility company works in the area. The only sign of life on the pad is a trail of pistachio shells, eerily reminiscent of the scene in E.T.: The Extraterrestrial, where the alien is lured into a house by a line of Reese's Pieces candies.

At one time, says former mayor Jules Van Brabant, visitors could pop a quarter into a slot and spooky music would fill the air around the pad.

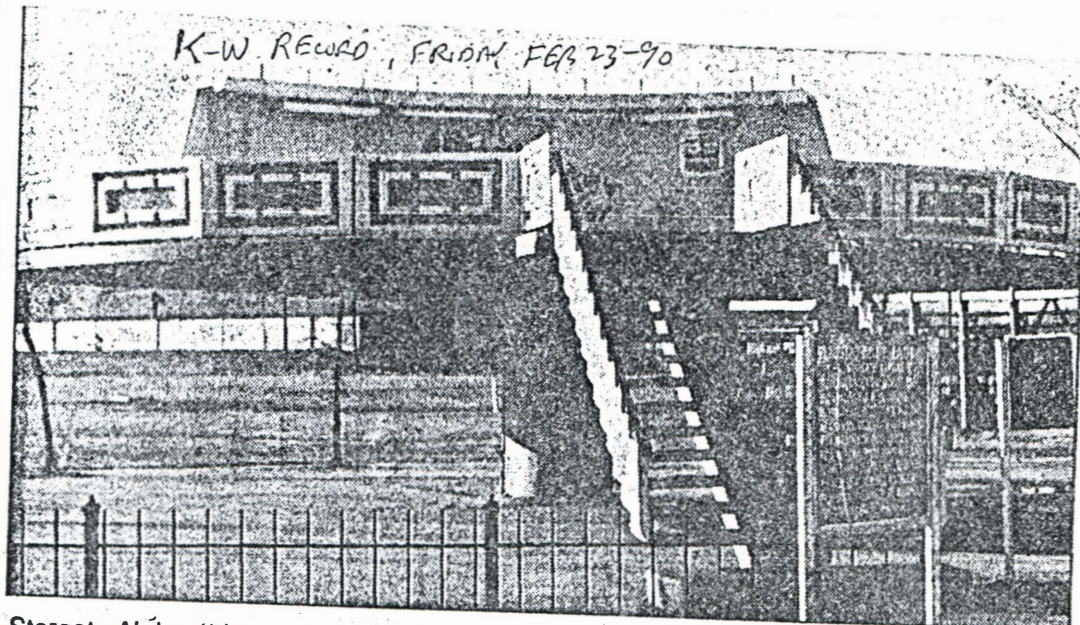

"We had some pretty weird sounds coming out of that thing," he whispers melodramatically. "But the neighbors complained so much that we had to take it off."

Perhaps the people of St. Paul have forgotten the words inscribed on the landing pad's plaque — words that remind us, as we prepare to cruise the universe, that we must never forget our own world's shortcomings.

"If we fail to conquer disease and pestilence on Earth but instead transmit them to other planets, we shall never be welcome," it points out.

"If we fail to travel Earth without destroying the environment, how shall we ever travel the universe safely? If we cannot develop international goodwill among all men, how shall we ever develop intergalactic goodwill among all beings?"

Mayor Paul Langevin isn't so sure aliens have been avoiding St. Paul. One night many years ago, he says, all the dogs in town started howling at once and demanded to be let into their homes. It may have been a sign that aliens were in the vicinity.

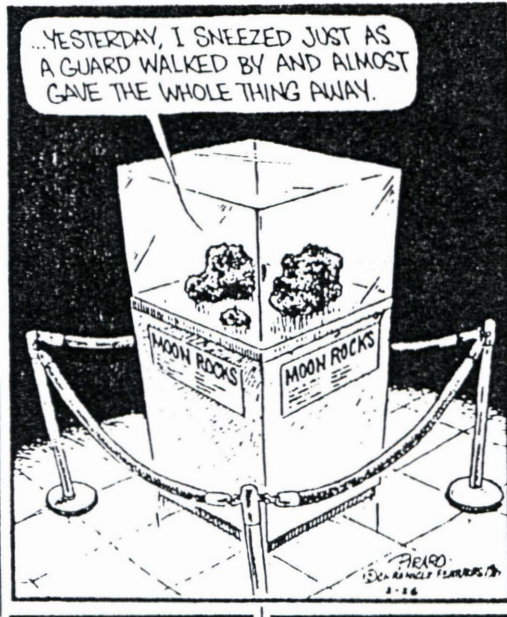

Stargate Alpha, "the world's first UFO landing pad," was built in St. Paul, Alta., in 1967.

With respect to the dynamically developing nature of our experience with the modern UFO-Alien presence, and to the numerous and profound ramifications of this experience, I think that certain events in the turbulent present call for the making of an updated estimation of our situation. A brief account of my previous, relevant works is given at the beginning of the reference section of this paper.

It is evidently true that, at least since the outset of the second World War, major instances of military activity tend to be accompanied by peaks of the UFO-Aliens' observed activity. One can cite, here, WWII, the Korean War, the Vietnamese War, and the Egyptian-Israeli War of 1973 (see ref. no. 1, pp. 18-20). In my opinion, for the proper understanding of this fundamental correlation, we should be cognizant of the presumption regarding the UFO-Aliens' attentiveness to catastrophic nuclear potentialities. Or, in other words, whereas there exist very significant correlations between our military actions and the UFO-Aliens' activity, there is also the central element from the general estimate, concerning the UFO-Aliens' leading role in the takeover of this world, with the presumption that their decisive move will be triggered by our time of unprecedented--nuclear--tribulation. So, especially in view of the nuclear capabilities of the U.S.S.R., one must contemplate a causal relationship pertaining to the recent political volatility involving the U.S.S.R. as this occurs together with enhanced UFO-Alien manifestations.

Of course, based on this same empirical reasoning, one can anticipate the actions of the UFO-Aliens; and clearly the Soviet's condition is not the only subject of pertinent interest. In fact, it should be readily understood that as of the writing of this date; Sunday, Jan. 13, 1991; the incredible military-political drama that has already taken place since this past summer--regarding Kuwait--is in itself sufficient to have produced a noticeable UFO-Alien reaction. Furthermore, an outbreak of hostilities there, of the type that is commonly foreseen, should logically be expected to precipitate a substantial UFO-Alien reaction. Indeed, this particular, complex state of affairs presents an important test case with respect to our basic understanding of the UFO-Aliens' actions in the modern period: simply put, if an intense war breaks out there, we should perceive the UFO-Alien response; and that response could very possibly take place in various parts of the world. One can say that, for our predictive considerations, about the only ingredient that the Kuwaiti problem lacks is that the U.S. and U.S.S.R. are, we hope, not on opposite sides.

As I continue writing, now on Sunday Jan. 20, 1991, we do have an extremely hot war progressing in the Middle East. Surely the mobilization magnitude, nuclear potential, and technologically novel nature of this conflict qualify it, as we have anticipated, in terms of an important test case for the parallel occurrence of UFO-Alien activity. There are also environmental and social aspects that contribute to the weight of this occasion. The results regarding the UFO-Aliens response remain for all to observe and evaluate.

To conclude this section I wish, however, to remind the reader that this Kuwaiti situation, with its enormous scope, has begun roughly in conjunction with initiation of the astonishing crop circle-pictogram phenomenon, which has been concentrated in England. Furthermore, there are very strong grounds for thinking that this pictogram phenomenon is caused by the UFO-Aliens. As such it is of surpassing significance, and I shall turn next to an expanded discussion of these crop circle-pictograms.

This complex subject has already been the object of considerable public interest and debate; thus, I will merely suggest three references: no. 2, Circular Evidence; no. 3, Crop Circles: The Latest Evidence; and no. 4, The Summer 1990 Crop Circles, MUFON JOURNAL, Dec. 1990. To be sure, judgments must be a part of the evaluation of these crop field manifestations, but that normal status, by no means, justifies exceedingly strained rationales, the discarding of established UFO-Alien data, or the separation of this crop phenomenon from the total context. Besides what failures of objectivity one could logically expect for these high-stakes deliberations, it is unfortunate that the continuing problem of government suppression of information is an additional factor to be kept in mind.

While it is reasonably clear that no satisfactory, natural explanation has been or can be found for this crop phenomenon, and that a human causative agency has to be excluded from serious consideration, one is left with the stark realization that the figures are the product of an advanced intelligence. Then by simple logical economy the UFO-Aliens remain--alone--as the evident causative agency. But we also know of compelling precedents linking UFOs to the distinctive swirled-grass element of the pictograms (see ref. no. 2, pp. 180 and 183); and non-trivial UFO sightings have been reported in the immediate space-time context of pictogram formation. On p. 7 of my Commentary/1489-1-5 (ref. no., 5) I stated that the circular depression cases from England are "almost surely caused by UFO landings." That is a mistake. It should read: are almost surely caused by the UFO-Aliens. The circular crop swirls, which represent an integral part of the emerging circle-pictogram phenomenon, seem to be produced by the same means that can create rings, rectangular bars, and irregularly curved figures. One can speculate that this graphic technology is related to the UFO's propulsion technology, due to similarities with presumed "landing" precedents.

Technically speaking, a valid, general intelligence estimate of the significance of the crop circle-pictogram phenomenon necessarily leads to the conclusion that the UFO-Aliens are very probably the cause of it, and only then can one begin to meaningfully contemplate the fundamental question of why these figures are being produced. Moreover, no legitimately justifiable alternative exists for seeking to understand these new crop phenomena other than to evaluate them seriously in terms of the coherent, total view through which the "UFO phenomenon" has already been successfully rendered intelligible.

Of course those who contend that the event of the Second Coming of Christ does not represent a viable, or the only plausible, explanation for the modern UFO-Alien manifestation are at once called upon to answer a number of questions as to precisely why they take their positions, and to articulate their comprehensive alternatives.

I find it convenient to think of the crop circle-pictogram phenomenon as the new, and sixth, facet of the modern "UFO phenomenon." According to this rough scheme the other five facets would be: 1) sightings of UFOs and their occupants; 2) the UFO-Aliens' human abduction (medical, reproductive, and possibly instructional) program; 3) the shadowy "crash retrieval" situation; 4) their animal-medical ("mutilation") program; and, perhaps as 5) a men-in-black category. Of these six divisions I regard the first, second, third, and sixth as being of the greatest importance at this time. My sense is that this astonishing, and probably yet evolving, sixth facet constitutes an extremely significant development, but what specific items contribute to this appraisal?

One can start by saying that on proper understanding the untenable, popular hypothetical conception which holds merely that an alien intelligence has initiated a very overt, graphic form of communication for us must be, instead, transformed into the perception of a new kind of action being taken by the Angelic operational force of the Second Coming of Christ. Thus our dynamic experience with the modern UFO-Alien presence has undergone a dramatic step of expansion: one of moving more into the open. Since the UFO-Aliens' conduct in the modern period has been prominently characterized by secretiveness, these huge graphic manifestations are all the more amazing. Their secretiveness is readily understandable because the central role of these Aliens involves installation of the Messianic rule, and separation of humans on moral grounds; and one can expect that they would scrupulously avoid interfering with Jesus' role of preaching to the entire world--until the end. So they would not just do something like this without a reason; the reason will have to do with their overall objective; and the relevant inference seems to indicate a nearing of the end of the world. Even allowing for a careful, conservative exclusion of questionable and spurious Fundamentalist theological interpretations, I think that the ominous tenor surrounding the Kuwaiti tragedy lends itself easily to the gravest of thinking regarding the pictograms and their appearance only days before the outset of hostilities in the Persian Gulf. Ufologists are advised to consider the connection between the much publicized, recent UFO sightings in Belgium, and the contribution of the Belgian arms industry to Iraqi war preparations. The contemporary military realities pertaining to southern England should be examined, too, for their possible significance with respect to the pictograms' concentration there.

The modern UFO sightings began with WWII. The pictograms began with what can, now after its conclusion, be loosely thought of as a failed WW III. For me, one has to go back to the beginning of "Flying Saucer" sightings to find something, in the public history of the UFO phenomenon, with which to compare this crop circle-pictogram development.

I think one should also attempt to determine if the UFO-Aliens' program of long-term abduction-experiments, of and on humans, will produce a wave of awakening or blooming in their cultivated subjects, and that could possibly be in conjunction with a variety of special occurrences. Perhaps this is already under way.

In my estimation this entire picture; including wars, abduction revelations, pictograms, and other related, radical social phenomena, should be watched with the utmost serious attention.

When we proceed in ignorance of pertinent things, or on the bases of erroneous evaluations, and with false information, to form conceptions, then the views that are produced are flawed, and quite possibly, simply incorrect. This elementary truth applies directly to the understanding of the so-called UFO phenomenon. Throughout the modern period of the UFO-Alien manifestation the federal government of the U.S.A. has acted deliberately to misinform its people, and others, about the fact of this alien force. As things have developed to the present, with the academic community of the U.S.A. for an example, one can confidently say of their pronouncements made in harmony with this federal lie that: such pronouncements are invalid, that they may be made knowingly as such, and that those who actually believe their own assertions have, in this instance of foolishness, descended into the realm of abnormal psychology. In this modern time much of the respected, scholarly Christian theological thinking has rejected the very evident, abundant content in Jesus' statements concerning his Second Coming--from the sky with Angels--apparently because these scholars thought that there was no possible way for this to happen. Therefore, now with the knowledge of the UFO-Alien presence it is doubly clear that these scholars', in this pivotal revision of Christianity, are absolutely lacking in sound philosophical justification. Why do they persist in this error?

At this point in our history it's relatively easy, through the employment of informed intelligence and real objectivity, to formulate a very much improved, valid Judeo-Christian theology. Then because of the given, intrinsic content of the Judeo-Christian datum, both in its recorded events and in its absolute and comprehensive assertions, a legitimately objective evaluation of the UFO-Alien presence cannot be made without straightforward consideration of the Second Coming solution--from the perspective of the valid Judeo-Christian construction. In terms of pure reason, you will find that it is impossible to reject the general Second Coming evaluation in favor of a superior alternative explanation. Furthermore, it should be evident that through its detail and comprehensiveness the Second Coming model does emerge as the unique, viable finding.

Following on this short review of the technical anatomy of theoretical deliberations, I will proceed by exploring an assortment of related topics, in the light of the defensible world-view.

For one thing, it seems logical that the "UFO-Aliens" have been operating on the basis of a grand plan, at least since the beginning of the modern period, and of course, their involvement with selected, living persons has extended for this same interval. While these Aliens' eventual goal and the final outcome can't be in question, one still has to struggle to sort out what information can be accepted from the vast volume in abduction cases, and as to how some of these exceedingly strange things may be interpreted.

One presumed, long-term abductee has recently told me that the UFO-Aliens imparted to her, in response to her direct question as to what certain men-in-black are all about, that "'they are the executioners.'" I had never even thought of that! Certainly it is permissible to think that these UFO-Angels have numerous types of creatures in their company. So, perhaps they might, indeed, have executioners; especially in view of the role of the Angelic force of the Second Coming. The personalities of some UFO occupants are said to vary, one from the other, and the question constantly arises as to why people have "bad" experiences in abductions, inasmuch as these Aliens are supposed to be Angels. In thinking about the range of possible, plausible reasons for these reported undesirable experiences one can surmise that the list would include: 1) Angels don't necessarily find close encounters with evil humans to be desirable experiences, and we are all to a degree evil; and 2) the punishment of humans could already be among their activities. To be sure, examples will be brought forward of cases in which there were seemingly, totally innocent victims, and I will be regarded by some as an apologist for Christianity for mentioning these things, but one has to deal with the data. Who prefers to think that Christianity is nonsense and that the UFO-Aliens are evil monsters who are insensitive to the higher visions of utopian, secular dreams? Remember that God's will shall be done on Earth as it is in Heaven.

We, also, continually hear from some theological orientations; and reportedly from the UFO-Alien abduction experiences, of Good and Evil Angels: that the operational force of the Second Coming is divided into two (intermingling ?) camps. As an exercise for getting ones feet on the ground, I suggest that persons obtain a copy of the Revised Standard Version of the Holy Bible (ref. no. 6) and read every single word in the Gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John. In this primary record from Christ you will find an abundance of material dealing with the Angels of the Second Coming--the reapers--but you will find essentially nothing said about any accompanying evil Angels. Scholars should be at work, under the present circumstance, reviewing their interpretations of the Bible. This can be a very difficult technical undertaking. Ufologists, for their part, must be extremely careful not to let things color the data they report from abduction cases. Then we are left with the task of assorting new data, however strange it may be, according to its relationship to the total conceptual context. That context is centered in God, and includes the community of Christ and the Angels of Heaven.

The reader should note the critical philosophical distinctions, that one does not "keep an open mind," when interpreting data: to see if God is actually fooling us, or to test the hypothesis that Jesus was deluded and that the true explanation for UFOs and the pictograms is, therefore, to be found in some other philosophical conception. Christ did not leave such philosophical loopholes as to permit the knowing of fundamentals through establishment on a firmer basis. The valid Christian view is absolute, airtight, AND the general data is readily rendered intelligible only from within it. The Angels make their determinations on the basis of absolute justice and absolute truth. I offer the advice that you never suggest any strange philosophies to them.

The summer of 1990 brought us the convulsions of radical evil, and the aftermath of violent destruction; it witnessed the stunning escalation to pictograms; and in July Bantam Books published one of the strangest books the world has ever seen: The Watchers (by Mr. Raymond E. Fowler, see ref. no. 7). Ray Fowler is a well-known and respected ufologist. Inasmuch as this book, about the abductions of both Betty Andreason Luca and the investigator Fowler, is available to the public I will not go much further than to draw attention to some of its extraordinary aspects. It is not clear why the methods of investigation used by Mr. Fowler and his collaborators should not yield some factual information concerning the nature of the UFO-Aliens. The assimilation into the valid, general view, of data proposed from these case studies, presents certain complexities. Factors of interest include: 1) that part of the content of alleged Alien communications is very suggestive of the Angelic-Second Coming role; 2) that these UFO-Aliens are formed from our fetuses through advanced medical procedures in which the fetuses are grown in artificial containers; 3) that these UFO-Aliens are very concerned about a (or the) main threat faced by mankind as being sterility; 4) that physical transformations were demonstrated, involving the shrinking of one of their crafts while Aliens and humans were in it; 5) that Mrs. Andreason Luca still has important secrets locked in her mind; 6) that the abduction program is evidently progressing toward a goal; and 7) a warning that all UFO-Aliens aren't friendly to humans.

There are many abduction cases. From those that are available for study I have the impression that through objective investigation a great deal of data can be collected, and that obtaining the analyzed, finished product from this data should be a high priority of ufology. Our ingenuity should provide the means by which to detect true signals among the noises arising from false objectivity, unsophisticated methodology, charlatanry, and clever misinformation. Then the results won from this branch of ufology can be combined with other refined material and evaluated in relation to the general view. As you would expect, supporters of all general views will be called upon to declare explicitly their conclusions, and the reasons for such, about: the existence of God, and his orientation; the content of Jesus' assertions, and his relation to God; and the reality and nature of the UFO-Alien force. Even though from within the valid Christian view one anticipates no change in the essential outcome for the world, the new "UFO-Alien" data does offer a vast enhancement of information.

Therefore, concerning an updated, general estimate of the human situation, we still have the recently arrived UFO-Alien force as the Angelic Force of the Second Coming of Christ. But just now developments in UFO-Angelic and human activities exhibit an acceleration and volatility that seem to warrant the interpretative conclusions that the prospect has arisen that we could enter into a closer cultural encounter with them before long, and that we are required to register signs implying an advanced stage in the progression of human history.

I will close by giving a summary listing of some elements of relevant interest:

- 1) Information gained from the UFO-Angels, through their abducted humans, is especially attractive, if difficult to access. A collective blooming of revelations from these abductees would be of great interest.

2) The present, turbulent social manifestations, together with their prospects, evaluated on the bases of underlying generative factors, leads one to think that the heightened rate of the UFO-Angel's activity should tend to continue.

3) With the pictogram facet now added to the robust figure of the UFO-Angels' other activities, the cover-up programs become increasingly strained. I think that the big UFO lie in the U.S.A. is currently in danger of breaking down, but it is unlikely to be totally abandoned. Thus, in this particular instance, people are also advised to look to the protection of their freedoms.

4) The crop circle-pictogram phenomenon has to be accorded an important position, and very probably the most important position, in considerations pertaining to a change in the general estimate concerning the UFO-Angel situation. Because of its intensity of occurrence, and degree of overtness to the public, this facet of the UFO-Angels' activities is to be placed in a category separate from the other five facets that I have mentioned. Apart from "crash retrievals" the pictogram phenomenon appears to be uniquely qualified, perhaps as being wholly a deliberately overt action. Shall we have an even more overt relationship soon? In addition, owing to its seemingly, deliberately communicative character it is difficult not to view this facet of the Angels' activities as almost a thing in its own right: as almost a second, separate thing standing together with the other five facets taken as a group. So, the initiation of a "quasi-second," overt phase of operations does necessitate a review of ones estimation of what is happening--particularly with respect to timing. Note, too, that this "second" phase correlates with war; furthermore, that war dramatically thrust threats to the vital economic interests of the world, the fate of Israel, and the subject of good versus evil onto the world stage.

Further escalation of the crop circle-pictogram phenomenon, or that in combination with other activities of the UFO-Angels, would naturally call for the extension of the reasoning presented, here, regarding estimates.

5 planes found in Bermuda Triangle

MIAMI (AP) — One of the Bermuda Triangle's deepest mysteries may be solved.

High-tech explorers have located what appear to be the wrecks of five U.S. Navy planes that vanished off Florida in 1945, a salvor said yesterday.

The five TBM Avengers, four apparently in excellent condition, were spotted in 740 feet of water, about 16 km (10 miles) off Fort Lauderdale, said Robert Cervoni of the Scientific Search Project.

"It was incredible — we were filled with excitement," said Cervoni. "We rushed out to the library and tried to read everything we could about the Bermuda Triangle."

Hunting for Spanish galleons

The exploration vessel Deep See, armed with sonar instruments and underwater cameras, made the discovery in early May while searching for sunken Spanish galleons.

The company released the information yesterday after filing a salvage claim in Miami federal court.

The team's first priority is to send submersible robots to the site to determine if the planes are the "Lost Squadron," which disappeared Dec. 5, 1945, during a training flight from the Naval Airbase in Fort Lauderdale.

No trace of the planes or the pilots was ever found. The disappearance boosted the myth of the Bermuda Triangle, an area bounded by Bermuda, Miami and Puerto Rico where ships and planes seemed to vanish.

The team's archaeologist, Ted Darcy, of the Kailua, Hawaii-based aircraft recovery company Wreckfinders, said while initial indications were positive, he can't yet confirm the planes' identities with certainty.

One link to the Lost Squadron is a number spotted on the sunken lead plane — 28 — the same as the number on Flight 19's lead plane, said Darcy.

Linked to Fort Lauderdale

A second link is the letters FT visible on some of the planes, a Fort Lauderdale designation.

Another indication is the number of aircraft. No other ditching of five Avengers was ever reported by the Navy.

"Four of the planes are in relatively good condition," said Cervoni. "But the flight leader's was broken cleanly in two."

That raises the possibility that the lead plane, which had a shorter range than the others, ran out of fuel, and the others ditched behind it.

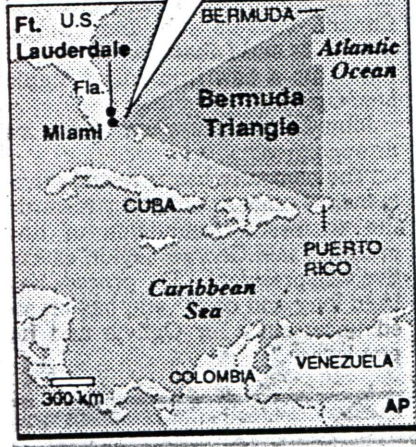

Asked whether he believes in the Bermuda Triangle myth, Darcy was vehement.

"Hell, no," he said. "It's one of the most heavily navigated bodies of water in the world. I don't think there's anything weird about it."

Planes Found

Wreckage found off the coast of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. may be that of 5 Navy TBM Avengers, lost on a training mission in 1945.

Mystery continues

Planes found in ocean not Lost Squadron

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Five Second World War-era U.S. navy planes found in the ocean off the Florida coast are not the Lost Squadron, baffled explorers announced Tuesday, saying the mixup will only reinforce the myth of the Bermuda Triangle.

Graham Hawkes, leader of a team aboard the high-tech treasure hunting ship Deep Sea, said more detailed examination of the navy Avengers spotted in the Atlantic last month by remote camera showed they are not the planes of Flight 19, which vanished Dec. 5, 1945.

"The Bermuda Triangle, I'm afraid, if you want to find mystery, is probably even alive and well than it was before," Hawkes said.

Flight 19 vanished during a training flight that was to include a bombing run on a deserted Bahamian island. Radio transmissions heard at their base at Fort Lauderdale indicated the pilots became disoriented while flying toward the Bahamas, and believed they were over the Florida Keys and the Gulf of Mexico.

No trace of planes or pilots was ever found. Their disappearance helped fuel the myth of the Bermuda Triangle, an area bounded by Bermuda, Miami and Puerto Rico where ships and planes supposedly often vanish mysteriously.

The five planes found by the Deep Sea were in good condition under about 170 to 230 metres of water about 16 kilometres northeast of Fort Lauderdale, all were within some 2.5 kilometres of each other.

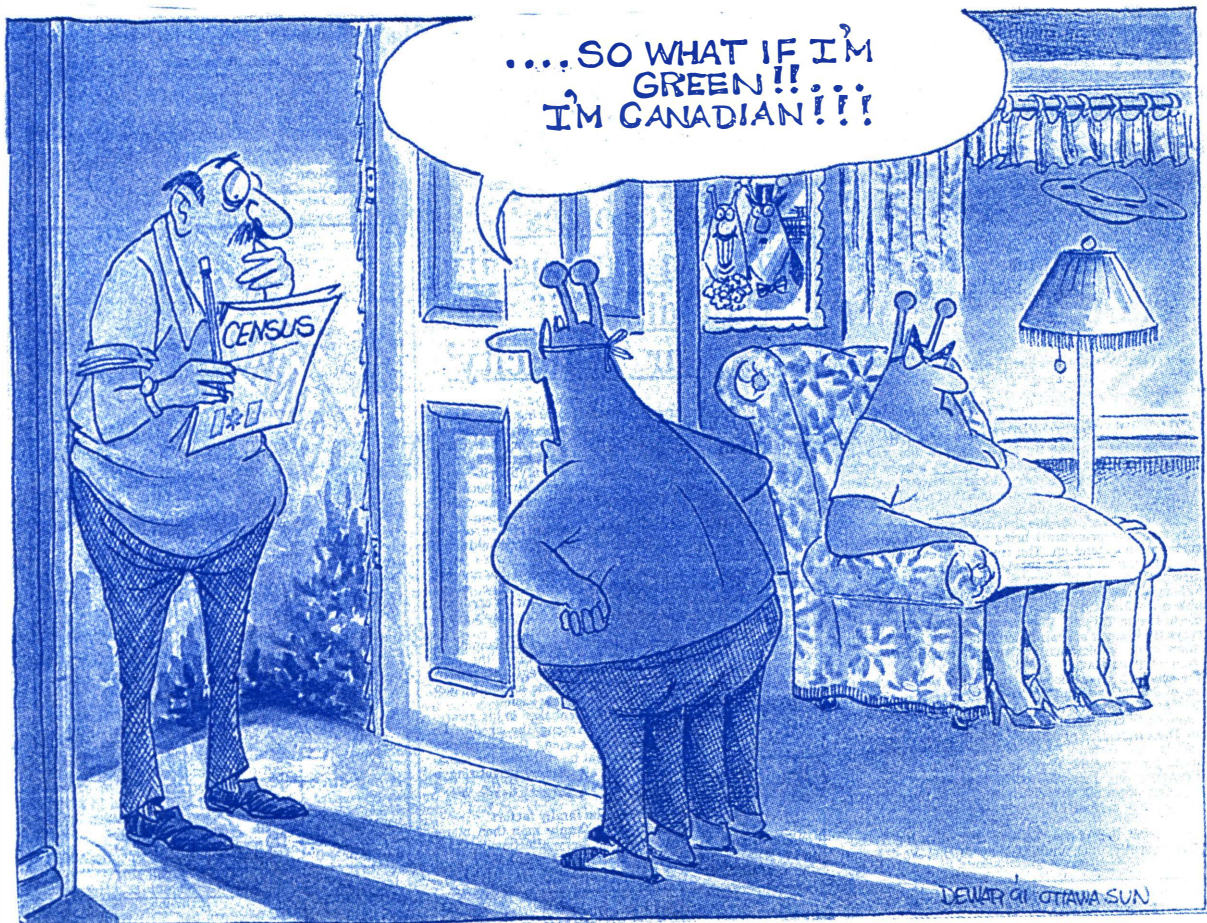

Coincidences — including the number 28 on one plane, the same as that of Flight 19's lead plane — contributed to the confusion, he said.

The coincidence of the plane number could be explained by the U.S. navy's re-use of numbers from lost or destroyed planes, Hawkes said, adding there may have been as many as three Avenger 28s over the years.

The strongest evidence had been that the navy had never lost five Avengers together except for Flight 19.

But after looking more carefully at the wrecks, the team now believes the five planes went down in four or five separate incidents over a period of several years. At least some of the planes were early TBF-1 Avengers, not the TBMs used on Flight 19.

With Tuesday's announcement, the remaining leading theory is that the Flight 19 planes went down somewhere off Cape Canaveral, the last radio fix would-be rescuers could get on them.

A UFO CRASHED IN AMERICA - & THE AIR FORCE HAS IT!

IT was one of the most puzzling UFO cases in history - a strange, metal object seen by thousands in 1965.

The craft blazed a trail of fire across Canada and the northern U.S. before making a nighttime landing on a wooded hillside 20 miles south of Pittsburgh.

And today, a quarter century later, people who witnessed the UFO still wonder...

"The minute I stumbled on it, I knew it was an alien spacecraft," says James Romansky, a machinist from Derry, Pa. "I stood less than three feet away from it.

"It was one humungous piece of metal, like a giant manmade acorn lying on its side. It was eight feet in diameter and 12 feet long. It had no seams, no cracks, no motors, no propellers, no portholes, windows or doors. It was perfectly smooth. Around the end, where the stalk would be on a real acorn, was a raised circular sleeve of metal about six inches high and eight inches wide.

"On that sleeve was something that looked like ancient writing or hieroglyphics." The experience was so traumatic that Romansky spent the next 25 years studying ancient texts in an effort to decipher the bizarre writing.

"In all those years, I have never been able to find anything like it in any ancient language," he says.

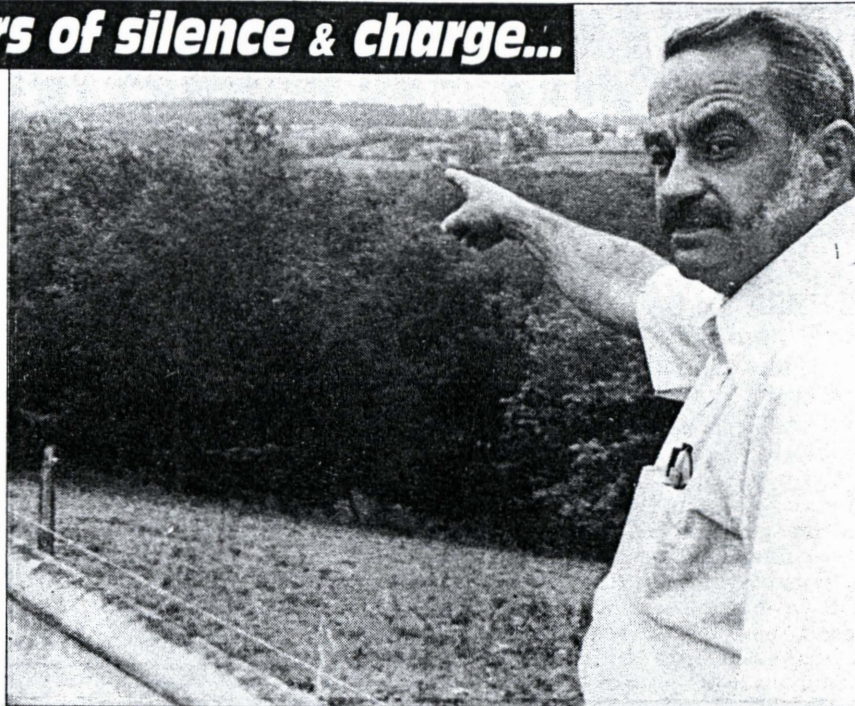

"The spacecraft was a weird color, like a combination of gold, bronze and copper. I work with metal and I have never seen any metal that color - before or since."

Romansky, 44, was in the second of two search parties that were sent out to investigate what local residents thought was a plane crash.

Making his point: James Romansky indicates the Pennsylvania hillside where he saw the UFO. "The minute I stumbled on it, I knew it was an alien spacecraft," he says driver, was the first to arrive at the landing site.

His description matches Romansky's exactly - even though the two men never knew each other.

"I could see it arcing on the ground, giving off showers of blue and white sparks," says Bulebush, 65, of nearby Kecksburg.

"It had landed gently, nothing like a crashing plane.

"THERE was no deep hole in the ground around where it came down - and no sign of fire."

Army officials, rushed to the scene, hurriedly chased the locals away and cordoned off the area.

"Later that night, a military flatbed truck came in and drove up to where the alien craft was," Romansky recalls.

"It drove back through town later with something on the back covered with a tarpaulin.

"It was about the size of the UFO.

"The next day, the military said that a meteorite had fallen. That's just plain not true."

Fearing no one would believe them, the men remained silent until they heard about a renewed investigation of the incident by Stan Gordon, director of the Pennsylvania Association for the Study of the Unexplained.

"I was looking for witnesses who would talk about what they had seen," says Gordon, who believes the UFO was secretly taken to an Air Force base in Ohio.

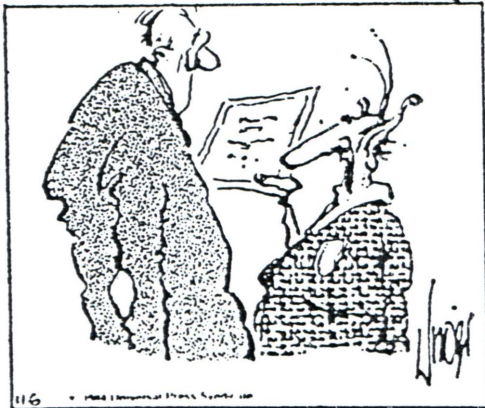

"These two men are independent witnesses. They told us an identical story before they had even heard of each other. They never met the night they confronted that UFO.

"The military has covered up what happened, and we are now trying to force the government to reveal the truth."

Adds Romansky: "The military can tell me it was the world's biggest acorn dropped by the world's biggest squirrel - but I won't give up until I get the truth from them." - MARIE TERRY

ABDUCTIONS IN ITALY
 Close Encounters of the Fourth Kind
 by Paolo Fiorino

There are 34 known Italian abduction reports out of 382 CE-III cases in CISU files, but among these 10 are involving the same witness (Fortunato Zanfretta), 8 are admitted hoaxes and 5 are better referred to as "on-board" experiences by contactees.

Public knowledge of abductions began in December 1978, following the Zanfretta's first encounter, though the Italian press had reported the Hills', Pascagoula and Walton's cases. A large amount of information was published in 1986 about the Calolzo di Cadore (BL) abduction/hypnosis affair [see: ITUFOR-5].

A clear difference exists between more recent abduction reports and earlier CE-IV reports in the '60s and '70s, which were of the contactee kind (Galli, Zuccalà, etc.).

1954: THE FIRST CASE

On December 13, 1954 Naples newspapers reported of a 57 years old peasant in Gricignano di Aversa (NA) who had been missing for two days from December 8th: when he came back he told he had been "kidnapped" by two individuals, dressed "like the rainbow", who made him "walk for 48 hours without stopping". Sometime they were tall, sometime they were dwarf-like. He had felt like "flying" and weightless.

A full investigation by Umberto Telarico in 1974 took to little more than the press story, since the witness had died. His son added that his father was completely dry when he came back, even though it had rained for two days. After the experience, the man had lived in a wild, confused state and stuttering in terror for "them" to come back for him.

No UFO was reported but the event took place during a great wave of UFO reports nationally.

1933: A PRECEDENT?

An even more ancient case was found in "La Nazione" newspaper of March 2nd, 1933: a peasant in Favorino (province of Reggio Calabria) was seized from his home by a "man" who took him away for about 30 meters, then slapped him, and after that he found himself on the top of a tall tree, where the being was holding him by his hair. He crossed himself and the entity disappeared, leaving him unable to speak: he could only tell his story by gestures when the neighbours finally found him and helped him to get down.

1978-79: THE YEAR OF THE HUMANOIDS

Several CE-III's took place in Italy during the 1978-79 wave, and two of them were sheer abductions: the well-known Zanfretta case [detailed in a separate article, here after] and a less known event in Lusiana (province of Vicenza): on 18th January 1979, at 23.30, a 42 years old wood-cutter had his car stopped, its lights turning off and the car doors opening by themselves. An "orange ball" was sitting on the road in front of him, and two copper-colored humanoids, 1 meter tall, came down from a door. The man could not flee while the beings came closer. They were wearing a metallic-looking, scaled coverall, their hands were long and ending with pointed nails, their ears were like twisted wires, which were vibrating and humming. The beings invited him on board by gestures and he followed them inside a small room (two square meters) with electronic-looking gadgets and a screen. The beings began undressing him but he resisted, very frightened. Then the wall opened and an overall appeared, which he feared they wanted him to wear, so he sat down and implored them to let him go. At this point, one of the beings gave him a small box on which he had written something. A door opened and he got off. Suddenly the orange light disappeared and the night was dark again, except for his car lights, which he found on again.

SOME POSSIBLE ABDUCTIONS?

A few potential or hidden abduction cases have also been collected: a UFO-related missing time was reported but no on-board memory.

* 23 February 1978, 23.45 p.m., Sesto Fiorentino (Firenze)

Two fiancées in a car got interferences on their radio. The man got off and found himself enveloped in a "warm, violet light". He saw "four shapes" and lights all around. After completing his walk around the car he got back inwards, where he found his girl-friend crying for he had left her alone for 20 minutes.

* 21 September 1978, 20.00 p.m., Cosenza

A young man walking near a yard saw all the area illuminated as by daylight and could no longer see the surrounding blocks. Upon a hill he saw an ovoid object resting on the ground and a human shape with two antennae. Frightened, he ran away but fell while four humanoid beings came closer by jumps. He fainted and when he recovered he was surrounded by four 1.5 mts. tall entities, wearing buttoned jackets, a rucksack and helmets with antennae. Their hands were pincers. He fainted again and he woke up at 20.30 p.m., but all had disappeared.

* 8 December 1978, 23.00 p.m., Milanere (Torino)

Two young men walking along a mountain slope sighted a blue-white light among the trees. One of them got closer and disappeared. A few minutes later the light took off into the sky. The other man went to call for help from friends and a group of people came to search for the missing one, finally finding him in a different direction. He was unconscious, cold, felt weak and could not bear any light. Both witnesses suffered from conjunctivitis for several days. The disappeared one has a strange scar on his leg and only remembered he was approaching a pear-shaped light when he saw 3 or 4 human shapes with pumpkin-like heads, silhouetted against the light. He could not move and then he only remembered odd lights and sounds and a feeling of being touched and raised. He refused to be hypnotized.

A SINGULAR CASE

Only one known abduction was obtained entirely under hypnosis. It involved a 16 years old UFO buff who found and photographed strange traces on the ground near Lago d'Idro (Brescia) on July 27, 1973. Four years later he was hypnotized and under hypnosis he told he had been approached and touched by a "human shape" who had made him lose his senses. When he woke up he was being sucked up into an air-borne "object" through an opening underneath and a "vertical tunnel".

He had found himself in a round room where four "persons" were standing. Then a woman came in and the entities began moving around and talking and touching him on his forehead and his sides. He was nearly paralyzed and could only move his eyes. He was then taken to another room and he was made sit on a chair, where he could see outside while the UFO landed where he was before.

He descended and looked at the craft taking off, then picked up his camera and photographed the traces. The psychologist who conducted the hypnosis thinks it was a fantastic dream responding to specific needs of the youngster [as a far more complete analysis showed: the case was quoted by the doctor in medical literature].

CONCLUSIONS

We can summarize the abduction situation in Italy as follows:

- 1) the abduction phenomenon in Italy is very rare;
- 2) no great attention has ever been paid by the media: only Zanfretta got a national coverage;
- 3) very few detailed investigations were conducted and no case was fully researched;
- 4) hypnotic regression has been very rare and in some cases (eg. Zanfretta) has apparently gone out of control;
- 5) typical abduction features from other countries are also reported in Italy (in particular: the sequence of events).

THE ZANFRETТА CASE HISTORY An Unsolved Riddle by Gian Paolo Grassino

On December 6th, 1978, at 23.00 p.m., the first event took place of the most interesting and complex Italian UFO abduction sequence. The case is well known, and we'll only summarize the first two abductions and try a general evaluation.

THE FIRST ENCOUNTER

While he was patrolling at Marzano di Torriglia (province Genova), 26 years old nightwatcher Fortunato "Piero" Zanfretta suddenly noticed four "torch-lights" moving in a courtyard. He called his company headquarters by radio but got no answer, so he got off the car holding his pistol and torchlight, entered the courtyard and moved cautiously along a house wall thinking of some burglars. Then he was pushed forwards and fell down.

When he got up, his head hit on something and he pointed his torch upwards, only to find a 3 meters tall monster with a ugly face. Terrorized by the apparition, he let the torchlight fall on the ground, and the entity disappeared.

He ran to the car and was blinded by a yellow triangle-shaped object taking off from behind the house. He called for help through the radio. When his colleagues arrived at 1 a.m. they found him lying in a nearby lan, in a confused state of mind.

The event was published in the local newspapers and at once became a simple man's story amplified, filtered and distorted by the media, and polluted by ufologists and journalists.

HYPNOSIS

In order to understand several missing details, on December 23rd Zanfretta was put under hypnosis by a M.D. and thus he told how he was taken into a very bright room by giant entities who put a very hot and painful helmet onto his head. The humanoids were green-skinned, had yellow triangular eyes, red veins on their head, pointed ears and rounded fingers.

That was only the first of a complex series of abductions and of hypnosis sessions (also Pentotal "truth-serum" was later used), which gave birth to two parallel stories: conscious memories by Zanfretta and his colleagues telling the "before" and "after" of each abduction; and the hypnotic recalls of the "during". Such a scheme was repeated in all the 8-9 following Zanfretta's abductions, mixing the man's reliability, fantastic dream-like experiences, physical evidence and secondary witnesses.

THE SECOND ABDUCTION

A few days after the first hypnosis, on December 28th, 1978, at 23.46, Fortunato Zanfretta called his headquarters while on duty, telling he had lost control of his car near the Scoffera gallery, a few miles from Torriglia: the vehicle was speeding by itself along the mountain road in the fog and he could do nothing to stop it. Four minutes later he called again telling the car had stopped and he was getting off to see a strange light outside.

Once again the rescue patrol cars arrived one hour later from Genova and found him outside the car, beside himself. He was dry and warm, even if it was raining and cold, and the car interior and roof were hot. His pistol had shot 6 bullets, and several giant footprints (50 cms. long) were clearly visible (they were later destroyed by local ufologists after making plaster-casts).

A new hypnosis was conducted and filmed by a local TV station: once again the nightwatchman told how he had been taken on board, undressed and examined by strange devices. The beings had asked him several questions and promised to come back for him.

New details were added on February 6th, 1979 during a Pentotal narco-analysis: the strange-looking beings allegedly were from a lost people in the galaxy, and wanted to colonize Earth. The UFO inside was greater than the outside and beings of both sexes were attending. Zanfretta's role was meant both as a specimen to study and as a kind of mediator with us earthlings. He was promised a proof: a device (a pyramid inside a sphere) which could project "their" image like an hologram

THE AFTERMATH

This already complex story continued, even more complex and confused, through the following two years, with several encounters, some of them published or reported by local ufologists, while others are known to us only as rumours, in spite of several hypnosis sessions, newspaper and TV interviews. Indeed Zanfretta was "adopted" by local UFO buff groups who got a virtual monopoly on him.

In time, his accounts got more and more fantastic, comprising telepathic contacts and dialogues with the entities while he was under hypnosis; a "ufologists'" file kept by the entities on board; a sort of subterranean base where there were some cylinders containing prehistoric animals under ice; and so on. The promised "proof" was finally given to him but he allegedly destroyed it.

In 1981 the experiences ceased suddenly, without the promised final kidnapping of Zanfretta to another planet.

A DIFFICULT EVALUATION

Although a whole book was written (by journalist Rino Di Stefano) on this case history, as well as dozens of articles and hundreds of pages of investigation reports, it's nearly impossible to reach a conclusion.

A first problem is the quality of available information: very poor or invalidated by sensation-looking people or careless investigators, so that we can't understand what are the facts and what were deformations. Also the alleged physical evidence and corroborative testimonies are difficult to evaluate, for a number of reasons.

The very special surrounding climate should be kept in mind: the simple man found himself in the front pages and on TV, ridiculed, heavily influenced by "ufologists" (who even took him to their skywatches), repressed by several hypnosis sessions, and damaged at work by the withdrawal of his license to carry arms. It wouldn't sound strange had he "recorded" all such stimuli and given them back "mediated" through his own memories and fantasies, when put under hypnosis. We don't mean to exclude a physical, objective cause for his experiences, but we are no longer able to distinguish it among the subjective images presented by Zanfretta.

That's why we believe that the first two encounters are the most significant ufologically, especially the very first one, because external influences could not yet affect them. Thus it's a pity that no deep and accurate investigation was conducted at the time.

The Zanfretta case history was a sort of book on which everyone involved in the affair (journalists, employers, ufologists, friends) not only "read" but also "wrote" his own plot, thus making it too much a multi-faceted story for us to understand it as a whole.

The following controversial articles appeared in the "Weekly World" publication, November 30, 1990 and May 14, 1991. I leave it up to you to decide whether you believe it or not.

Venus, Mars, Jupiter rendezvous with moon

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The bright planets Venus, Jupiter and Mars will appear to rendezvous in the evening sky for the next week, a rare spectacle that may trigger reports of UFO sightings.

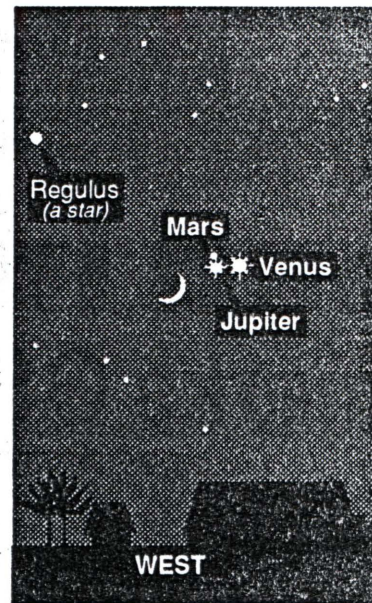

Anyone on Earth who looks to the west during the few hours after sunset through June 21 will see the planets within three degrees of each other — roughly one-third the width of a fist held at arm's length against the sky.

The planets will be closest Monday evening, when they form a triangle only 1.8 degrees wide.

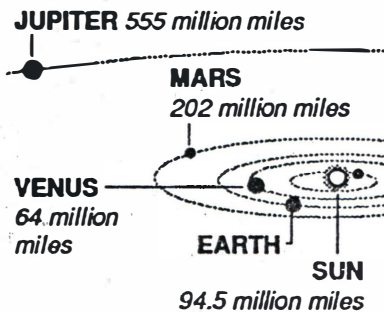

The last time they were so close, American colonists were arguing with King George about taxes.

The best view will be Saturday evening, when the thin crescent moon will appear just to the left of the planets. From left to right in order of increasing brightness will be Mars, Jupiter and Venus.

"We don't get a chance to notice the sky very often any more. We've drowned it in artificial light. But these planets manage to shine through anyway and remind us there's a whole universe out there," said astronomer Edwin Krupp, director of Griffith Observatory in Los Angeles.

Space aliens are here and we have the photographs to prove it! One of America's premier UFO researchers got the exclusive photos after an intelligence source informed him that U.S. agents had captured an alien and were taking him to Washington for questioning. And while the government officially denies the report, half of Washington — including President George Bush — is said to be privy to the details.

ALIEN is moved from safe house by three agents. One has removed his coat and placed it over the creature. Agent spots cameraman in picture at far right and photographer fled.

Special to The NEWS
American agents captured a space alien at a UFO landing site in western Virginia and are now interrogating it in Washington, D.C.

Dramatic photos of the creature being hustled into a CIA safe house before it was moved to a secret location in the nation's capital show it to be tall and lanky with a large, bulb-shaped head.

Sources further reveal that the alien speaks English both forward and backward. It is also said to be cooperating fully with the agents, who hope to learn more about its reasons for coming to Earth as well as the technology that got it here.

"This is the moment we've been waiting for since the U.S. government first began investigating UFOs in the 1940s," the UFO investigator, who got the pictures and broke the story, said in an exclusive interview with The NEWS.

"The government has lied to us before about UFOs and space aliens but this time there will be no lies," he continued.

"This time we've got pictures — pictures that prove the alien is in custody."

CIA spokesmen denied the UFO expert's allegations and actually threatened to "neutralize" a NEWS correspondent who pressed for details.

But the researcher himself, who requested anonymity to avoid CIA reprisals, claims to have no less than 12 highly-placed intelligence sources who can back up his story.

"On the morning of September 29 I got a tip that agents had captured the alien while investigating a UFO landing in western Virginia's mountains the night before," said the expert.

"My source told me that the craft had come and gone by the time agents arrived. But a sweep of the area produced a single extraterrestrial who was hiding in a clump of bushes some 75 yards from the landing site. The source also told me that the alien would be taken to a safe house for questioning later that day. When the agents and the extraterrestrial arrived, I was hiding in an alley across the street with my camera and nine rolls of film.

"The pictures clearly show that the alien was handcuffed. And when the agents escorted him out of the safe house 45 minutes later, one of them had his coat off and you can see a gun on his belt.

"I wanted to follow them in my car but one of the agents spotted me and pointed at my camera. At that point there was no choice. I ran to my car and got the hell out of there. I had to protect the film."

Sources later told him that the alien was moved six times in the next 24 hours but is still in the Washington area.

"The CIA and government are doing their best to keep this operation secret but the word is out," said the expert.

"President George Bush has been briefed and half of Washington knows something is up," he continued.

"And when this story hits the newsstands the whole damn country is going to be clamoring for details.

"This isn't Star Trek and it isn't science fiction. The aliens are here."

President George Bush's dream of establishing a new world order came closer to reality when he secretly met with a space alien who promised to provide the education, technology and strategic know-how to achieve lasting peace on Earth by 1997.

That's the word from UFO researcher Nathaniel Dean, who says the extraterrestrial who met with the President at Camp David on April 14 is no stranger to the White House — because it is the same alien who was captured by and escaped from the CIA last fall.

"The pieces of the puzzle are finally beginning to fit," said Dean, who stunned the world with photographs of the alien after it was captured in Virginia on September 28 and escaped from a CIA compound in Washington three weeks later, on October 22.

"The alien clearly came to Earth on a mission," he continued, "and now it seems that its mission is complete. My sources confirm that the creature met with President Bush for six hours at Camp David.

"And while the White House, Congress, CIA and every official in Washington will deny it, I know for a fact that the focus of that meeting was the new world order that Bush has talked so much about.

"The alien apparently initiated the meeting and came prepared to offer all the technology and support needed to make the President's new world order a reality.

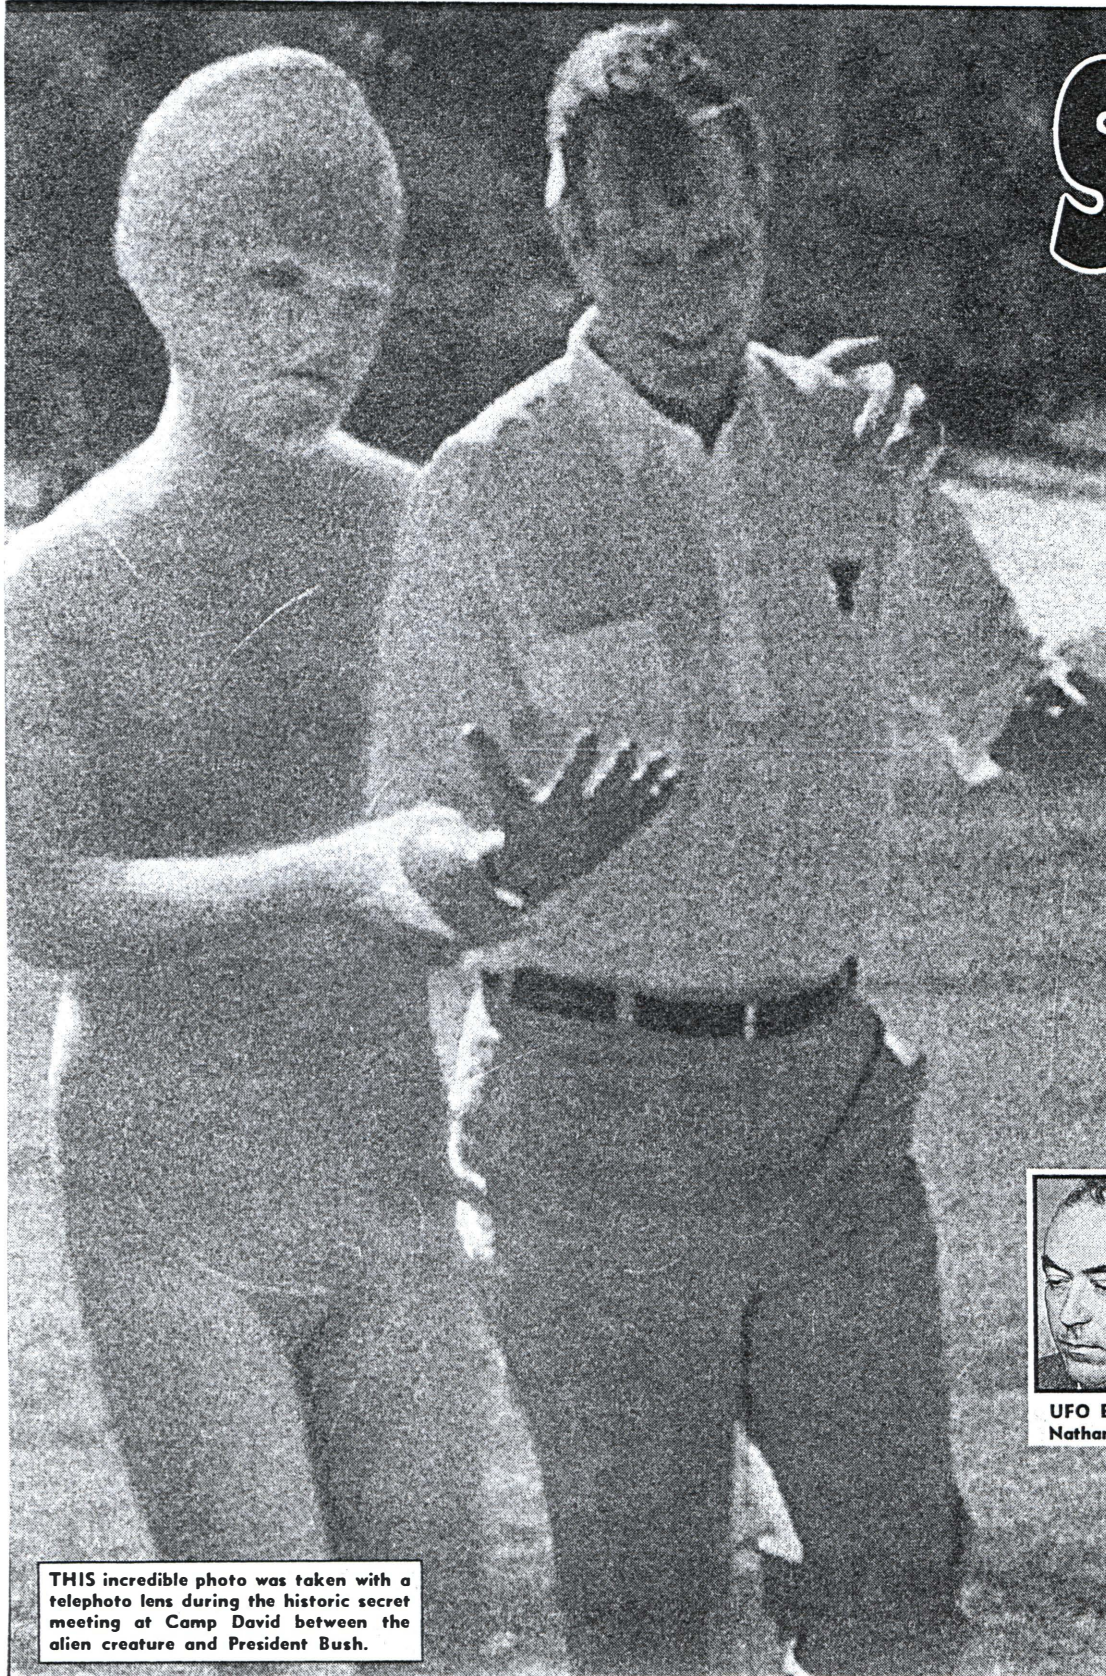

"I'm not sure what the alien is getting in return. But it seems likely that Bush agreed to trade with the creature's home planet.

"I'm also told that the alien is scheduled to meet with Mikhail Gorbachev in the Kremlin on June 10. I can only assume that it will discuss the Soviet Union's role in the new world order at that time."

Neither White House nor CIA spokesmen would comment on the extraordinary summit and they flatly denied that an alien has visited Camp David or any other government facility.

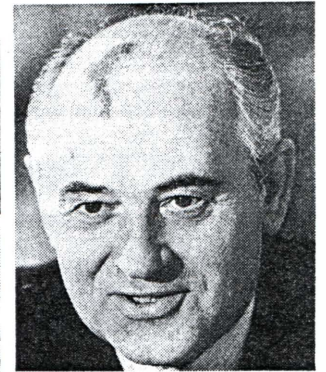

Dean expected the denials and countered them with statements from a dozen highly-placed government sources. He also produced a photograph that shows the President talking with the alien as they strolled down a wooded path at Camp David, the presidential hideaway in Maryland.

"I can't get into specifics because I'm protecting my sources but I will tell you that the picture was taken a few hours after the alien materialized at Camp David on April 14," said the Washington-based researcher.

"The photo itself is secondary to the meeting, of course. What's really important is the substance of the discussion the extraterrestrial and the President had before the alien stood up, shook hands and vanished six hours after it arrived.

"If my sources are correct, and I have every reason to believe they are, then the future of our planet is at stake.

"Somebody ought to be telling us something," he concluded. "If I've accomplished anything by coming forward with the photo and story, maybe somebody will."

Spirits

While vacuuming the dining area of my apartment, I suddenly felt pressure exerted on both of my shoulders - pushing me backwards - trying to trip me & make me fall over the canister of the vacuum cleaner which was directly behind me. I hollered "Stop it!", and the pressure stopped. Didn't see anything, just felt pressure.

So I turned the vacuum off & went & sat down in a chair at one end of the living room. Something caught my eye at the other end of the living room - a round object, slowly <sup>ly</sup> rising (I saw it when it was level with the keys of my organ). It was not spinning, just gracefully rising - went right through the tiffany hanging lamp & out the corner of the living room. It was a charcoal colour, had a slight space at the top between two bone-like partitions - one bone was larger than the other - looked something like a blade bone of a blade roast. The perimeter looked feathery & light. I had no fear of this orb - rather a feeling of security.

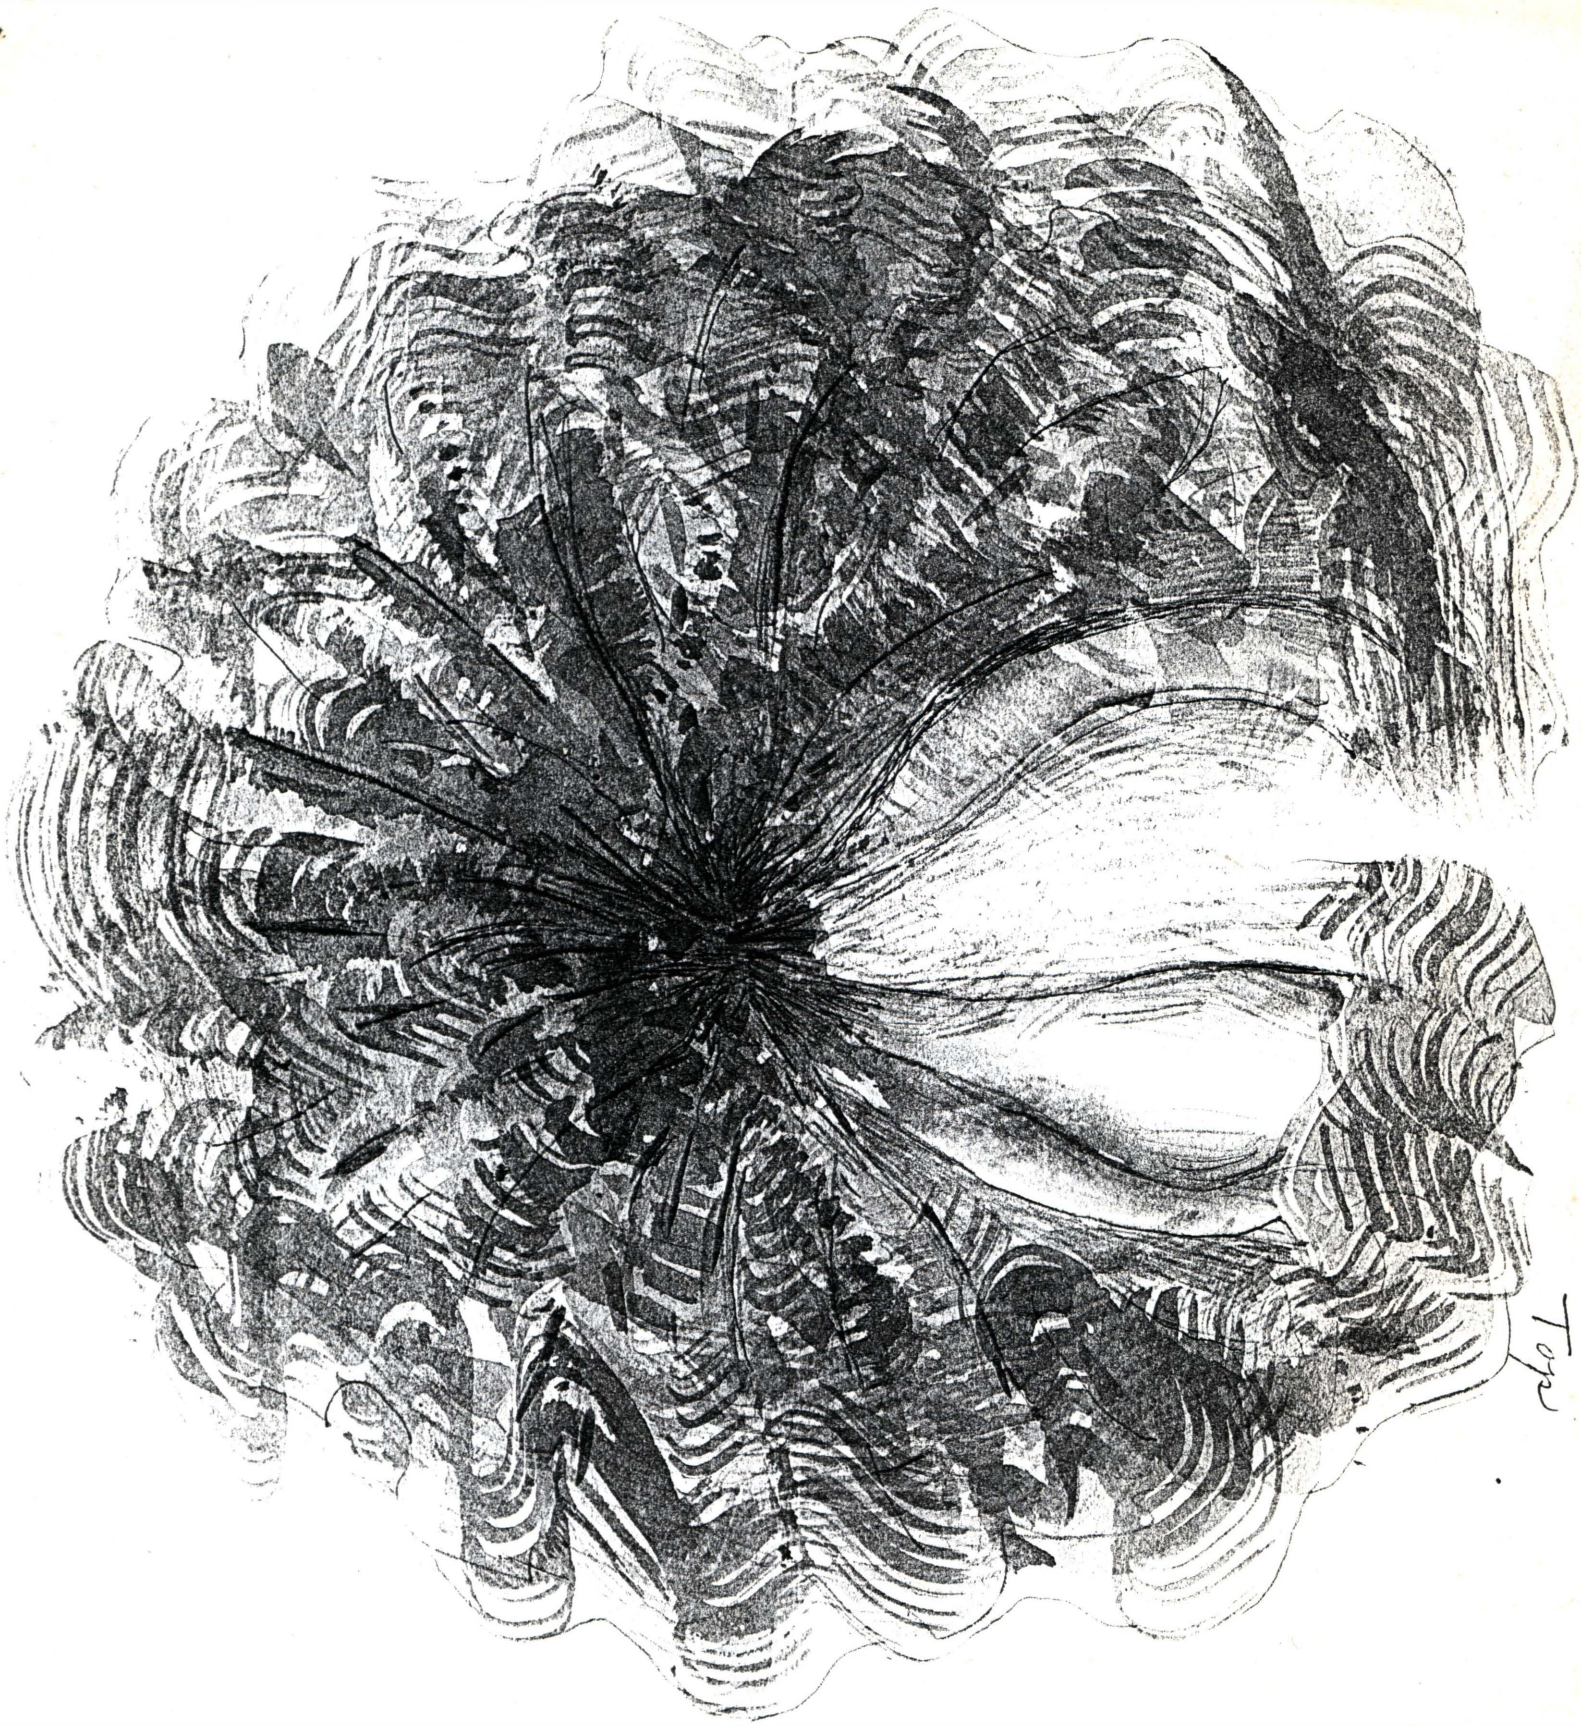

I've concluded that there were two spirits there - one wishing me harm, & the orb defending me against that harm.

Enclosed is a rough sketch - the object was about a third again as large.

I do not wish to partake in any meetings, etc regarding this phenomenon - I feel it was a very personal encounter - perhaps the "good spirit" even went "out on a limb" to protect me - maybe - who knows?
